

ZENA SCHOOL HAS PROGRAM

Children Present Thanksgiving Entertainment for Parents and Friends

ZENA, Nov. 29.—The Thanksgiving program given by the Zena school children under the direction of their teacher, Miss Lillian Reynolds of Salem, was well received by a large audience from Salem and nearby districts.

The school house was prettily decorated with Thanksgiving symbols and school work of the different grades.

Marguerite Johnson announced the program which was opened by three small first grade boys, Dale Worthington, Raymond Stephens and Chester Merrick, who gave a group of three recitations entitled, "Welcome," the next number was a pantomime, "The Witch's Daughter," depicting scenes laid in the time of our Pilgrim fathers.

The platform was decorated with brilliant autumn vines, glossy Oregon grape and fir boughs.

Play Presented

The first scene showed quaintly garbed boys and girls husking corn on the open floor of Essek Hardin's barn. They were laughing at Mabel Martin who sat apart in shame because her mother had been hung for a witch. Essek Hardin was supposed to scolding them for their treatment of Mabel. In the second scene Essek Hardin goes to the home of Mabel Martin and shakes her hand in friendship and the third and last scene shows the others being friendly with the witch's daughter.

The group were all furnished actors each taking his part with ability. The cast included Alice Crawford as Mabel Martin; Max Newlinney, Essek Hardin, and June Worthington, Vera Newlinney, Lillian Kennedy, Sybil Charpillos, Roy Newlinney, Evelyn Charpillos, Isabel Kennedy and Paul Worthington taking the other parts.

Ruth Shepard read the story aloud; a reading "A Thankful Girl" by Jessie Worthington; a reading "The Witch's Daughter" by Joe Shepard; recitation, "My Tummy's got a pain," Helen Hunt; "Thanksgiving song by upper grade pupils; Thanksgiving drill by a group of primary children, Edward Yarner, Emmett Johnson, Gladys Newlinney and Paul Worthington; a reading, "Tommyboy's Thanksgiving" by Evelyn Charpillos; drill, "The Spellers," by 12 primary and intermediate grade girls and boys; a comic reading, "Thanksgiving Turkey" by the black face comedian, Max Newlinney.

A one act play "The Rose and the Thorn" was exceptionally fine with four eighth grade pupils forming the cast. The characters were Mr. and Mrs. John Thorn, taken by Marguerite Johnson and Donald Scott; Peggy, sister of Mrs. Thorn, and her Aunt Jane were Ruth Shepard and Walter Horton respectively. The plot has to do with a sister of the wife living at the home and the husband receding everything she did and the manner in which she did it. Aunt Jane coming to visit the young couple acts as peacemaker.

GRAND ISLAND VOTES BUDGET

Special Road tax and Budget Accepted; School Question Unsettled

GRAND ISLAND, Nov. 29.—A meeting of all legal voters in the community was held Saturday evening in the school building.

The special road meeting was the first business to be transacted. Roy E. Will, district road supervisor, explained the need of levying a special road tax. A four mill special tax was unanimously voted for the improving of the roads in the lower part of the district.

The annual school budget meeting then followed with Roy E. Will, chairman of the school board, presiding. Charles A. Ferguson, clerk, read and explained the budget as submitted. After all inquiries were answered a unanimous vote was cast to accept the budget as it stood.

The last was a club meeting with Adelbert Smith, president, in charge. A full report of the committee appointed to interview Dayton and Amity in connection with the union high school proposition was given. This question is still being debated.

Hubbard Pupils Give Program

HUBBARD, Nov. 29.—A Thanksgiving program given Wednesday afternoon by the pupils of the third and fourth grades of the Hubbard school under the supervision of their teacher, Miss Francis Hatch, featured the play, "Our Pilgrim Fathers," the three scenes of which gave a vivid picture of the Pilgrims' religious persecutions in England, first scene; of the children's adoption of Holland customs, second scene, and of the first Thanksgiving dinner in America, third scene. The boys and girls dressed in Indian costume and the girls in white colonial caps and aprons, added color to the event.

Other members on the program were: recitation, "Thanksgiving Pies" by Shirley Grims, and "Thanksgiving" by Phyllis Brown; a song, "Pilgrim Maidens" by eight little girls in costumes and a reading, "A Thanksgiving Fable" by Dorothy Moore.

Mothers present were Mrs. Henry Croissant, Mrs. Gus Croissant, Mrs. Frank Grims, Mrs. Robert Brown, Mrs. Claud Moomah, Mrs. Ivan Stewart, Mrs. Waldo F.

When the route was established one man refused to put up a mail box. He thought there was a catch somewhere and could not believe that his mail would be delivered free of charge. Later he was convinced that the system was on the square and put up a box.

For two years the rural carriers received no holidays. Then they were given two holidays a year. Now they have five holidays.

Christmas was the last holiday granted and the patrons on route five were as greatly pleased as the carrier. It did not seem fair that "Jim" who paid the extra postage due on letters and waited till one "remembered" to pay him, hunted up lost letters and did many other accommodating things for his patrons, should be delivering mail while every one was enjoying a good Christmas dinner.

When the route was established it covered 22 miles and was delivered to between 60 and 70 families.

Now the route covers 34 miles and mail is delivered to about 180 families besides the 100 families on Twelfth street in Salem that were recently given city delivery.

B. E. Gesner is the only patron who has received mail continuously since the route was established.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Humphreys lived here when the route was established but later spent several years at Shaw. They are again living here.

The only other families that lived here when the route was established that are now represented on the route are D. A. Harris, J. D. Horner and Jacob Caplinger families.
