Schibata was received at the penitentiary May 2, 1921, and has served approximately 10 years. Under the terms of the conditional pardon, Schibata must refrain from using intoxicating liquors during the remainder of his life, during the term of his pardon.

A pardon for Schibata was recommended by the trial judge, district attorney, the 12 members of the jury who found him guilty, and Mrs. A. B. Todd of Hillsboro, and Martha Randall of Portland, who previously served as members of the state parole board. The state parole board voted unanimously for Schibata's release.

Records show that Schibata killed a companion while the two were engaged in a gambling game. Both men were intoxicated at the time.

Murray was received at the penitentiary March 1, 1928.

He also must refrain from indulging in intoxicating liquors during the remainder of his life. The five members of the state parole board voted in favor of granting Murray a pardon. Brazil Provisional Government Quells Counter Revolution

Stubborn Fighting Between Barricades Brings

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 27.—(AP)—For two hours today forces of the provisional government battled against a regiment of revolting military police and communists who sought to fan disaffection in the resulting excitement.

When it was over, with the government in control, more than 100 casualties had been tallied.

For a time the outbreak threatened to become a menace to the military junta which on Friday ousted President Washington Luis and set up a provisional government. In the meantime awaiting the arrival of Getulio Vargas, rebel generalissimo, to take control.

The military police regiment started the conflict and took over the central police station, firing indiscriminately. Firemen and city police at first were called to combat the revolters, their ranks quickly augmented by armed citizens.

TRUCK OCCUPANTS MISS SURE DEATH

RICKEY, Oct. 27.—(Special)—Two men miraculously escaped death Monday morning when a truck belonging to S. Mathania of near Silver Creek dropped off the edge of a culvert and down an embankment into a pile of ten feet.

The truck was heavily loaded with wood, bound for the Salem paper mill. Near the foot of the hill above Pudding creek the truck slid off the pavement on the left side of the road. The driver couldn't get it back and it rolled along the edge of the pavement until it reached the culvert.

The left front wheel hit the edge of the culvert and bounced off. A few inches farther it would have toppled into the creek which would have meant certain death to both occupants. But it balanced on the raised edge of the culvert and went down the embankment, through a woven wire fence and into the field on the farm of Mrs. W. J. Culver. It stopped still upright, but with only three sticks of wood remaining of the load.

The machine was damaged in various ways but when the owner arrived he drove it away under its own power. One of the men suffered slight scratches.

In Last Decade; men
Were Head Hunters

TOKYO, Oct. 28.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—A serious uprising among savage aborigines of the Taihu district of Central Formosa, southernmost of the Japanese island chain, was reported in an official dispatch to the Tokyo war office today.

The savages were reported to have attacked and destroyed Japanese police stations, killing the defenders. A company of Japanese infantry and some aircraft was dispatched to the affected district.

The commander of the Formosa garrison reported the revolt to the war office.

He stated 1500 savages revolted Monday morning in the village of Musha, 35 miles southeast of Taihu. Police stations were wiped out and the policemen presumably killed. The savages captured about 100 rifles, then advanced upon other nearby villages.

The uprising was described as the most serious in the last decade. These aborigines were head hunters until Japanese subjugation.

Even a Goat Can't Climb Those Hills

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 27.—(AP)—High above the Columbia river a lone white goat tonight moved restlessly back and forth across a precipitous hillside.

In Portland the Oregon humane society was discussing plans for its rescue. The goat's predicament was called to the society's attention by Captain Arthur Cocks, of the Royal Mail steamer Loch Kaprine. Captain Cocks said Captain Arthur Riggs, Columbia river pilot, had told him the goat had been on the hillside for at least three months. It apparently had climbed in search of forage. Before it returned a road crew cut beneath it destroying the trail and making descent impossible. Ascent also was impossible.

Every day since the river pilots said, the goat has watched the ships pass to the sea. Meanwhile the hillside has become barren.

Tomorrow the goat will be rescued—or shot.

MISSING BANKER MYSTERY DEEPENS

GALVA, Ill., Oct. 27.—(AP)—The mystery surrounding the sudden disappearance Saturday of Earl Yocum, Galva bank president, was intensified today by reports of a second special delivery letter mailed to Mr. Yocum from nearby Kewanee, Ill.

County authorities, believing the bank president might have been the victim of an extortion ring in Chicago, had conducted an extensive search for Yocum but suddenly dropped the case after the missing banker's wife declined to take them into her confidence. Any future moves, they said, were "up to Mrs. Yocum."

Yocum, president of banks at Galva and Aurelia, Iowa, was believed kidnapped by two men who accosted him in front of his home Saturday night and the receipt of two special delivery letters by his wife strengthened the theory that he was being held for ransom.

Other than revealing that one of the letters was in her husband's handwriting and that he was "all right" Mrs. Yocum refused to discuss the case, even with county authorities.

DAIRYMEN TO FACE TESTING PROBLEM

Seek to Iron out Dispute Between Veterinarians
and County Court

Members of the Salem Dairymen's Cooperative association met tonight at the chamber of commerce to try to work out a peace pact between the Marion county court and the veterinarians of the county.

In order that these milk producers may receive a grade of B or better on their product, their herds must be tuberculin tested at least once a year. J. E. Blinkhorn, city sanitary inspector, recently notified all milk producers to comply with this provision.

The difficulty which the milk men will try to iron out at tonight's meeting is that the county court has decided to require the tuberculin test to be made by a veterinarian.

POWER VOTE BILL SIGNED BY MAYOR

Signature by Mayor T. A. Livesley of the council's resolution submitting the question of Salem's proposed filling on Marion lake and North Santiam water and power rights, assured the question being on the ballot. City Recorder Paulsen said Monday that Mayor Livesley had signed the resolution.

The vote will be advisory in character, the city already having made the first steps toward filling. City Attorney Trindle sought the general vote, holding that the people's favorable expression on the measure, would be of great assistance in obtaining the water and power rights from the state reclamation commission.

While the Northwest Power company has rights to the lake and river water for power purposes, the city of Salem seeks to claim priority on the basis that a municipal claim is more to the interests of the state's welfare than any private claim.

Jobs, not Bread, Proper Goal Says Director Wood; Situation not as bad as in 1921; East Hardest hit

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Programs to combat unemployment already undertaken by 15 large cities were held up today as models for the rest of the country by Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the president's emergency committee.

He urged other cities to study the programs already worked out by New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Toledo, Salt Lake City, Flint, Mich.; St. Paul, Minn.; Seattle, Milwaukee and Hartford, Conn., in the belief that they might find in one of them the plan that would best meet local conditions.

The outstanding feature of the programs he outlined was the principle that the unemployed man should be given a job instead of merely a loaf of bread.

Until the time every man competent to work has a job there must be relief, he said, but the real problem is to find the job. He suggested it ought to be a job that really needs to be done, not one that is artificially created.

Col. Woods is not pessimistic about the outlook. He believes conditions are better now, taking the country as a whole, than they were in 1921 when he headed President Harding's employment commission. But in spots, conditions are worse, he believes. He considers the middle western lake states, New York and Pennsylvania to be the hardest hit.

He said figures furnished him in Washington showed an estimated 3,500,000 persons out of work.

CREW IS TRAPPED IN MINE

One Killed, Fate of 28 not Known; Explosion Blocks
Mouth of Shaft at Coal
Plant in Oklahoma

Trained Rescue Crews are On Hand but Debris to Prevent Entry for Five or Six Hours

MCLESTER, Okla., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Twenty-eight men were trapped and one instantly killed tonight by a violent explosion near the mouth of the Wheatley No. 4 coal mine of the Samples Coal company in North McAlester. The dead man was William Donley.

The mouth of the mine, a slope pit, was blocked by debris from the blast and rescue crews were baffled in their first attempts to reach the imprisoned men, whose fate was unknown.

The cause of the explosion was a mystery. It's detonation was heard in McAlester, two miles from the scene.

The entrapped men were members of a crew that went on duty at 7 o'clock tonight.

Trained rescue crews of miners gathered at the mine soon after the explosion, but had not been able to enter the wrecked shaft late tonight.

A group of American Legion members who were called from a relief committee meeting by news of the explosion, took charge outside the mine and held back the anxious crowd of relatives and friends.

Workers estimated it would be five or six hours before they could clear away the wreckage in the shaft sufficiently to enter the mine.

Naval Competition Ends As London Treaty Filed

(By The Associated Press)
The end of competition between nations in naval construction was foreseen yesterday by President Hoover, Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and Premier Hamaguchi of Japan in a world wide broadcast marking the beginning of effectiveness of the London naval treaty.

The three spoke from the capitals of the signatory powers shortly after the instruments of ratification had been deposited in London.

Asserting that the treaty, which for the first time binds three major naval powers to limitation of all types of fighting vessels, marked a step forward in international cordiality, the three spokesmen of their countries expressed hope France and Italy, which left the London conference after they were unable to agree upon a tonnage ratio, soon would join in signing the pact.

"Relinquishment of competitive building among the great three naval powers with its consequent contributions to the security of the world is the greatest significance of this treaty," President Hoover said.

"If the limitations now established can be maintained we may look forward with assurance to the fact that future conferences will find it easier to bring about further steps in reduction. Never again must a race in naval armaments be allowed to develop. The treaty was described by the president as 'fair to all and dangerous to none' and substituting mutual trust, goodwill and confidence for suspicion and competition. It is my most earnest hope," Prime Minister MacDonald said, "that the negotiations which have recently been proceeding between France and Italy to enable them to come into this part of the treaty which limits naval strength may before long reach a happy issue."
