

RIVER PROJECT NOW PLANNED

Will be Feature at Eugene On Occasion of First Night Grid Game

EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 20.—(Special)—Eugene will be host to the people of Salem and to the whole upper Willamette valley in what is designated as a "tri-celebration" on the day and evening of September 26, it was announced here today by R. Roy Booth, president of the chamber of commerce. Frank Jenkins, chairman of the Willamette river canalization committee, and Hugh E. Rosson, graduate manager of the University of Oregon.

Invitations are being sent through the chamber of commerce here to all chambers between here and Oregon City, urging business men and others to be present for Eugene's annual fall style show, the Oregon-Willamette football game, and to top things off, a "rally" for the Willamette river navigation project, this latter to be held between halves of the night football game on Hayward field.

The night football game, the first to be played after dark in the history of the collegiate game in Eugene, will be the high spot of the day, and is expected to be one of the chief attractions for bringing in large delegations from other valley cities.

The opportunity for a get-together meeting on the river project was sensed by those interested in this phase of development of the valley, and a record crowd is expected to hear of the river plan. And to be asked to support them.

Program Between Halves Planned
A short, snappy, interesting program between halves, which will have a real surprise element as well, is being planned by those in charge, it is announced.

The University of Oregon band, and other features will be presented, and a short talk on the canalization project will be delivered by an authority on the subject.

A real "rally" for the river project is one of its most urgent needs, it is pointed out by Mr. Jenkins. If Eugene and other river cities are to have this service, which will provide regular freight barge service between here and Portland, concentrated action on the part of the citizens is necessary.

The unanimous approval of several thousand persons gathered here September 24 will show that there is an interest in the proposal and that it is definitely wanted.

Game is Drawing Wide Interest
The game to be played that night is already attracting state-wide attention, it is declared by those who have been in other cities lately. Salem is especially interested, and a large delegation of grid fans is expected to make the trip with the Willamette team.

With more than 40 players already on the field and practice a week along, Coach Spec Keene will have one of the strongest football aggregations in years, and every effort will be made to beat Oregon, the collegians declare.

Eugene's style show, to be held September 24, will be the official opening for the fall and winter trade, and it in itself will be worth coming the length of the Willamette river to see, say its sponsors.

Other plans for the inter-city gathering will be announced within a few days, it is stated by those in charge.

Swimming Party Prelude to Drive For S. S. Members

WEST SALEM, Sept. 20.—The Christian Forum Sunday school class gave a swimming party at the Salem Y. M. C. A. yesterday evening. Groves; the Bible class, taught by Rev. W. J. Warren; the young married women's class, taught by Mrs. A. L. Applewhite; Mrs. Esther Henningsen teaches the Christian Forum class.

herd on the S. J. Parker farm near Cuero. She was given up as stolen.

But on the third day Parker espied a strange object in a tree. Investigation revealed Bossie chewing her cud and viewing the landscape through the branches. The tree leaned at such an angle as to enable the cow, tiring of the pasture the drying grass afforded, to proceed up the trunk in search of more inviting foliage. Unable to back down, there she remained.

VETERANS PLEDGE EFFORT FOR PEACE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—(AP)—While veterans of ten allied armies echoed pledges to wage unceasing battle for peace, one of the most dramatic leaders of the war that united them stood on the fringe of the Fidac congress today and voiced belief the tragic command he led in 1915 is finding vindication.

General Ian Standish Hamilton, who saw 200,000 casualties among his British and French troops at the Dardanelles—before he was relieved of command, and the expedition abandoned—said "unprejudiced minds everywhere are beginning to see it was the only hope of ending the war quickly."

Another World war veteran, now high in this government—Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war—declared at a dinner tonight "modern wars usually grow out of racial and economic intolerance," that the promise of an end to wars, made so often during the last struggle "seems now almost forgotten and we again hear of wars and rumors of wars," and those who fought together owe it to the comrades dead to "promote understanding."
