Senator Wheeler, who for years has advocated Russian recognition, returned from a visit to that country more convinced than ever, he said, that the United States should recognize the Soviet government. Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, and Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota who accompanied him on an unofficial visit to Russia, were less outspoken in their views but said they encountered a friendly reception wherever they went.

Menken, avowed foe of communism who recently advocated deportation laws to oust communists, declared recognition would be "the moral and the sensible thing to do," but that his opinion of communism remained unchanged.
