

WHITMAN GETS GRIP ON TITLE

Smart Football Counts for 12 to 0 Victory Over Willamette Eleven

Whitman, and also Ferguson after he entered the game in the second half, made numerous brilliant runs, and Lang never failed, out of some eight tries, to make first down when it was a matter of four yards or less. Jones was the outstanding cog in Willamette's forward defensive line as Lang was in the backfield. On one occasion Lang met Sutphin, Whitman fullback, right on the scrimmage line and crumpled him to temporary helplessness. Jones several times set Whitman back for substantial losses.

Figures on yardage indicate that Whitman was not two touchdowns better than Willamette. The Bearcats chalked up eight first downs to Whitman's five from scrimmage though the Missionaries led, 165 yards to 237, on total running play gains. However, Willamette threw Whitman for losses totaling 45 yards as against 19.

First downs from passes were evenly divided, three each, but Whitman's total yardage was 89 and Willamette's 64 from this type of play. Whitman attempted 13 passes, completing five; Willamette tried 18 and completed eight. Seven Willamette passes were intercepted and one of Whitman's.

Erickson outplayed Appligan in punt returns almost two to one, and also made slightly more yards from scrimmage; 79 to 77. Whitman lost 30 yards on penalties, Willamette 20.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE GAME

Throughout the fall "Spec" Keene had told those "on the know" that he lacked a good passer and receiver. Keene's hearers often discounted his statement, knowing the Willamette coach's propensity to tell bear stories.

Keene's predictions were revealed as the truth Saturday. Occasionally a pass would be completed but just as often the ball settled in the embrace of a defensive Missionary player. The ball was inaccurately tossed or else it was a floater. Keene lacked a man like he had last year in French or Orr who could spot the receiver and throw the ball, bullet-like, to him.

Post-mortems on football setle nothing except give writers a few extra paragraphs. It was apparent from the start that Whitman was primed to redeem herself for last year while Wil-

THEATRE WEDDING DRAWS BIG CROWD

Soft lights, a waiting multitude that even took up all the standing room, quiet impressive music, and the scene was laid for the marriage ceremony of Miss Aldine Kaaser and Wendell Scott Saturday night at 8 o'clock at the Elsinore.

The Elsinore stage was given a formal background with the use of silver curtains. Here on the stage to the strains of a softly pitched wedding march played by the Elsinore orchestra the bridal party took its place. It was very colorful. The bride, as beautiful as a bride should be, in a floor-length eggshell satin gown, a long veil falling from a cap that encircled her head, stood proudly beside a slim youth in stately black. Surrounding them in a circle on the stage were Fanchon and Marco girls in lovely frocks of pastel shades.

Rev. S. Darlow Johnson read the quiet ceremony. Verne McShane, manager of the Elsinore, gave the bride in marriage. The vows plighted, the circle opened, the bride and groom turned and walked down the improvised steps into the front of the theatre, followed by the bridal party. At the door of the foyer Mr. and Mrs. Scott hurried across its width to the sound of tumultuous applause into the office of Mr. McIntyre. From here they were whisked away for a brief honeymoon, before returning to make their home in Salem.

Mrs. Scott has been a member of the Elsinore staff and will continue to be for some time. Mr. Scott is employed with the Oregon Pulp and Paper company.

lametis was fighting a most subtle second enemy—his name is Overconfidence.

The crowd, far short of the advertised 10,000, was the largest turnout Salem ever gave a Willamette contest. It paved the way for larger crowds in the future. Policing of the sidelines and the main field was far above that of other games.

Probably the most appreciated feature of the game from the fans' standpoint was the public address system with Broadcaster Austin handling the mike for the Standard Oil company. Each play was accurately described. The announcer was a distinct addition to the contest and can be expected for contests in the future.

Borleske, before the game, indicated he had a better team than a year ago and one in which he had considerable confidence. Borleske is not given, after 16 years of coaching at Whitman, to being overly optimistic. He said that the Missionary showing against Pacific university at Portland a few weeks ago was far from representative of Blue and White class. The game proved it.

While gate receipts were by no means phenomenal they far exceeded those for the Whitman game two year ago. Then they made a total of $280, little more than a third of the guarantee Willamette had to give Whitman. This year's sale will run well beyond the $1000 mark and will mean at least a break even on the game instead of a deficit as faced in former games. Salem is far from "football" minded as yet but more good games—where competition is close and keen—will make her so in coming years.

The Willamette schedule this year has brought too few class one teams to Salem. Next year for Armistice Day, for example, the Bearcats should tackle either the leading team in the conference or play some gate-drawer like Gonsaga. That is, she should if the boys can produce a better team in '31 than this year. For some hard-to-explain reason, the Bearcats this year have never been in a smooth-running, fighting squad of a year ago. Next year . . .
