

HOLIDAY QUIET FOR PRESIDENT

Hoover Lays Cornerstone For new Church; Chilling Weather Prevails

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—Official Washington spent a quiet Thanksgiving at home today, while a chilling wind swept through the streets.

A turkey dinner at the White House, attended by a few friends, brought the day to a close for President Hoover, after touching up his annual message to congress and going to church.

Mrs. Hoover and Allen, the latter home from Harvard for the holidays, however, had a box at the annual navy relief ball tonight, which attracted many of Washington's dignitaries and social leaders.

Rising early, President Hoover enjoyed his daily medicine ball game on the south lawn of the White House despite the sub-freezing temperature. Then he went to his study and looked over his congressional message, which is virtually complete.

At 11 o'clock, the president, accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, Allen, Mrs. Edgar Rickard of New York and her daughter, Peggy, and Mrs. Stark McMullen of Palo Alto, Cal., attended the Central Presbyterian church and sat in Woodrow Wilson's pew. The pastor, Rev. Dr. James H. Taylor, included in his sermon the president's Thanksgiving proclamation.

After the services, Mr. Hoover laid the cornerstone for a new Sunday school building. A biting north wind was blowing and before the ceremony was over the president plainly showed he was chilled. He used the same towel with which President Wilson had laid the cornerstone for the church in 1913.

Mr. Rickard and his wife and daughter, old friends of the Hoover's, were guests at the White House tonight for the turkey and cranberry sauce to pumpkin pie.

Vice-President Curtis had his two small grandchildren, Ann and Curtis George, at his Thanksgiving party presided over by the vice-president's sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann.

REECE TAKES NEW MOVE ON SHOALS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—(AP)—A new path into the Muscle Shoals controversy has been blazed by Representative Reece of Tennessee as he will attempt to lead the senate and house conferees to an agreement at the forthcoming meeting of the conference committee.

The republican who has led in the arguments for private operation today made known he had decided upon certain modifications to the house bill which he would submit to the conferees.

The house bill for private operation was deadlocked in conference when the members of the two houses sought to reconcile it with the Norris plan for government operation.

Reece did not make known the specific terms of his contemplated alterations but maintained his stand against government operation.

"It is important," Reece said, "the conference committee make every effort at this session to adjust the disagreement between the senate and house on Muscle Shoals in a manner that will accomplish legislation."

"As a member of the committee and anxious that the question be disposed of, I have discussed lately with other members the provisions of certain modifications to be submitted to the conference committee when it meets."

"It is our opinion that the changes suggested will appeal to members of congress who earnestly desire the matter disposed of."

"They will constitute a test of the purposes of certain individuals."
