EMPLOYMENT PLAN OF KENNEL LIKED

Former Salem man Offers Program to Seattle Committee

A specific plan to relieve unemployment by providing work for needy people, prepared by Earl Kennel, former Salem man now residing in Seattle, has met with considerable favor from the chamber of commerce committee in that city and Kennel, here yesterday, said there was likelihood that the project would be undertaken in that city. Kennel's plan, in short, is to establish a government employment bureau through which to clear workers and jobs. The work will be obtained by transferring three per cent of the gross earnings of the individual workers to the bureau, each employee making the contribution receiving for the three per cent work tickets valued at the amount of his gift.

These tickets, presented to the employment bureau, will be exchanged for work. Employees Asked To Take Up Move — Kennel is asking employers to take up the move, setting aside the three per cent for three to six months from employees' salaries, with the provision that every employee get back as much work from people as the employment bureau can contribute in his monthly percentage to the employment service.

Kennel feels that in a few months' operation of this plan, a vast amount of work would be supplied and at the same time no worker would feel he was the subject of a dole or of a charity system. Various odd jobs throughout the city would be provided through the system and at the same time the load of unemployment conditions would be equally borne by citizens rather than forced upon a limited number of large givers.

Bits For Breakfast

For his gallantry this strippling of a boy was given a cadetship to West Point. President Roosevelt pinned onto his cadet-gray the medal of honor, that expressed the high regard and appreciation of all the people. And last August this hero of another day retired from active service—the service that he loved and the service that loved him.

Under the heading "Fast Work," Sergeant Fitz Gerald also hands to the Bits man the following interesting scrap of army news: "Recent demonstrations of the U. S. army-air service prove the feasibility of landing ground troops with machine guns. Brooks field, Texas, six machine gunners jumped from planes at a 3000 foot level. A Martin bomber plane released a machine gun. In three minutes, the crew, with the machine gun, were safely on the ground, and firing."

Such demonstrations as this show that "the next war," meaning the next general conflict, when or if it ever comes, will be fought on lines that will render clear warfare, up to the present date, of little use. It will be so utterly different that it will require the scrapping of nearly all that is now generally known about the lethal and bloody art of killing men by wholesale and retail.

It will be fought from the air. Then, again, it shall be said, "The stars in their courses fought against Sisera," but they will be mechanical stars, riding in their true courses bearing up to the minute instruments of death—bearing even armies to be dropped out of the skies ready for deadly action.

And bearing bombs containing gases that, released, will be capable of slaying all the peoples of great cities. Against such "stars in their courses" fighting "against Sisera," and rules of warfare coming down from Caesar and Napoleon and Grant, and even Foch, will be as futile, almost, as the stink-pots of ancient Chinese armies against such forces as fought in the fields of France under Pershing.

The time to fight the "future war" is before it begins; around the council table; in the world court; in the school rooms and on the recreation grounds of the people. Else the words of General Sherman, that "as hell, uttered of the comparatively little skirmishes in the fratricidal struggle in which he was an outstanding actor, will sound like the awfulness of the terrible and cataclysmic horror that the future holds in Democles' sword-like suspense over the tribes and nations of this planet.

CHERRY GROWERS TO HEAR REPORT

Meeting Will Feature Talk On Crisis Created by Eastern Movement

Reports from the meeting of cherry growers which was held in The Dalles on Monday will be given at the meeting of the Willamette valley growers which will be held in the chamber of commerce rooms this afternoon.

At the meeting in The Dalles a tri-state association including Oregon, Washington and Idaho was formed.

Ray F. Kelly of The Dalles was named chairman and W. S. Nelson of The Dalles, secretary.

Immediately following the formation of the Associated Cherry Growers, it was decided to enlist the aid of the state colleges of Oregon and Washington and the Agricultural branch of the University of Idaho in an emergency program to collect cost data for the tariff investigators.

This co-operation must be secured at once, as the investigator is due in Oregon about December 2. Representatives of the various fruit districts were not fully advised yesterday as to whether only one meeting will be held, or investigations made in Salem, Portland and The Dalles, as previously indicated. Some felt that only the Salem meeting would be held.

An air of co-operation and friendliness characterized yesterday's meeting, which lasted from the luncheon hour until after 5 o'clock. Men representing the major cherry districts of the northwest agreed that the growers must have protection, especially in view of the heavy tonnage of Royal Anne cherries coming on from new plantings.

Growers said that the present tonnage was in good demand for canning, but that some method must be found to take care of the surplus crop becoming apparent now and due to double within the next few years. One development was that The Dalles growers, through the quality of their crop, receive more net for their canning cherries than any other northwest district.

Another Strike Looms in Spain

CASTELLON, Spain, Nov. 21. —(AP)—A general strike was declared here Thursday in sympathy with the strikers in Catalonia.

It is too horrible to imagine as coming. The one way to avoid it is to teach the coming generations the awfulness and the futility of it; to impress all mankind with the suicidal sinfulness of it. Not enough is it to teach it to our own present and coming generations of youth. It must be taught to the children of all the other nations. Outside of universal economic stability, universal purpose of the settlement of all disputes through peaceful means challenges the highest statesmanship of the present and the future.

Volunteers serving in the various booths today will be: Ladd and Bush bank, Mrs. May Water and Mrs. Madeline Binegar of the American Legion auxiliary; First National bank, Mrs. John Elliott and Mrs. W. CHARITY RECORDS EXCHANGE IN USE

Duplication to be Avoided if Agencies Cooperate, Williams Explains

Salem's confidential exchange for clearing charity cases is now an actual fact. Ensign Earl Williams, a member of the Community Service executive committee, has just completed arranging details in connection with the installation of this confidential exchange and makes the announcement that the exchange is now in operation in the Salvation Army office.

The exchange deals only with identifying information, just what is needed to identify the client among a number having the same or a similar name. Case histories or records of relief given have no place in the exchange files, this information being recorded by the agency dealing with the case.

Non-Effective Unless Observed The sole purpose of the exchange is to make known to any inquiring relief agency if the case has already been contacted by another organization so that the giving of relief may not be duplicated.

Ensign Williams points out that its success will depend entirely upon the use made of it by charity giving agencies. "The exchange cannot prevent duplication; it can only advise any inquiring person if the case ined about has been registered with the exchange by another agency. Unless agencies engaging in charity work all cooperate in registering their cases with the exchange" Williams stated "duplication will not be eliminated." "It is not intended, however that transient men shall be registered with the exchange. This would only jam the files in a very short time with hundreds of useless names and would serve no useful purpose. The 'work-test' Williams continued "is the most satisfactory method of investigating these men."
