

S. A. R. CONDUCT PROGRAM HERE

Yorktown Battle and Other Historic Events are Recalled

Under the auspices of the Sons of the American Revolution a program, particularly commemorative of the battle of Yorktown, was presented last night at the hall of representatives in the state house.

The Yale university moving pictures of the battle of Yorktown were shown, and H. H. Haynes of Portland related much of little known history regarding the battle. One of his ancestors by the name of Haynes owned a plantation near the town.

Mr. Haynes emphasized the importance of the battle in ending the war and the careful plans drawn by Washington in evading Clinton in New York to move his troops south.

Famous Leaders
Former Senator B. F. Mulkey of Portland, gave an eloquent eulogy of Col. Edward D. Baker, Civil War senator from Oregon, who died leading a regiment in the battle of Ball's Bluff, October 21, 1861.

He describes him as the greatest orator the Pacific coast ever produced, and ranking among the ablest in the nation. As a member of congress from Illinois he pronounced the oration at the services in honor of President Taylor.

In California he gave the funeral oration for Senator Broderick, who died in a duel, which took place because he was a Douglas rather than a southern democrat. Baker came to Oregon in 1850 to campaign for Abraham Lincoln. James W. Nesmith, War Democrat, was elected governor, and Col. Baker, who had been in the state only four months, was elected United States senator.

Mr. Mulkey told of Baker's great oration in reply to the farewell speech of Senator Broderick in Kentucky. Baker's grave in California is virtually neglected and Mulkey desires that his remains be brought to Oregon to rest in the soil of the state capitol grounds.

Prior to the meeting at the Argos Hotel restaurant, attended by Salem, Portland, Albany and Forest Grove members of the S. A. R., judges of the supreme court and other invited guests.

SALEM MAN SAVES SELF; TWO DROWN

Blundell said he did not know the exact position of the car when he escaped but he does remember breaking the glass in the back left window. Cockrill, sitting with Roberson in front, lowered the window on his side and made his escape. Roberson got out of the car and came to the surface of the pond but sank before he could get to the water's edge, about 40 feet from the perpendicular line above the spot where the car rested. He was heavily clothed with an overcoat and high shoes. Blundell said neither he nor Cockrill had on overcoats.

Clear did not escape from the submerged car, his body being found across the division between the front and back seats. Evidently he had attempted to escape through the window where Blundell plunged into the water.

Car Submerged in 18 Feet of Water
The car was submerged in about 18 feet of water, Blundell said. The top of the auto was approximately 13 feet under the surface of the pond.

Blundell said he swam slowly to the shore, taking care not to use up his strength. He was assisted when Cockrill appeared and both men went to get help to rescue the other men. Roberson's body was found by the grapple on his first trial while Clear's body was recovered when the car's front lights and tail light still shining, was pulled from the bottom of the pond.

Both Clear and Roberson resided in Portland and their bodies were brought there early Monday morning.

Blundell was born in Salem and since 1916 has resided on South 12th street. In 1928, Mr. and Mrs. Blundell and their two children removed to Lewiston where Blundell had charge of the plant of the Oregon Packing company. Early this fall they returned to Salem to live.

MEIER AND BAILEY TIE IN STRAW VOTE

Meier and Bailey were given a tie ballot for governor in a straw vote conducted last night by members of the Salem Realty Board at the board's first fall meeting. Metchan was a close second.

The realtors planned the winter's program at the session last night. In addition to the regular monthly meetings, the members voted to take the national association's course in advertising.

By OLIVE M. DOAK

As a rule I am not given to much enthusiasm over northern pictures of the gold rush days. Most of them fall so far short of what one has been led to picture through well written stories of that country of romance and grim struggle that over done film copy is irritating. "The Spoilers," the very nearly classic story of those years nearly classic story written by Rex Beach from real and fanciful knowledge of the country about which he wrote, has been directed by Edwin Carewe in such manner as to retain the virility and reality of the book.

"The Spoilers" as it appears at Bligh's Capitol is produced with sound of course; the scenes are realistically photographed; the acting is good both in the detail of minor parts and the leads which are taken by Gary Cooper, Kay Johnson, and Betty Compton. Harry Green, William Boys, Slim Summerville and James Kirkwood make up the supporting cast. Just to see Harry Green alone is worth sitting through the show.

Gary Cooper does as good work in "The Spoilers" as he did in "The Texan," which according to many is the best acting he has ever done.

One must be chary in attempting to describe art. George Arliss in "Old English," now playing at the Elsinore, is the genuine art only to be appreciated when seen.

An old English gentleman is Arliss in this play of Galsworthy's, accustomed to independence of action and valuing that above all else save Phyllis, daughter of his deceased illegitimate son, offspring of the only real love he ever knew.

The play covers the brief period at the last of his life. Arliss plays the old gentleman as he certainly would have been. He must be assisted from his chair because of stiff joints and weakness. Once on his feet he very likely will push the benefactor who helped him up, just to show his resentment of age which deprives him of his independence.

He has always lived very much as he liked and he continues to do so at his own peril. When financial circumstances bear down and ruin is in the offing he still plays the dominate spirit and causes fate to miss out in dealing him a final unkind blow.

Arliss in the character of Sylvanus Heythrop, an old English gentleman, is a friend worth taking with one through life. The supporting cast give excellent background to the work of Arliss. Boyd as the granddaughter, is outstandingly attractive in her work. The remainder of the cast, quite new to the average screen fan, is very much in character all the way through the play.

Officers, informed that two girls had been seen to enter the Mill street building, went to the place about 10:30 Sunday night. Beza and a man named Ernest Dutton answered the door. The two girls fled to an adjoining bedroom, one of them partly disrobed, the officers state.

Considerable drinking had been going on, it is said, but none of the group was intoxicated. A half quart of beer, a small quantity of wine and a like amount of alcohol was seized.

No charge was filed against Dutton.

MORALS CHARGE IS FACED BY MEXICAN

Charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors Rafael Beza, a Mexican section hand living in a Southern Pacific house at 124 1/2 Mill street, was being held Monday for action of the district attorney.

Chieftain Claims Right to Burn up Subjects' Homes

LONDON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The right of an African chief to burn the houses of revolting subjects was studied today by the privy council, English tribunal which hears appeals from the dominion courts.

This strange appeal came from Bechuanaland where Chief Tsekedi Khama of the Bamangwato tribe applied the torch to the dwellings of those who rose against his rule.

custody of James Lewis, warden of the prison and would remain in the institution until Mr. Lewis retires to private life. Fong then would be required to report to Lewis monthly.

The board also voted to recommend commutation of sentence imposed on Arlin Lester Adams of Multnomah county to 10 years. Adams was received at the penitentiary October 12, 1924, to serve a term of 15 years for assault and robbery while armed with a dangerous weapon.

Under the proposed commutation order Adams would be released from the prison in July, 1931.

Three members of the board voted for a conditional pardon for Leonard T. Boyd, who is serving a term of 12 years for assault and robbery while armed with a dangerous weapon in Multnomah county. Boyd was received at the penitentiary April 28, 1929. Two members of the board voted for commutation of Boyd's sentence.

Of the 15 cases considered by the board four were continued and five were turned down. The recommendations of the pardon board were received at the executive department Monday. Governor Norblad refused to comment as to any action he may take in the several recommendations.

Glenn Carson, charged with forgery, entered plea of guilty and Saturday, November 8, at 9 a. m. was set as time for sentence.

Stanley Sucholas, arrested for larceny in a dwelling house, was arraigned, entered plea of guilty, and sentenced to the penitentiary for a year.

Albert A. Wood pleaded not guilty to charge of forgery and his case was set for trial Wednesday, November 12, at 9 o'clock.

In the state's case against Ellsworth McKinnis and James Hewes, charged with larceny, pleas will be entered Saturday, October 25 at 9 o'clock.

Amos Admits Forgery Charge
Time for sentence in the case of state against Lullie Howard was postponed until the December term of court upon motion of the district attorney.

Merrill Amos entered plea of guilty following arraignment on a forgery charge. Time for imposition of sentence was continued for 60 days and Amos was allowed to go on his own recognizance.

Judge Hill signed divorce decree in the suit of Elizabeth R. Vickers against Thomas L. Vickers. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment. They were married in June, 1929.

WHEN children are weak and run-down, they are easy prey to colds or children's diseases. So it is never wise to neglect those weakening and depressing symptoms, such as bad breath, coated tongue, fretfulness, feverishness, biliousness, lack of energy and appetite, etc.

Nine times out of ten these things point to one trouble—constipation. Mothers all around you are coming right out in public to tell how their children are being relieved of this trouble by California Fig Syrup.

Mr. H. H. Wilson, 920 East 18th Ave., Denver, Colorado, says: "My mother used California Fig Syrup with me so I knew what to give Mary June when I saw by her bad breath and coated tongue that she was bilious."

She has been more than rewarded for taking Fig Syrup. It made her a well, happy girl promptly. When she complains now I give her a little Fig Syrup and she's all right."

The revolutionary advances about Florianopolis have become so hot that the defending federals have withdrawn from the mainland and taken new defense on the island holding the city proper.

Rebel troops under General Waldrovo Lima and Ptolemeo Assis Brasil yesterday morning occupied Estreito, on the mainland opposite Florianopolis and shut off the city's electric light by capturing the power supply lines. An effort will be made to mine the Santa Catharina channel, connecting Florianopolis and the mainland so as to bottle up federal warships.

That Espirito Santo, seaboard state lying between two loyal states—Bahia to the north and Rio De Janeiro to the south—has been captured with its capital, Victoria, seized.
