Goods Sent Back Merchant Avers In Suit Answer

He didn't sell a large portion of the goods left by a representative of the company, as the representative said he would, so he sent them back. That's what Charles G. Hall, defendant in suit to collect $276 brought by the Continental Jewelry company, says in his answer to the complaint.

Hall says the jewelry company represented to him that should he fail to sell a large portion of the goods in two months, he might send the goods back and consider the matter closed. He didn't sell, so he sent them back and considered the matter ended—until the complaint was filed. He asks that the case be dismissed.

First Trip on Valley Airline Set for Today

The first round-trip flight of a proposed Eugene-Portland passenger airline is set for today by Lee Eyerly, local aviator and member of the state board of aeronautics.

The start from Portland has been scheduled for 9:15 a. m. Fifteen minute stops will be made in Salem, Albany and Corvallis. The return trip from Eugene will begin at 12:15 p. m.

Program Given At Ad Club Meet

E. A. Brown, advertising manager of the Capital Journal, took charge of a "surprise program" at the Salem Ad club Friday. Brown mixed clever stories between the introduction of two five-minute speakers, Stanley Keith and E. E. Law. Keith made a plea for the further study of the need of advertising and Law told briefly of the problems of merchandising.

The meeting was held in the new basement grill of the Gray Belle. Eighteen members attended.

TRAGIC END TO NOTED CAREER

As a tragic finale to a brilliant career, Lieutenant-Colonel Richard Bennet Creecy, U. S. Marine Corps (above), with wife on whom he wielded a hatchet. It happened in a room in one of the Capital's most fashionable hotels. Insanity, perhaps the result of tropical fevers, brought about the tragedy in which the noted officer killed himself, and recovery for his wife has been termed doubtful.
