Arrangements for press day at the 1936 fair include a no-host dinner at noon at the fair grounds for the state's newspaper family, according to Arne G. Raefield, manager of the Oregon State Editorial association, who has charge of the arrangements. The editorial association, of which The Oregon Statesman is a member, will conduct an exhibit at the fair to demonstrate the interest in, and advertising value of, the newspaper metropolitan dailies as well as small country weeklies, of this commonwealth. It is also expected that copies of some of the earlier editions of Oregon's older newspapers will be shown at the editorial association's booth.

The fair exhibit committee of the association includes E. F. Short, Oregon City Enterprise, chairman; Sheldon F. Kirks Enjoy Passion Play; Back in New York After an Interesting Trip Abroad

Witnessing the passion play at Oberammergau, Bavaria, was the privilege of William E. Kirk, member of the faculty of Willamette university, this summer. Professor and Mrs. Kirk are at present in New York City where Professor Kirk will attend Columbia university during the next nine months. He is on furlough from his duties here in the Latin and Greek departments in the university.

In a letter from Syracuse, N. Y., to H. M. Tennant, registrar of Willamette university, Professor Kirk tells of his witnessing the passion play, and of some experiences in France and Switzerland.

"The French may be slow," asserts Professor Kirk, "and may lack forethought, but they are not lacking in courtesy to customs service. After our baggage had been inspected at Cherbourg and we were headed toward the train for Paris, three officials espied my wife carrying my overcoat, and at once, suspecting her of smuggling, they seized her, pulled her to one side and, in the midst of rapid fire colloquial French, began to thrust their hands into the overcoat pockets, in search of cigarettes and matches. To their alarm they found only one pair of gloves, a book on French conversation, and a newspaper."

Commenting on Switzerland, which the couple passed through, Professor Kirk says, "We viewed one of the most marvelous mountain regions in the world, on our way to the great Jungfrau. It is comparable with, but by no means superior to the mighty ranges of our own country."

Wednesday, July 9, was the day the Kirks saw the passion play. Tuesday afternoon they were taken by bus from Innsbruck to the hamlet of Oberammergau, Bavaria, "continues the letter from Sicily. "All kinds

U. S. LOSING OUT SAYS DEAN HEWITT

Failure to Study Tastes of South America Costly, Learns on Tour

Unwillingness of American manufacturers and exporters to make their products and their service conform with the demands of South America is losing trade for us there. At the same time Germany, eager to recapture markets lost at the time of the war, is giving a superior service to the southern countries and rapidly winning trade.

Such was the impression received by Roy R. Hewitt, Willamette university law school dean, who returned with Mrs. Hewitt Monday from a two and one-half months' trip in South America.

"Another impression I received from the trip was the fact that South America is composed of a number of intensely national countries. The languages differ, the customs differ. Sectional and national jealousies are acute and rapidly winning trade."

On the trip south Dean Hewitt took his party—an Upton Close tour group—on the western side of the southern continent to Chile and then over the Andes to the Argentine.

Snow was heavy in the mountains; the American party got through between storms and thus saved a week's delay. Winter clothing was necessitated in the southern part of the journey as our summer is winter season there.

The Hewitts left Salem the middle of June. Their ship, the Southern Cross, on the return trip to New York, passed between the hurricane which wrecked havoc in the south.

SPECIAL SERVICE PROVES POPULAR

The special young people's night Sunday at the Church of Nazarene was a great success according to Rev. Fletcher Galloway, pastor. The church auditorium was crowded to capacity and more than half of the audience were young people.

Rev. Galloway spoke on the subject, "A Challenge to Youth." Miss Ila Hoffer sang as a solo, "I Know a Name." Also a mixed quartet composed of Clarence Litwiler, Hattie Litwiler, Thea Sampson, and Fletcher Galloway sang "Lead Me Savior."

Rev. Galloway used the story of the rich young ruler and his interview with Jesus and the challenge which Jesus gave him "Go sell what thou hast and come follow me."

He said that it required more courage for a young man to follow Jesus in every relationship of life than to face a gun. The challenge of Jesus, he said, draws out every bit of manhood or womanhood and yet it is a challenge that yields the richest returns. The rich young ruler was to be commended.

Members of the state highway commission will meet in Salem today to consider a request by Governor Norblad that they issue a block of bonds for the purpose of completing a number of highways now under construction or included in the state highway improvement program.

Gov. Norblad pointed out that such action by the commission would assist in solving the unemployment situation in Oregon, and at the same time insure the completion of needed highways.

The governor made it plain that he would not suggest the completion or construction of any certain highway, although he thought the state would benefit by the immediate completion of the Roosevelt military road.

This highway is virtually completed with the exception of sections in Douglas and Lane counties.

WORK PROGRESSING ON LABISH HIGHWAY

Marion county's "million dollar highway" will be ready for travel the latter part of this month, Roadmaster Frank Johnson reported following a trip to the project yesterday.

As everyone familiar with roadwork in the county knows, this highway is an overhead route over the rich soil in the Lake Labish lands. An 1800 foot trestle was voted by the county court to aid growers in their section in saving acreage for the produce, and at the same time give them easy access to markets.

The last piling on the trestle will be driven this week, and some filling is already being done; however, a large fill at one end will be necessary before the trestle is thrown open to traffic.

Johnson also visited the rock crusher between Silverton and the north Silver creek falls, where he found work progressing satisfactorily.

Milan and Rome are three and one-half hours apart by airplane.

He said that it required more courage for a young man to follow Jesus in every relationship of life than to face a gun. The challenge of Jesus, he said, draws out every bit of manhood or womanhood and yet it is a challenge that yields the richest returns. The rich young ruler was to be commended.
