> Hyde & company expect to send about 3,000,000 plants into California on this year's orders, of about enough for 300 acres of first planting. One Japanese will put in 35 acres and use 350,000 plants. The planting is made the first year at the rate of 10,000 plants to the acre. The plants are staggered on the ridges and the second year 20,000 more plants are put in between the first stage gered planting or 30,000 plants to the acre in all. These have a life of three years and the rotation is started again.

> "We were glad to have this first hand inspection of our plantings for plants by the growers and directors," said Pear-mine. "There has been much talk about the possibility of the yellows coming from here into California, inspection has been made as severely rigid on both ends as could possibly be done. and threats have been made of an instant quarantine the minute yellows were found in Oregon plants, if they were found. But all the inspection has failed to reveal a trace of the disease, and I believe this last personal inspection will quiet any scare which may have developed. The association representatives up here certainly were convinced that our plantings are clean throughout."

Pages of Oregon History Turned Back by Recent Discoveries Around Scio

Pages of Scio history were turned back more than half a century time used small wire instead of twine, old-timers recalled in connection with the tell-tale spool that was found near Scio a few born. days ago. The wire for binding purposes was not an entire success, although it was used for several seasons.

Roe Phillips stated in this connection, in discussing the prob-able period of time the spool of wire had lain in the ground, that the binder was used on the farm when he was a small boy. The spool unearthed there recently had deteriorated until the flanges at either end of the spool had rusted away. The wire was rusted to-gether until it was difficult at first glance to discern that there were small strands on the spool. The old relic is at the office of Riley Shelton, next door to the postoftice, and has been viewed by many interested persons.

Vicing with the corroded old wire spool is an Indian bowl that was placed in the forks of an oak tree on the Perry place near this city something like 50 years ago, according to the best information obtainable. In the course of the half century that has elapsed since the old stone vessel was lodged in the tree, which was then little more than a sapling, the branches had united above and around the bowl, completely encasing it in green wood to the thickness of several inches, it was narrated in Scio.

The bowl was the type used by Indians in the early days for mixing and grinding purposes. It had withstood the 50 years without breaking, according to informa- Ladd parlors, Tuesday afternoon home. No bones were broken, tion left with Mr. Shelton, best recollection of those discussing the matter, Ed Grimes was that they must look to their own plantings for the cause and not to the plants which come from Oregon.

One Japanese grower who was here stated that recently he sold $7500 gross from one acre of time was accorded to the plants which come from the farm near this city which was handled 55 years age by Wash Phillips, father of Roe Phillips of West Scio.
