NEW PLAN FOR FLAX ADVISED

Auditors Frown on Present System; Processing at Cost Suggested

That the present system of conducting the state flax industry has not been a success but on the other hand a financial failure, was indicated in a report prepared recently by George Black & company, auditors, at the request of Governor Meier, for consideration of the state board of control. The report was filed with the board of control at a meeting held Wednesday.

"Whether the financial failure be due to nature or the business depression is a matter of opinion," read the report, "but it cannot be denied that no effort has been made to stem the tide. We think the fallacious policies and management of those responsible constitute a greater part of the cause than otherwise.

"It is candid, the state is simply gambling and involving itself in a highly speculative venture in which it has been experimenting without a cost chart of any venture and not knowing whether it is drifting. The cost of manufacturing, as also the selling price, has been conjectured and must be dismissed as unreliable. Need for Change in Plan is Seen "In the course of our investigation we gather that the management claims it has been sufficiently demonstrated that the soil of Oregon is well adapted to the growing of flax, and the time has arrived for the grower to market his product. Existing statutes penalize the state board of control to involve the state to an unlimited amount, and we doubt the wisdom of permitting them to remain as at the present.

"Assuming that there is no conflict with the federal statute, it might be practical to process the growers' flax at cost and return the converted product to him, or his representative (meaning thereby any cooperative organization designated) or hold for his or its account on a basis of pro rata participation in the entire crop, issuing to him or it, evidence in some form, negotiable or otherwise, of the extent of his participation in kind, giving power to his representative to distribute pro rata after deducting and paying over to the state indebtedness due from the grower.

"By this method the grower would receive full market value for his product and the state thereby would be relieved of the gambling risk without impairing the benefits to be derived from employment of prisoners. Moreover, it is not impractical for growers to process their own crop by installation of the necessary appliances.

"The seriousness of the situation is such that the subject is worthy of reconsideration by the board of control, to the end that contracts already entered into for the 1931 crop be cancelled or modified, especially since seed has not yet been sown. Failure to take cognizance of the present deplorable condition may well result in injunction or other costly court proceedings.

Continuation as At Present Unwise
"In any event, it is evident the industry should not be continued as at present, involving the state in unlimited and uncertain liability for the benefit of a few growers to the detriment of the many taxpayers.

"Analogous to this whole theory would be the state going into the business of processing hops at the penitentiary and contracting to buy the crop at an arbitrary figure, regardless of the market price two years hence. Wouldn't you think that fallacious?"

"This enterprise was started in 1915 with an appropriation of $50,000, continuing through the intervening years with various appropriations and loans until 1923 when there was created a continuing revolving fund of $100,000, together with all moneys at that time in the institutional betterment fund, and authorizing loans to buy the crop at an arbitrary price. $50,000 additional, subsequently additional funds were made available.

"Of the general loans made from the several fund none have been repaid excepting $19,553.58, although made with the express understanding that the same should be returned thereto from the receipts of sales from flax products. Interest of $27,272.37, as shown on the last statement, has accrued on these loans, no part of which has been paid.

Loans Mounting Toward Million
"The total amount appropriated and loaned from the general fund, including $245,000 by the state emergency board during the last biennium, is $1,128,270, and the amount to be realized from assets of the industry, applicable to repayment of this sum, is unknown, especially in view of their present status, expense in reducing same to actual cash, and the uncertainty of market conditions.

"Some benefit may have accrued to the state from improvements around the penitentiary grounds, such as roads and fences, but generally speaking the amount which will be realized, applicable on the appropriations and loans by the general fund, will be negligible compared with the total investment."

In connection with consideration of the report by the board of control a delegation of flax growers appeared and presented arguments why the state flax industry should be continued.

George Berg of Harlow, told the board of control that flax is now one of the major crops in the Willamette valley and had proved profitable to the growers from a financial standpoint. He said the low prices now prevailing for flax products probably was due to the business depression, and not to any fault of the industry.

Other persons who spoke in behalf of continuing the flax industry were W. J. Anderson of Aurora, Herman Etzel and C. H. Lawrence of Macksburg, U. Eilers of Wilsonville, George Miller of St. Paul and Fred Schwab of Mount Angel.

Problem is Taken Under Adversement
The board of control took the arguments under advisement. A bill to purchase the so-called Steiner-Jarman building, which has been under lease by the state for three years, has been prepared by the state board of control and will be submitted to the legislature. The property has been appraised at $86,000. It would be purchased with funds of the state industrial accident commission on which the state would pay 4 1/2 per cent interest.

Another bill being prepared by the board of control will provide

Legislative Sidelights

Oregon's 36th Legislative Session Brings Interesting Personages to Salem

NEWSPAPER editors and publishers find they can't stay away from the sessions. Yesterday Jack Bindings, editor of the Telephone Register at McMinnville was here to visit his county's delegation while William M. Tugman, managing editor of the Eugene Register Guard, talked over Lane county needs with his contingent in both houses.

Karl Stelvet of Jefferson with his sister, Mrs. Connel who lives near Portland, were visitors at the statehouse Wednesday. Both worked hard for their brother, Fred, when he made his successful race for senator four years ago. All are natives of Marion county.

With a formidable looking case to support him, Sam Brown was back in the senate yesterday. He says he is suffering from fatigue of elastics. It was suggested to him that lumbago was easier to spell but the Marion county senator insisted he knew sciatica when he felt it.

A few years ago the sea-captain voice of William Hare of Hillsboro used to ring out in the senate. Now Hare is more than busy as a lawyer and leaves legislative matters to other residents of Washington county. However the bug bit him yesterday.

That relatives of delinquents in the state training school for boys and state industrial school for girls, shall pay a reasonable amount monthly for their maintenance. This bill has received the endorsement of Governor Meier.

A request of W. H. Baillie, superintendent of the state training school for boys, for permission to erect a central dining room was taken under advisement by the board. Baillie said such an improvement would save the institution $500 monthly.

Henry Meyers, superintendent of the state penitentiary, reported a population of 911 in the institution. He said this was an increase of 47 per cent in the population at the prison since April, 1927. Dr. R. E. Lee Steiner, superintendent of the state hospital, also reported a marked increase in population. There are now 2072 patients in the state hospital. He reported that his appropriation for the current two years is based on a population of 2115 instead of 2084.

Additional appropriations sufficient to warrant the employment of six more guards at the state penitentiary, were requested.

LABOR OPPOSED TO CLOSING OF ROGUE

With the state federation of labor one of the strongest opponents to closing of the Rogue river to commercial fishermen, individual members of organized labor here are looking with interest to the course which the Rogue river bill, which has already passed the two branches of the legislature, will take now.

The state federation went on record for keeping the Rogue open largely because of the fishermen's union in the river region.

It is said here that the fishermen's organization vitally interested has not funds to push a fight against the bill, which there is little doubt that the governor will accept.

However, this is not expected to retard a referendum, for canny interests along the Rogue and particularly at Gold Beach are expected to put up financial backing to start the referendum, should decision be reached to go that far. That is what some local union men who have been watching the situation believe.
