CORN MARKET SHOWS STRENGTH CATTLE PRICES UP; HOGS LOWERED

Cereals All Shooting Upward, Says Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 29—(AP)—Sudden strength developed in the corn market today, and gave all cereals an upturn in price at the last. Widespread unsettled weather likely to impede the movement of corn to market did much to underlie the gain. Stocks of corn available for distribution were unusually meager. Furthermore, buyers were prompt to act on talk which went around that a bushel setback in corn values as compared with the week's high point appeared to call for quick readjustment.

Closing quotations on corn were firm at the day's topmost level. The market closed yesterday's finish. Wheat closed irregular 1/4 off to 1/2 up, oats 1/4 to 7-8c advance.
