CHARITY UNION PLANS GAINING

Pledge Cards Being Signed Up at Business Houses and Offices Here

The Community Service plan for making neighborhood relief the business of the entire community is finding ready agreement by the business houses, religious and civic departments, report its sponsors. Nine of these major groups have already answered. They have asked for and received pledge cards and circulars for their entire personnel.

At the Salem police department Chief Minto and J. L. Cutler asked for 25 pledges. At the J. C. Penney store, Loyal A. Warner and L. B. Heiman have received 20 blank pledges and are now signing up the personnel of the store. The World War veterans state aid commission has asked for and received 20 pledges for use by the employees and officers.

The Portland General Electric company has delegated Victor McNamara and Glen Seeley to cover the personnel. Each of these solicitors received 50 pledges. Packing Company Employees Assist—From the Valley Packing company comes pledges of assistance from C. E. Headley and James Barclay to whom jointly have been sent 60 pledges which number they fixed for the membership of that institution.

Four hundred pledges with circulars to correspond were asked for by Dr. Edward Lebold and Thomas Windshar for use in St. Joseph's Catholic church. Miss June Gaines is signing up the eight members of the office of the state board for vocational education.

Service workers urge that all reply promptly to the original communications and save the expense and work of repeated calls or communications.

PREJUDICE DEEMED ADVERTISING BASIS

Advertising as an appeal to prejudices of people, both great and small, and sustaining these prejudices, was interestingly discussed Friday noon by Dean J. R. Jewell of Oregon State college, speaking to the Salem Advertising club. Dean Jewell declared that mankind, contrary to some people's opinions, was not always a "reasoning animal" but was usually motivated in actions by instinct or habits.

The task of the advertising man, therefore, becomes one of realizing the basis of human conduct and appealing to it, said the dean. Certain businesses have labored for years, said the speaker, to break down public prejudice against their type of merchandising and once having done this, have found it necessary constantly to reiterate their selling arguments, to keep trade coming to them.

One group of stores found that women will walk half a block for a small saving; men will buy when the article is right at hand but not otherwise, said the dean. "Likewise we know that women forget bad treatment at the hands of a clerk more quickly than men; a man may suffer one injustice from a store but he taboos trading there in the future."

Miss Alene Phillips, representing the Business & Professional Women's club of Salem, asked Ad club members to attend a movie sponsored by that organization next week. Net proceeds go to a fund for the entertainment of the state convention of business women here next year.

DEFICIENCY IS PROVIDED FOR

$53,472.18 Found Necessary for State Departments Pending Session

Deficiency appropriations aggregating $53,472.18, for the support of various state departments and boards during the remainder of the current biennium, were authorized at a special meeting of the state emergency board held here Friday.

The largest deficiency appropriation of $30,000 was requested in connection with the operation of the Oregon state penitentiary. Henry Myers, superintendent, explained that the deficit in the maintenance and operating accounts was due to increased population in the institution and the erection of several new buildings which had added to the overhead costs.

It was brought out during the discussion of the penitentiary appropriation that there are now housed in the institution approximately 25 aliens, who are subject to deportation. Many other prisoners were said to have had relatives filed against them in other states where they are wanted for offenses more serious than those committed in Oregon. Secretary of State Hoss said that by deporting these aliens, as a matter of policy, and transferring prisoners against whom retainers have been filed in other states, the taxpayers of Oregon would save approximately $48,000 annually.

Relieves Should Deport Aliens—Governor Norblad declared that he had investigated the alien population at the prison, and was of the opinion that some action should be taken by the next legislature to make it possible to deport alien convicts rather than have them supported by the taxpayers of this state.

The governor suggested the appointment of a commission to study the status of the alien prisoners in the Oregon penitentiary with a view of having them deported. He said such a commission could act without public criticism, and accomplish a substantial saving for the state.

Failure of the state game commission to comply with an agreement entered into with the state forester at the time his budget for the current biennium was prepared two years ago, made it necessary for the emergency board to approve a deficiency appropriation of $7242.52 for the state forestry board.

The agreement provided that the state game commission would use a number of deputy state foresters and sawyers the salaries of these officials out of the state game funds. Lynn Cronemiller, state forester, said it developed that the state game commission used some of the deputy foresters, but that it was necessary to pay the salaries of these men out of the forestry board funds.

Two deficiency appropriations were authorized for the state engineer. One of these appropriations is in the amount of $4961 to carry on the work of the state engineering department. The other appropriation was in the amount of $3240 for a survey of the Jordan Valley irrigation district in connection with the reorganization program.

An appropriation of $2000 requested by the secretary of state to cover the costs of returning fugitives from justice was approved by the emergency board. Governor Norblad, in commenting on this appropriation, declared that in many cases the sheriffs had been extravagant and had sent two officers to return one fugitive. The governor said he had refused to approve many requests for the return of fugitives where non-support cases and other minor offenses were involved.

The emergency board also approved deficiency appropriations of $4506.91 for the state printing board and $1521.75 for the state board of horticulture. Deficiency appropriations previously authorized by the state emergency board during the current biennium aggregated $270,000.

STORK BRINGS BIG POPULATION GAIN

Marion county made a substantial gain in population during September, according to vital statistics filed with the county health officer there being 80 births and 53 deaths. Forty-five of the births were male and 13 were born to Salem mothers. Of the deaths, 32 were male. Twelve persons died from apoplexy, and 11 from heart disease, these leading the list.

There were but 34 cases of communicable disease in the month, segregated as follows: Chickenpox, five; diphtheria, three; measles and mumps, two each; whooping cough and venereal disease, six each; pneumonia, four; amebiasis, three; erysipelas, Vincent's angina and septic sore throat, one each.

Cruelty Charge Included in Divorce Filing

Because he treated her cruelly and inhumanly to extent of undermining her physical health and causing a nervous breakdown, Pearl McVey yesterday filed in circuit court suit for divorce from Roger McVey. They were married in Vancouver in June, 1924, and have two children of whom she seeks custody. She also wants $40 monthly support money and her maiden name, Pearl Bradford.

Complaint says defendant's actions toward her have been those of passive indifference, that he has been sullen and morose, and that farther he has held threat of suicide over her.

Statesman "Pulling Power" After all it's the Pulling Power of advertising that counts. That is where advertising in The Statesman demonstrates its value. It carries genuine "Horse Power" when it comes to attracting buyers. Here is just one instance. Bishop's ran one of their usual store ads in The Statesman. That particular ad sold them a nice bill of goods to a Statesman reader in Northern Idaho. Unusual, yes; because we do not ordinarily expect store sales to carry so far. But local Pulling Power is daily being proven to Statesman advertisers. Statesman ads carry confidence and prestige. They are read by thousands of potential buyers.
