of the Old Testament style of preachers. He wasn't very strong on turning the other cheek. If a man hit him on one cheek he would think he was struck by an earthquake or a cyclone before he got time to hit father on the other cheek. Father believed the Bible, particularly where it said smite the Philistines, and he figured the Philistines was a misprint for the Mormons and he believed it was his religious duty to smite them. He believed they should be exterminated root and

"He was a great hand to practice when he preached so he helped exterminate quite a considerable few of them. The Mormons had burned the houses and barns of some of father's folks. One of father's relatives was alone with her baby when the Mormons came and she crept out of the window in her nightgown and had to walk through the snow four miles to a neighbor's while the Mormons burned her house and barn. That didn't make father feel any too friendly to the Mormons, so they run them out of Missouri and it wasn't long till they moved on and settled on the shores of the Great Salt Lake 1000 miles from anybody.

"In the spring of 1843 the first party of emigrants started from Missouri to the Willamette valley in the Oregon country. Next spring a lot more met at Capless Landing, near Weston, Missouri, and organized to cross the plains. The public service commission Friday extended from January 1 to April 1, 1931, the effective date of the order involving freight rates on grains and grain products in the state of Oregon. A similar order was issued recently by the interstate commerce commission affecting interstate shipments.

The extension of time was granted at the request of the railroads which submitted evidence tending to show that they would not be able to prepare and file the new tariffs by January 1. The order of the public service commission reduces material-

JOBS, NOT MACHINE WORK, IS HELD NEED

Rostein Thinks City, State Must Take Hand to get Laborers Busy

Jobs, not charity, are what the workingmen want, according to Ed Rostein, Salem business man; and the way to give them jobs is to use public funds planned for public works so that they go to the laborer and not to machinery. Rostein, who has been giving considerable study to the situation, recommends the employment of men at day labor for six hours a day, for road cosntruction or sew-

Instead of letting jobs by contract where big machines will be employed, why not do the work by day labor, giving all the unem-ployed a chance at a job, is the query raised by Rostein. He cited the case of building the storm sewer up Church street, which was done by a big shovel with comparatively few men. If picks and shovels were used the job might be more expensive but more of the money would go to labor.

Money Flow to Start "This is a machine age, and industries will operate by machinery," remarked Rostein in discussing the matter yesterday. But the state and city ought to take steps which will give emloyment to men displaced by machinery. Instead of letting contracts for road construction, the state could supervise the work, employing men in big numbers. The result would soon be felt in the flow of money back in the channels of trade.

"It is not enough to urge the people to buy now, they must have jobs with wages coimng in "They organized like a regular so they have something to spend. The workingman will spend when he has the money. This employment would quickly result in Simmons was made colonel, and stimulus to business and would four captains were elected-R. be far better than raising charity money for relief."

Prospective city work in sewer building this winter was mention-$2000 with the understanding power digger. The people all approved of it because they realized it meant jobs to men who otherwise might be standing aside looking on.

Mr. Rostein's idea of a six-hour day on public work is that then
