Brazil President Directs Defense
In a prepared interview Ambassador do Amaral declined to minimize or magnify the seriousness of revolutionary activities in his country. He said the government would resort to bloodshed "when bloodshed was inevitable."

Embassy reports were that President Washington Luis is himself directing organization of the federal resources to combat the revolutionaries, whose number has been estimated to 80,000 men. The ambassador said "a general offensive will take place shortly and the government is confident it will be able to restore order as soon as possible in the Brazilian family."

Naval Defection Report Denied
"I seize this opportunity to inform you that the news concerning the defection of a part of the navy is entirely devoid of foundation. I am very positive about this."

Communication facilities into the interior of the immense republic were described as poor, but this was regarded as equally disadvantageous to both sides. Official reports at the embassy told of riots at Para which were dominated by state and federal troops.

Some rioting in Pernambuco was described as inspired by revolting state forces in Paralyba. The dispatches said, however, that Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro, strongholds of the federal government, remained tranquil.

PAPER FIRM WAITS TEST OF LEGALITY

Heinlein said the new 175-foot smokestack was nearly completed. He said he thought this would be of material help in cutting down cinders in the city.

Parts for the complete making-over of the four papermill machines now standing idle, are scheduled to arrive from the east in two weeks. Work of making-over this machine from the roller style of machine into a "Floyd Neer" machine will be carried on by employees in the mill, Heinlein said yesterday.

The revamping of this machine will cost $75,000, it is estimated. When made over the machine can produce glassine paper but before this can be done, additional storage room must be prepared.

The three machines now in use at the mill are running full time, 24 hours daily, with the only shutdown on Sundays when overhaul and repairing is done.

DENY STATEMENTS UPON LUPER ISSUE

Denial was made Tuesday night by Governor A. W. Norblad and Secretary of State Hoss that either had expressed themselves on the question of the criminal liability of Rhea Luper, deposed state engineer, for interest funds he used personally and later returned to the state.

The governor and Hoss both said that the state reclamation had agreed unanimously that Luper had been guilty of misuse of office. The question of intent, as affecting criminal liability, was not the question before the commission and did not receive consideration, they said.

District Attorney Carson repeated Tuesday his former statement that the Luper case might be laid before the grand jury.

He raised the question as to whether or not Luper's interest was taken from state funds or from private funds held during filing on lands, Section 3262 of the Oregon laws makes it a felony for any state official to utilize state funds entrusted to his care to collect a private profit from them. The legal question is whether Luper used state funds or the private moneys of individuals who had applications pending before the engineer.

LIQUOR GUN FIGHT BRINGS ONE DEATH

AUSTIN, Minn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—George Holgate, about 50, was shot to death in a gun fight with officers today after the latter had raided the home of Andy Nelson and seized a small quantity of liquor. Chief of Police Leo Sargent was wounded slightly in the head by a shotgun charge.

Sargent and Deputy Sheriff A. Enochson had entered the house and seized the liquor without resistance, they said, and had gone into the back to search further, when Holgate barred the door and refused to permit them to enter. Enochson tossed a tear gas bomb into the house and in reply, the officers and Holgate opened fire with a shotgun.

The officers returned the fire and then forced the door. They found Holgate dead on the floor with a bullet wound in the chest. Sargent was struck in the head with several shotgun pellets but was not seriously wounded.

Nelson, whose home was raided, was reported to be out of town.

left came the cheers of the crowd and from overhead the navy dirigible Los Angeles and scores of small planes sent down the steady drons of motors.

There were the tunes of 1917; "The Long Long Trail," "Hinky Dinky Parle-Vous," "K-K-K-Katy," and scores of others. Oregon "Cave-men" drew attention.

The most extraordinary delegation hailed from Oregon. The boys were dressed as cave-men, chewed on huge bones and ran wild down the streets.

The parade route carried them past "The Cradle of Liberty," Faneuil hall, over the scene of the famous Boston massacre, past the old statehouse wherein spoke Hancock and the Adamses, along Boston's historic common and over Beacon hill past the present state house.

In front of the statehouse sat a group of white-haired men, their figures bent by the years but extending a welcome and a salute to these vigorous men in the prime of life who filed past. They were the legion that answered the call in '61.

AUTOS HURT MUSIC PADEREWSKI AVERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Radio, according to Ignace Jan Paderewski, who arrived for a concert tour today, hasn't done anything especially to help music but then it hasn't harmed it much either.

But—automobiles—ah, that's something else. "The automobile," he said in his stateroom on the liner Paris, "means speed. And speed is a form of intoxication. Whereas people used to like to spend three or four hours listening to music, now they prefer the intoxication of speed, so they go out in their automobiles instead."

The aged pianist—he is 72 now—arrived for a tour of 75 concerts which will take him all over the country.

Despite the automobile, and with no special thanks to the radio, Paderewski said, America has grown tremendously in a musical way in the past decade. Just now, he believed, it had more appreciation of music than almost any other country in the world.

Damage suit for $50,000 was filed against the Southern Pacific Motor Transport company yesterday by Jenette Cook. The suit grows out of injuries sustained by plaintiff October 13, 1928, when she was a passenger on one of the company's buses, and when she was thrown from the seat of the bus while it was making the turn at the northwest corner of 17th and D streets.
