PRESENT GIVEN SCHOOL'S HEAD

Doney Honored by Students On eve of Trip East; Address Made

The presentation of a desk set of fountain pens to President Carl Doney was the main feature of the chapel service of Willamette university, Wednesday.

The gift was presented by Warren McInnis, president of the student body, and a number of trustees.

Dr. Doney will leave on his first vacation in over eight years, Saturday. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Doney. The vacation was awarded by the board of trustees as a reward for Dr. Doney's untiring work the past few years on the million dollar endowment campaign.

The main point of Dr. Doney's last chapel address before his vacation was in reference to the lives of men. He likened the life of a man to the life of a bird, which goes from the nest to the world to find its own way.

Life is better with advancing age, pointed out the president. As men get older they find the warmth of life as portrayed by the eternal warmth of the deeper interior of the world.

A paper was read in Chapel Tuesday and Wednesday for those who wish to go on the excursion to Portland for the Willamette vs. Pacific football game. Sixty-five persons have signed their intention of going, Saturday.

Another phase of overcrowding, here Steffan pointed out that Tuesday five more prisoners were admitted which swelled the total number in the penitentiary to 274, is the moral situation.

Regardless of how good an executive personnel may be in charge of a prison, just so long as there are two or more convicts in one cell there will be a low moral plane for the inmates. No situation is more desperate in penal institutions in so far as corrective values are concerned as the housing of two prisoners in one cell. Let the state of Oregon wake up and if necessary extend the buildings and thus eliminate the grave consequences of overcrowding and give Superintendent Meyers and his associates an even break for the greatest amount of good from the administration, was the word of warning thrown out by this man who spoke with many years of prison experience behind him.

Rev. Steffan also was enthusiastic concerning the gracious manner in which he had been received by the governor's office and by Warden Meyers and his associates.

Ex-Burglar, Gangster, Now Minister, Loud in Praise of Prison Here

By OLIVE DOAK
"Under present conditions the Oregon penitentiary has made heaven out of hell," was the positive statement made by Rev. Vincent J. Steffan, ex-gangster and ex-burglar having in his past record terms of service in both San Quentin and Folsom, a 4 day visit to the Oregon penitentiary Tuesday. He is now field secretary for the Steffan Prison Association, Inc.

Rev. Steffan visited the Oregon prison eight years ago and his remarks were a comparison of his two visits. "The present administration of humane methods completely refute the condemnatory words which have been spoken through the press in the immediate past," he said.

"The discipline is so humanly carried out here that it is swayed with gloves," and continued Rev. Steffan, "to discipline the criminal is a necessity for it is one of the truly grave and dire needs in the life of every criminal for he has never properly disciplined himself."

Overcrowding Dangerous
"But the Oregon people should realize the danger of overcrowding. This condition together with inadequate facilities with which to operate is a false economy which becomes very expensive. The institution at Canyon City, here in Colorado is costing that state over $200,000 to readjust," remarked Steffan.

"The people of Oregon should realize the death traps that now exist in the Oregon prison—to be a necessity for it is one of the truly grave and dire needs in the life of every criminal for he has never properly disciplined himself."

Converted in San Quentin
Rev. Steffan is an unusually interesting man from various viewpoints. He has never gone a day in his life and 16 years ago was in San Quentin at this time and became converted to the Christian religion. "I took the Bible for my text and taught myself." Now he speaks smoothly and uses a vocabulary beyond the average individual.

When he was 11 years old he began the use of drugs and kept it up until his reformation. How did he begin his criminal career? He was born in Hungary, had no home environment, no family care, came to the United States with his brother when 10 years old and in Philadelphia he became a waif, wharf rat and then a criminal.

How does he account for the development of criminals? He took from his pocket three flags, and performed a very clever slight of hand or as he taught me to say, "legerdemain." "My answer," said he, "Short-sightedness and an improper conception of values."

The idea of the Steffan Prison association is to extend it so that instead of the two centers which it now has in Philadelphia and in St. Louis, there will be one for every large prison. It will be the

SALE STARTS WITH SEALS ON BOTTLES

Dairies Cooperate by use Of Liberal Supply; T. B. is Fought

This morning most of the bottles of milk delivered in Salem will bear a 1930 tuberculosis Christmas seal, heralding the opening of the seal sale campaign Friday morning, the day following Thanksgiving.

Dairies that have cooperated with the seal sale committee by purchasing enough seals to put one on each bottle of milk sent out include: Waldo Hills Guernsey dairy, Lien's Jersey dairy, Fosbury Farm, Inc., and Pleasant Home dairy. From 50 to 75 per cent of the milk bottled at Maple dairies, Capital dairies and O. K. dairies this morning will bear the tuberculosis seal. The Salem Sanitary dairy and Curly's dairy have purchased enough stamps to supply a lesser portion of their bottles.

Drug Stores Cooperate
Drug stores of the city will also pass the seal idea on to their customers, for every prescription that goes out of the store the opening day of the campaign will bear a seal, and the pharmacists will continue this as long as the campaign lasts.

Cooperation of the dairies and drug stores in purchase of the seals and distribution to the public is an intensive personal study of each inmate and in this manner attempt to bring about a readjustment, for according to Rev. Steffan, nearly every prisoner is either "abnormal or subnormal, a very few are normal and all are sick."
