HORSE SENSE SERIES . . . NO. 8

"POWER production is a competitive business everywhere. Power companies compete with each other and with private producers. Two companies here compete for our power load.

"Power is getting cheaper because its production costs are lower. Steam, generated from sawdust, oil, or cheap coal—not hot air from pseudo-politicians—is creating this result for industry and householder alike. Steam-electric power in many instances costs less and is more reliable than hydro-electric power. Our power companies make both; that's sensible.

"Oregon wants new industries, especially woodworking and furniture factories, to manufacture Oregon's greatest raw material, Lumber. Power is not the major factor in attracting these industries because modern woodworking factories may produce their own power.

"As a result of mass production methods, however, the power companies are able to produce power at a lower cost than the woodworking factories.

"Here in Portland our company has more favorable power and shipping facilities than our competitors in Eastern cities. Community cooperation will make these benefits known.

"Our power companies pay millions of dollars in wages and taxes. Invariably they buy Oregon products, if available. They support Chambers of Commerce, On-to-Oregon. They work for the State; they are good servants. They live and let live. If everyone else did as much, happy days would come again.

"What we need more than anything else is 'Oregon Spirit—a willingness to pull together to make ALL Oregon industries prosperous. Don't tear down; BUILD UP!"

Percy A. Smith

Oregon's greatness is in its clear thinking leaders—our business men who have made Oregon better known, who have added to Oregon's wealth and prosperity. They have the interests of the state at heart. And when they speak out every citizen deserves to hear what they have to say. For this reason, we are publishing Mr. Smith's views on a question which affects you as much as it does this company. Pacific Northwest Public Service Co. ("Pepeco")
