Naval Units Deploy To Crush Rebellion As Government Acts

"Situation Well in Hand" is Report Given out by Brazilian Chiefs; Movement is Already Crushed in Spots

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Units of the Brazilian navy tonight were steaming swiftly northward and southward along the coast to combat the rebellion which broke in southern states last week but now has spread to the regions north of the capital.

Part of the fleet is bound for the lower ports, while one unit is on the way to Pernambuco, far on the eastward tip of the South American continent.

Government spokesmen declared late this afternoon that the administration of President Washington Luis had the revolt well in hand.

They asserted that the insurrectionary movements in the great rubber-producing state of Para, north of the capital, and in Parana, to the south, had been crushed without bloodshed.

Defeat of the government would be a severe blow to them, for it is through this state that the 80,000 troops reported marching northward from Rio Grande do Sul have planned to attack the large coffee metropolises of Sao Paulo.

Besides contending that the entire battle fleet will remain loyal, the government asserts that soldiers of the regular army in the capital district, numbering 10,000, will stand staunchly behind the administration.

Moreover the government has additional resources in the reserves. These men, ranging in age from 21 to 30, were warned two days ago to be ready for duty but have not been used so far.

It is in the financial field, however, that federal officials say they have the final edge on the rebels. The central government has been advanced $19,000,000 by the Bank of Brazil to put down the rebellion, whereas the revolutionaries are said to have no financial resources.

Sao Paulo reported tonight that so far as known there has been little fighting to the southward but large troop movements are taking place as the government distributes soldiers and supplies over the state of Sao Paulo on the Soro Cabana railway.

NATIONALISTS AVER CHINESE REVOLT ENDED

General Feng Driven Across Yellow River, Claim Of Government

Communist-Bandit Force is Still Active; Gunboat Of U. S. Attacked

NANKING, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The nationalist government asserted tonight its troops had driven General Feng Yu-Hsiang and the majority of his 100,000 rebels across the Yellow river in Honan province and the end of six months' rebellion was in sight.

Chengchow, important rebel base, said the unconfirmed nationalist claims, had failed to nationalist forces led by President Chiang Kalshek after weeks of stubborn resistance.

Westward of Chengchow, other nationalist forces were reported to have captured Honanfu, beating back northern alliance rebels who had dug in along the Hainchow-Tungkuang railway.

Viewed as Result Of Chang's Aid

While these government claims could not be confirmed immediately, they were regarded as probably true and a natural denouncement of the collapse recently at Peiping of the northern rebellion when Chang Hsueh-Liang, Manchurian dictator, flung his troops into the city.

Feng Yu-Hsiang, it is believed, will retire with his troops to Shansi province mountains and possibly emerge next spring in another of his rebellious movements.

Meanwhile, communist-bandit forces continue to harass foreign shipping in the middle section of the Yangtze river. The United States gunboat Panama, fired upon today, replied with three inch and machine guns, stopping the outlaw fire.

BOMBING AIRPLANE SHOT DOWN, CLAIM

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Dispatches to La Nacion today said that a federal airplane dropping bombs upon the city of Bello Horizonte, capital of the insurgent state of Minas Gerais, was shot down by the rebels. Its two occupants were taken prisoner.

It was contained in a message sent by the insurgent commander in Bello Horizonte to the commander of the insurgent army in Rio Grande do Sul. It was forwarded to La Nacion, from Porto Alegre, seaport of Rio Grande.

The airplane, a powerful federal army machine, was shot down yesterday. The pilot and observer, Adherbal Oliveira, and Jose Gomes Ribeiro, had dropped two bombs before they were forced down.

The same message signed by Cristiano Machado, "secretary of the interior," said that another federal army plane flying over Bello Horizonte had landed and its aviators had joined the insurgents.

Their names were Casimiro Montenegro and Antonio Lemos Cunha.

RIOT PREVAILS IN BOSTON BUT VETS ORDERLY

Hoodlums Take Advantage Of Legion Convention to Create "Whoopie"

Oregon Delegation in Parade Makes Impression With Caveman Attire

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Disorder ruled in Boston's downtown streets late tonight as mobs of hoodlums wrecked automobiles and burned bon fires in the center of the city's crooked thoroughfares.

Thousands of crates and boxes, left in the wake of today's American Legion parade, were heaped on tons of paper streamers to be set on fire. Automobiles were tipped over or bounced until their springs gave way. Tops of machines were torn or split as boxes, saved from the bonfires and tin cans were thrown in the air. Hoodlums sold and drank liquor openly or gambled on the common.

It was a night such as Boston has not seen since the days of the police strike.

The Legionnaires themselves were orderly. The semi-official police of the Legion found little trouble in keeping their mates in hand.

Veterans' Parade Colorful Event

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Streets that once echoed the tread of revolutionary heroes rang today with the tread of 70,000 American Legionnaires in one of the greatest military spectacles New England has ever seen.

Before a crowd that packed every bit of available street space and peered down from office buildings, the Legionnaires and their auxiliary members marched through flag-draped streets to the tunes of 400 bands in a parade which started in the morning sunlight and ended after dark.

Feet that sloughed through the mud of Flanders, that packed down the snow of Archangel and paced the decks of battleships sounded their cadence under a clear blue sky. From right and left (Turn to page 2, col. 5)

Kings Mountain Battle Site Visited by Hoover

KINGS MOUNTAIN BATTLE FIELD, S. C., Oct. 7.—(AP)—In a mountain valley slope beside the Kings Mountain battle ground, descendants of the small band of patriots who fought there in 1780 today heard President Hoover plead for the preservation of American institutions which had their birth in the revolutionary war.

Citing the growth of foreign systems of government which he said destroy "the driving force of equality," the president said "it is the first duty of those of us who believe in the American system to maintain a knowledge of and a pride in it, not particularly because we need fear those foreign systems but because we have need to sustain ours in purity and strength."

Thousands of persons, forming a panorama up the hillside across from where Mr. Hoover spoke, stood in a bleaching sun to hear him. Hugh microphones carried his voice across the hills.

It was a scene reminiscent of the president's address at Elizabethton, Tenn., during his pre-election campaign in 1928, and once again the man who just 24 hours before had been the stern economist dealing with business problems before the American Federation of Labor in Boston, turned his words to the ideals and intangibles of government.

Only a few miles away last year were torn by communists' stirred strikers. To employees of those mills who grouped in front of him, many of them in overalls, Mr. Hoover warned that "socialism or its violent brother, bolshevism" would destroy the spirit of equality upon which this government is founded.

"In the American system," Mr. Hoover said, "through free and universal education, we train the runners, we strive to give them an equal start, our government is the umpire of its fairness. The winner is he who shows the most conscientious training, the greatest ability, the strongest character. Socialism or its violent brother, bolshevism, would compel all the runners to end the race equally; it would hold the swiftest to the speed of the most backward. Anarchy would provide neither training nor umpire. Despotism or class government picks those who run and also those who win."
