SALEFORD STAR IN FAST GAME

Bulldogs are Under Dogs; Come up Finally With Last Period Rally

WOODBURN, Jan. 16.—The Salem high school basketball team came through impressively in its first county league game, defeating Woodburn high 32 to 17 here tonight.

Salem's rangy guard, was "the whole show," scoring 11 points in addition to playing a strong defensive and floor game. Salem's supremacy was not in doubt from the start, the red and black veterans running up a lead of 10 to 3 in the first period and increasing it to 19 to 7 at half time.

Woodburn, however, made it a fast game from the start and in the final quarter, scored more points than Salem, indicating that a little more confidence on the part of the home boys would have made it a close battle. Woodburn played better basketball than in its recent game at Milwaukie, and seems destined to improve greatly before the season ends. It will play Silverton tomorrow night.

Reed Borrows Woods' Own Medicine to Win Bout at Armory; Tackle is Decisive

Robin Reed used a Sonnenberg, Wood's own most vicious tactic to take the odd fall from Curly Woods in an exciting wrestling match at the armory last night.

Reed started applying his chiropractor's headlock from the first, and Curly was guarded for this hold, and avoided most of them. Woods was especially strong with his Sonnenbergs, and with them and one terrific body scissors, bested Reed for the first 10 minutes of wrestling.

After 10 minutes had passed Woods held a slight edge, though holds were made and broken with such rapidity that the unexpected was always happening. The headlocks with body slams started working for Reed and he kept using them, wearing the Walla Walla boy down rapidly and finishing with a well executed slam, gaining the first fall in 2 1/2 minutes. The second period was marked by Woods being on top most of the time and using clever leg holds and head scissors. Woods took the second fall in 10 minutes.

LOVE LAUGHS AT PRISON BARS

Cupid has once more demonstrated that nothing can hold him back—not even from bars. When Robert J. Michaels (above) of Pasadena, Calif., was recently sentenced to from 10 to ten years in Kansas penitentiary, he and his girl friend, Frankie Burleigh, of Kansas City, decided that it was time to marry. With a local attorney and an under-sheriff as witnesses, the knot was tied. Then the groom went back to his cell.

utes, using a flying head scissors. The third round brought out every conceivable kind of punishment, with face and body slapping, rabbit punches and solid Sonnenbergs. Referee Matheny got his arm mixed in with the mess while attempting to remove the grapplers from the ropes. Woods was groggy and did not realize that it was the referee that he was holding, but recognized the policeman who helped untangle the mess.

Reed took the final fall by butting Woods out of the ring with a Sonnenberg and kicking his feet out from under him. Woods went through the ropes and his head snapped down and struck the press table, which was about four inches lower than the ring, and lay there for the count of 20, unable to get up. It was a minute or two before he was able to move away from there.

In the one-hour special Sammy Vangler of Portland and Pete Axman of Walla Walla wrestled to a draw, rivaling the main event for speed and aggressiveness, but with neither able to gain a fall. Axman held a slight edge throughout and by the end of the hour had Sammy groggy and resting outside the ropes frequently. Axman also experienced discomforts, as Sammy was not slouch himself at giving punishment. Pete wore Sammy down by a unique bucking headlock. Plenty of jujitsu gave the crowd its money's worth. One of Sammy's original holds was a somewhat, using Axman's head instead of his arm for leverage.

Following the decision Vangler made a slap at Axman with his bathrobe and the match was resumed, but the infallible police officer separated the two.

Cauliflower Aspirants of W.U. Tangle

Wrestling, an innovation at Willamette, got off to a good start this week with 22 men competing in an interclass tournament.

Six weights were run off with the freshmen matmen galloping off with the honors, winning in three of the weights. The seniors were second with two weights and the juniors topped the other class, leaving the sophomores out of the running.

In the 125-pound class Sanders, Martin and Hulbert competed with Sanders winning, giving one score to the juniors. Warner, King, Blanchard and Warner entered the 135-pound class with Halloway winning for the seniors. Hilliway, McKenzie and Foster entered the 145-pound class, which was taken for the freshmen by McKenzie.

The seniors won in the 155-pound class, with French winning over R. Miller, Armstrong, Hershoff, Jenks, Chipler, West and Yabouff in the class. Smith and E. Philpott wrestled in the 175-pound class, with Smith winning and adding to the score of the freshmen. Drager and Kelly mixed in the heavy weight division, with Drager winning for the freshmen.

Much enthusiasm was manifest in the matches and interclass wrestling will be started in the near future. The fellows who had had previous experience on the mat did not compete in the interclass tournament.

Sam Steinbock To Play Third Round Tonight

The third round of "Sammy" Steinbock's 50-game singles bowling contest with J. W. Blaney of Eugene is to be played off on the Portland recreation alleys tonight, starting at 10:30 p.m. Friends and fans are watching the local star with much interest, for the outcome is said to determine who is the best money bowler in the state.

In the second of the 10-game rounds here last Sunday night, Steinbock climbed out of a tie and scored to finish 154 pins up on his seasoned adversary.

BAER WINS IN FIASCO SCRAP

Old Heeney Doing Well up To Flop From Ring; he Didn't Hear Count

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Amid a wild mixup Max Baer, young California heavyweight, was credited with knocking out Tom Heeney in the third round tonight when the veteran New Zealander, pushed from the ring, failed to rise after returning before Referee Jack Dempsey's count of ten sounded.

The fight by rounds:
Round one:
Far from showing any tripartite power of the curly headed young giant Heeney rushed Baer into a corner and trounced him soundly about the head with both hands and a right at the onslaught, boxed his way to the center of the ring, but Tom, grizzled and squat was upon him again with a storm of body blows. Baer landed two rights to the body when the timekeeper's head but took a fierce right on the chin as the bell rang.

Round two:
The curly headed Baer boxed and danced disdainfully, smiling condescendingly on the old fellow. Tom mugged him up considerably with vicious charging attack to the head and body. Baer played a tattoo of heavy rights on Tom's side. They mixed at close quarters on even terms up to the bell.

Round three:
Heeney hurt the youngster with a right to the body that sent Baer into a crouch. Heeney was knocked from the ring in a wrestling exchange on the ropes. He fell in the press row and came back unhurt. He halted to hear the timekeeper's count of ten however, and was still on his hands and one knee when the final stroke was tolled.

Pioneer Days Are Recalled

The special feature of the Sunday night service at the Christian church was a talk by Ben Pearson, who is an old pioneer of the Willamette valley. He spoke of the varied experiences and the mode of living of the early settlers.

Their homes were humble log houses, lighted with pine knots and tallow dips and later by home-made candles. Getting mail was a rare treat. Friendly Indians were numbered among their scattered neighbors, but it was never known when the savages would invade the valley. Many a time the women at home would have to barricade against intruders while their men were away. If it had not been for the bravery of the pioneer settlers early history would read far differently; all honor to those who made the early settlements possible.

Mr. Pearson was thanked for his interesting reminiscences.

Artificial Duck Pond is New Way of Preserving Favorite Outdoor Sport

TURNER, Jan. 16.—Artificially made duck ponds are quite common through four miles south of Turner on what is known as "the prairie."

One pond is leased by Portland hunters, a care taker usually lives nearby and during the past summer he succeeded in raising a hundred fine ducks, for the winter sport. Other ponds are controlled by Salem sportsmen.

Several mornings of the week before daylight it is a common sight to see a number of lighted autos, headed south and later to hear the frequent crack of guns.

The pond used by employees of one of the state institutions at Salem, was much improved by those interested last summer. Yet another pond is used by local people.

Husky Quint Beats Idaho Team, 41-22

SEATTLE, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The University of Washington continued its drive for its fourth consecutive northern division, Pacific Coast conference basketball championship here tonight when the Huskies swamped the Idaho Vandals 41 to 22. It was Washington's third victory in as many games.

Displaying a flashy, smooth-working offense, the Huskies ran away with the game from the start, rolling up a 19-to-7 score in the first 14 minutes of the initial period.

Idaho was unable to break through the Washington man-for-man defense and counted only one field goal in that time, but copped two more on a free throw in the last six minutes to send the score to 19-12 at half time. Drums and sign up right away—pronto, where as a bout with Stribling wouldn't do at all, we can't for the life of us see. Well, we can see how it might be, but it wouldn't be a bit nice to say.

Certainly Stribling, now recognized in some parts of the world as the champion, is as likely as Sharkey to be shot as Sharkey.

So now it'll be interesting to see what the high and mighty commission does to punish all and sundry who have committed lese majeste.

At that, we didn't like the tying of a camera contract to the one between Schmeling and Stribling. We liked Primo's looks, turned a deaf ear to a lot of the "frayup" talk that followed him around—still we can't see where's a prospect for the title yet. No sir.

LEGGE'S GRAIN EMBARGO IS UP

Burtress Introducing Bill to Keep out Wheat, Feed and Butter for Time

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Chairman Legge's approval of a temporary embargo on wheat, feed grains and butter to "protect the farmer against the present world-wide depression" will be laid before the house tomorrow by Representative Burtress.

The North Dakota republican, who introduced such a proposal on the suggestion of Legge, made public today a letter in which the farm board chairman approved his bill "as affording perhaps the quickest method of dealing with the situation."

"However, it is immaterial to us just how this result is arrived at, but present conditions certainly justify action on the part of congress to meet the present emergency," Legge wrote. "I therefore hope that before the present congress adjourns it will find it possible to pass such legislation as will protect the American producers during this period of distress."

Burtress' bill includes wheat, corn, barley, oats, bran, mixed feeds, screenings and all products thereof, butter and butter substitutes. Legge said just as strong an argument can be made for an embargo on feed grains, including beans, as on wheat.

"So far there has been no improvement in world prices," Legge said, adding that "many students of the situation seem to think that there is a probability that they will go still lower."

Burtress argued that relief cannot be expected from the flexible tariff provisions because "it takes from two to four years," and there "is no assurance that the facts disclosed would warrant increases rather than decreases."

Under the Burtress bill the embargo would last until March of 1932. The North Dakotan said it had the approval of the farm reorganization and national dairy union, both of which suggested the inclusion of foreign vegetable oils.

WHEAT PRICES AT LIVERPOOL FRIGHT

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Statisticians in seeking comparative prices for today's record low values of wheat announced they had to go back 350 years to the times of Queen Elizabeth to find a period when prices were so low in Liverpool as at present.

A drop in that leading European wheat mart today took prices close to the minimum reached there two weeks ago and helped to lower quotations in American markets, though the latter are higher than in other countries owing to the stabilization corporation's activities.

All 1930 options were softer today owing to selling by government sponsored agencies, who have held last year's crop some 15 cents above prices quoted for the July option of the 1931 harvest. Other bearing factors such as Argentine and Australian export sales, were inconsequential in comparison.

Iowa's bill for operating its public school system has increased 500 per cent since 1900, according to the state superintendent.

COUGARS BEAT OREGON 32-30

Wash. State in Lead Most Of way but Footboots Rally Fiercely

EUGENE, Ore., Jan. 16.—(AP)—The invading Washington State Cougars defeated the University of Oregon, 32 to 30, in a northern division Pacific Coast conference basketball game here tonight. It was Oregon's third consecutive defeat. Except for the first few minutes of the game when Oregon held a two-point lead, 10 to 8, the Cougars were nearly always on top. The score, however, was tied six times during the game.

Oregon made a desperate effort to knit the count in the dying moments of the game. Kermit Stevens, guard, sent the ball through the hoop from mid-floor but before any more goals could be counted the final gun sounded. The game, which was as rugged and numerous under-the-basket shots were missed. The Cougars missed the most of that type of shots.

Gordon, sophomore Cougar center, towered high above Eberhart, Oregon's pivot man, and invariably got the tip off. The teams met here again Saturday night.
