FIRE DESTROYS FALLS CITY HOME

FALLS CITY, Jan. 1.—Yesterday morning at 2:30 o'clock the fire alarm aroused the people of Falls City. It was found that the former home of Mr. Lundy on Dayton street was on fire. The fire had gained such headway that when the fire department arrived nothing could be done to save the building, but the nearby homes were saved from destruction by the concentrated efforts of the department. The building, which was owned by Mr. Kroons of Junction City, was unoccupied, the former tenants having vacated 10 days ago. The first notice of the fire was a heavy explosion which shook the homes in the surrounding blocks, after which the building burst out in flames. This is the second fire of mysterious origin occurring in Falls City during the last month.

BOND PRICES FIND NEW LOW PRICE TAG

By DONALD G. BOLLES NEW YORK (AP)—The bond market tumbled but failed to bloom in 1930. It gave some promise of flowering in the fertile investment field created by sharp reversals of speculators in stocks, but was a drooping, willing thing at the close—suffering like all markets from low levels. In a general way there was a good market for gilt-edged obligations for about eight months of the year, and a poor one for the remainder of the 12 months. Both institutions and the investing public contributed to a selling climax in the final quarter, which expressed all groups except the very stable United States governments to depths unexplored since 1925. Commercial banks seldom have turned so strongly to bonds as they did in 1930. Weekly reporting banks of the federal reserve system, constituting about 40 per cent of the nation's bank resources, bought more than a billion dollars' worth of bonds in 1930. But the private investor evinced no more than passing interest in the second and third grade bonds that are dependent on his support—and they followed stocks downward, while the investor bought much the same type of securities acquired by institutions.

THIS PRINTER IS STAR GAZER

Robert A. Hill, 74, is a veteran San Francisco printer, one of the old school who still use a small hand press, but his life for the past 24 years, outside of his business has centered around the study of astrology. Every customer who enters his shop is told of his past and of his future, and the aged printer is generally right. Hill predicts among other things, that the present economic depression will end after next July, and he further attributes the religious conflict in Russia to the positions of certain planets with regard to other heavenly bodies. Photo shows Robert A. Hill.

WANTS NAME OFF A woman appeared before the county court yesterday requesting that she be allowed to withdraw her name from the remonstrance petition filed by Turner residents against renewal of the license of the Ball Brothers dance hall there. She told the court she did not know what she was signing when the petition was handed her to sign.

WILD FOWL SUFFER IN COLD WEATHER

ZENIA, Jan. 1.—The cold weather we are having is extremely hard on wild fowls of all kind here. Glimmer pheasants usually the shyest of birds come to barnyards in search of food. Coots of from 24 to 30 California quail are frequently seen near habitations. These beautiful birds are protected by law and are multiplying rapidly. They are becoming so tame that it is nothing uncommon to see them eating with the chickens in the chicken run. The daily snow bird whose coming promises snowy weather is here in multitudes. Saucy jay birds, one of the smartest of our feathered friends is out foraging for food. He can be seen almost any day hunting under the walnut trees for his favorite nuts. Robins and many other smaller birds are seen in the apple orchards where they can find a few apples.
