Charge for Care of Insane Urged by Kozer, Reporting Other States' Experiences

Patients at the state's two hospitals for the insane, or their relatives, when financially able, should be required to pay the cost of their care, in the opinion of Sam A. Kozer, state budget director.

Such a charge, Kozer declares, would yield a return sufficient to cover the building requirements of these institutions.

Governor Norblad and other members of the board of control with whom Kozer has discussed the matter have expressed keen interest in the possibilities presented by such a charge and it is probable that the governor will include a recommendation for legislation covering the matter in his message to the next legislature.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS IS ENDED

It's all over but the voting now, so far as Mr. and Mrs. Public go in the general elections of November 4.

Registration books all over the state were closed at 8 o'clock last night.

The state of Washington, Kozer points out, collected $252,000 for the care of insane patients during the year ending March 31, last, and $366,000 in the two year period ending September 30, 1928.

Registration here was heavy toward the close of the period, but earlier it was exceedingly light, says Clerk U. G. Boyer.

By far most of those registering here were simply changed from one precinct to another, rather than being marked as new voters, it was indicated.

PROGRAM IS GIVEN FOR C. E. MEETING

Sam Laughlin is Honored by International Association of Accident Boards; Wins Office

Presidency in 1931 Means Convention in Oregon Following Year; Trip Enjoyed

SAM LAUGHLIN

Sam Laughlin, head of the industrial accident department of Oregon, was elected vice president of the International Association of Accident Boards in the city here.

Mr. Laughlin held a coveted place on the program for the convention, being the first speaker of importance on the first day.

"Did you ever consider the remarkable evolution of people," said Mr. Laughlin thoughtfully. "There was that chap from Porto Rico. He started life in a very humble way, later became a cigar maker and then developed to the place where he could come to the United States and stand up beside men like James J. Davis and talk with perfect ease and what he had to say was interesting, too."

In being a convention duties Mr. Laughlin managed to get in the last day of the golf tournament in which Bobby Jones again distinguished himself. "He played as though being a member one person about in a million, the mammoth crowd which watched him and he does not look athletic." The playing was going on at Ardmore, Pennsylvania, but said Mr. Laughlin in the east it is easy to get a ride on other state in a hurry—look just two hours to go from Wilmington to Ardmore.

An international convention in Salem would mean much to the city and state as it will bring here, representatives from each of 46 states, each province in Canada, from Porto Rico, and it is hoped at that time to make the event an "all American" convention with representatives from South America, Central America and Mexico, and with the various territories and provinces of the Pacific.

Mr. Laughlin had planned carefully for the opportunity to bring the convention to Oregon and he feels that the loyalty of the Oregon accident commission in attending each convention, together with the lure of the west for the easterner, was what turned the trick in favor of the west against such strong opposition as Pennsylvania, which has been one of the largest state accident commissions in the association and still has never had a convention.

The actual number of days which it took to make the trip was eight working days—nine nights were spent on the train and four days in the convention. Mr. Laughlin left Salem September 18 and returned October 1. Counting out weekends and the state fair holiday just eight working days were used of the 13 spent in making the journey.

The trip east was made on the "Portland Rose" which Mr. Laughlin characterizes as the finest modern train. It has all the services of a hotel; baths, waiters and bus boys who give service par excellence, and on the trip both to and from the east.

On the way east a four hour stop over was made in Chicago and here Mr. Laughlin saw the scene of the American revolution. All these various activities were greatly enjoyed although crowded into a few days that were hot as they could very well be with just enough rain to raise the humidity and make the atmosphere almost impossible to tolerate.

OIL BURNER BEING BUILT, SOLD HERE

Manufacturing and local sales of the newly perfected Capital Oil Burner is now under way here with McLeod & Baumgardner in charge.

According to its developers, the new product is one of the most easily operated and the most efficient of its type on the market. The burner is started by a switch control and the feed of oil to the burner is entirely regulated by a thermostatic control.

The local manufacturers are making the burner in different sizes to meet varying needs of local users. Tanks to accompany the burner are being made at the plant of the Salem Iron works.

The developers of the burner claim it will give far steadier heat and produce it more economically than any other type of furnace.

ZENA, October 4—There is an old saying, "he brought back the bacon" but it is really remarkable how few come in with deer. At least that wasn't the experience of one of our local men, Jesse Walling when he went hunting recently in the region of Klamath Falls. He brought back a fine mule deer weighing 206 pounds and with a wonderful spread of antlers.

John Walling of Amity and his son-in-law, Lloyd Cole, with two Salem men and Jesse Walling composed the party.
