ROAD TO YACHTS SLIPPERY, REPORT

Should it rain hard within the next day or two, hunters and others who are planning trips into the Yachats country might just as well know in advance they will have a trying time getting in, S. H. Isherwood, who has been spending most of the summer there, reported upon his return to Salem. Isherwood is manual training instructor in the Parrish junior high schools.

Year-around residents at that open resort were expecting a Chinook salmon run momentarily when he and Mrs. Isherwood left there, Mr. Isherwood said. Deer are unusually plentiful there this season.

Although the road is in wonderful condition all the way to Waldport, the eight miles from there into Yachats is almost impassable. Even travel on the beach road will not guarantee easy entrance to Yachats, as the mile and a half from the beach is in poor condition. Graveling has just started on the eight mile stretch from both ends, and it is expected this will be finished by Christmas.

Voters there will be asked at election this month to consider building a new high school.

FIRE LADS BOUNCE OUT OF NEW BEDS

After 3 years of sleeping on the same beds and mattresses, firemen of the central station will probably have no hard time getting used to the modern beds and new mattresses with which the station is now being equipped.

Along with the change in sleeping facilities, the floors of the dormitory and officers' quarters are clean and soft with new cork linoleum laid over felt. All the firemen are agreed that these furnishings have been needed for many years. To make appropriation for them in the budget has heretofore been the difficulty.

Fire Chief Harry R. Hutton states that the old beds had been in use ever since the department moved from the old location on State street to the newer one at the corner of High and Chemeke streets. That is, since 1897.

Gilmore Joins In Price Raise Upon Gasoline

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—(AP)—With Pacific coast motorists awaiting a one-cent increase in the price of gasoline at Standard Oil Co. stations beginning Monday, the Gilmore Oil company, one of the largest "independents" in the state, announced today it will follow Standard's lead in boosting the price to 21 cents a gallon.

Although other oil companies withheld announcements, it was the general belief they would fall into line before Monday. The feeling was also general among executives of the various companies that conditions described by Standard Oil yesterday in the statement containing notice of the price raise, should be obviated and relief given the independent refiners.

Place Where Babies Come to Light of day Interesting; Cheerful Despite Suffering

Obstetrics Ward at Salem General Hospital Now Complete; Service Improved

By OLIVE M. DOAK
The obstetrics ward of a hospital is always one of the most interesting and for the most part cheerful departments of all those involved in the business of making life possible for suffering folk. There is suffering there but with it comes great joy if all things concerned are proper.

At Salem General hospital last June the obstetrics ward was completed. It has been a source of pride and joy to both the hospital officials and to the many parents who have been served by its services. It is located on the second floor of the hospital building. It comprises one separate department on this floor and the surgery takes up the remainder of the floor space. There are six private rooms, three semi-private rooms and a four bed ward, making in all 16 beds available. In addition to these rooms there is a delivery room.

Everything about the department is of the latest development in the way of equipment. Soft toned mahogany is the finish of the room furnishings. This takes away the austerity of the old idea of hospital interior decoration and gives a more homey appearance.

It will be of interest to note the donors of furnishings for the rooms. They are: 206 furnished by Mr. and Mrs. D. A. White; 207 by members of St. Joseph's parish; 208 by Dr. Mary M. Staples; 209 by the Women's Alliance of the Unitarian church; 212 by Salem General Hospital auxiliary; 213 by Phil Metcahan and his sons and daughters. Salem Rotarians furnished the four bed ward.

During 1929 following the completion of the ward in June there were born 158 babies. Of this number there was only one set of twins, and there was one Japanese baby in the lot. Four of these babies came one night and by the amount of additional work involved proved the efficiency of the hospital staff in handling the situation. A number of babies are not enough to keep those on duty busy an accident case came to swell the night's activity.

Now that things have gotten organized the rates for the rooms has been changed to a lower figure. Former prices made the introduction of a baby into

MARVEL LEADS IN DELAWARE CONTEST

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 13.—(AP)—While returns from the democratic delegate election were slow in coming in tonight, indications were that Josiah Marvel, president of the American Bar association and candidate for the United States senate, would be the candidates over Thomas F. Bayard, former senator from Delaware.

In rural Newcastle county and this city, the vote for delegate to Tuesday's democratic convention was said to be very close, but with complete returns from the various districts unavailable the result could only be approximated.

At the headquarters of the Marvel and Bayard factions the only thing learned was that it "is very close." Each faction claims to have been successful. At the organization democratic headquarters it was said Marvel would have a majority of from eight to 10 delegates in this district. Bayard's voting precincts being in widely scattered districts it is not expected complete returns will be made before Monday.

COMMISSION WILL REDUCE ITS STAFF

Several clerks employed by the state industrial accident commission will be relieved of their positions and the payroll correspondingly reduced not later than November 1, it was indicated Saturday at the offices of the department.

This will be for two reasons. One that the existing business depression will result in more than the usual number of shut-downs by Oregon industries this winter. Since many of these operate under the workmen's compensation act which is administered by the accident commission it will mean a decrease in the amount of business going through the department. While there is ordinarily some closing down of industries in the winter it has never before affected the payroll of the accident commission.

Another reason for the reduction in the clerical force will be a new system of making accident reports to the commission. Formerly three reports were required in each case, one from the worker, one from the employer and one from the physician. Under the new plan, known as the "three-in-one" system these are consolidated.

Here, There And Yon

Bits of Personal News Gleaned About Interesting People

Carolyn Swope, who each summer conducts the largest private summer schools in the state of California, made a short visit in Salem yesterday, calling on Mrs. Mary L. Fulkerson, county school superintendent, while on her way back to southern California from a vacation trip north. More than 1,000 students were enrolled last summer in the Swope summer school course of which are devoted almost exclusively to elementary educational problems. She also visited at the state school superintendent's office while here.

Seasonal laborers would be doing themselves and Marion county a favor if they would stay right here and work in the hop and berry fields until the apple harvest starts. A. J. Egan of Egan Brothers ranch at Hopmer observed while in the city Saturday. Egan says he finds scores of people pushing out from Yakima and other apple centers, despite the fact that apples are not yet ready to harvest. It's hard to get them to stay here and work at jobs right under their nose, Egan himself is in need of 50 more evergreen blackberry pickers and some hop pickers. He has two weeks more work in hops and 10 days in berries.

Leslie Tromanbauer of White Bluffs, Washington, passed through Salem Saturday on his way to Visalia, Calif., where he will be plaintiff in a slander suit which will begin September 23. The trouble developed when Tromanbauer was agriculture teacher in the Porterville high school and was dismissed and had his certificate as an agriculture teacher revoked. According to Tromanbauer the case will be in the nature of a test of state administration of the Smith-Hughes act in California. He is asking for $11,000 from the principal, Ben H. Griemer, and charges slander and false arrest. He also has a suit pending against the Los Angeles National bank to determine if a bank can under the California bankers' lien law, take money from farmers which they obtained for shipment of livestock, to satisfy a promissory note.

National advertising which includes gasoline, automobile, tobacco, food, medicine and a hundred other lines of commodities is beginning to take an upward swing in newspapers, reported A. W. Stypes of San Francisco when he stopped here Friday. Stypes thinks this trend indicates reviving business conditions the country over. His business is to represent newspapers in the securing of national newspaper advertising for their columns.

Enoch F. Smith Made Defendant In Divorce Suit

Marion Smith yesterday filed in circuit court here divorce complaint against Enoch F. Smith, to whom she was married at Newport in July, 1924. They have one child, of whom she asks custody. She charges cruel and inhuman treatment. Coming under this head in the complaint is violent temper on part of defendant, calling plaintiff vile names, failure to provide common necessities for plaintiff and the child, and failure to provide medical attention when needed. She asks $20 a month for support of the child and suitable alimony.
