SCHOOL WATER BILL DEPLETED

Woodward's Repeal Effort On Property Qualification Loses

Senator Woodward led a stirring but unsuccessful fight in the senate yesterday morning to secure the repeal of the present law which prohibits persons other than taxpayers from voting on bond issues and tax measures at school elections.

"Every citizen, whether or not his name is on the tax roll pays taxes," declared the senator as he brought to a conclusion a stirring debate. "You men who restrict the vote to men of property, set yourself as God-fearing, mentally superior people. I'm talking for a right that lies with the people. You make wealth the criterion of citizenship; I plead for character and intelligence as well as property possession as a test of the right to vote."

On the roll call, to substitute the minority report calling for the passage of Woodward's bill, for the majority report favoring its indefinite postponement, the aye vote was 12 and the nay vote 22, the measure being indefinitely postponed.

The roll call was:

Ayes: Senators Bailey, Crawford, Dunne of Clackamas, C. Williams of Multnomah, Jones, Kuck, Upton, Woodward.

Nays: Bennett, Billingsley, Booth, Brown, Burke, Carnsner, Dunn of Jackson, Eberhard, Eddy, Fisher, Franciscovich, Johnson, Kiddie, Mann, Miller, Moss, Schulmerich, Spaulding, Staples, Strayer, Wheeler, Marks.

Attention Called To Assented "Fads"

"There is no branch of our public affairs so subject to fads as the schools," declared Eddy. "The Smithville school from Senator Jones' district is visiting here today and the welcome of the senate is extended to this group." It works wonders in the Old Home Town, and like many of the other fads of the day, actually is without cost to the taxpayers!

Senator Schulmerich of Washington county has several things to distinguish him. One is the fact that he is reputed to be a millionaire, or well along the road to the Great American Ideal. Equally distinctive as far as the members of the upper house are concerned, is the fact that this banker-senator wears a flannel shirt. Unlike his fellow delegation member, Baker John Thorne, of the University of Washington county city of Forest Grove, Senator Schulmerich is quite thin. Representative Thorne grows fat without loss; his competitor and friend takes the matter less seriously. "Whence of life, actually involves finance or economy, Senator Schulmerich's words are listened to with extreme care in the senate, and no one thinks of his flannel shirt."

It has been suggested that the deficit might be cut down by staging more Moser-Crawford-Woodward, et al, debates, and charging admission to the senate gallery. As the matter stands, the gallery is crowded at almost every day, without cost to the onlookers.

COFFIN ADDRESSES AD CLUB MEMBERS

Distribution big Problem Of Future, Declares Paper Salesman

The economic future of America is tied up with the solution of the problem of distribution in contrast to the problem of production which was the one given most attention in recent decades.

Thus did Harry Coffin, direct mail specialist of the Zellbach Paper company, begin an interesting talk on advertising given Friday noon to the Salem Ad Club.

"Our business in the future as advertising men is to close the gap and to eliminate the up-and-down of business now existing between production and distribution," he said. "Depression is no time to cut advertising; it is a time to use it in more liberal quantities and with more care and discretion."

To prove that larger concerns were following this logic, Coffin declared that advertising in the national magazines had dropped only 10 per cent during 1930. In the last decade, advertising funds expended annually in the United States have grown from $750,000,000 a year to $2,000,000,000 annually, he said.

Per Cent Cost of Advertising Small

"Some people are horrified when the sums spent for advertising are announced," said Coffin. "A survey recently made showed that people who bought a seven-cent cake of nationally advertised soap guessed the advertising expense at one and four-tenths cent, whereas it was only one-fifth cent. A $50 suit of clothes was supposed to cost $6 to advertise; only one dollar was expended."

Coffin declared that nationally advertised brands of goods increased only 10 per cent in cost from 1913 to 1930, whereas all commodities in that period increased an average of 20 per cent with unadvertised goods an even higher percentage of gain in selling price.

Dismissing from the field of advertising, Coffin, said he felt America's present high tariff policy was hurtful to business, cutting down foreign markets for our manufactured goods which more and more were finding their way abroad, if only free trade with the buying countries would permit continued exportation.

DISABLED SOLDIER EXEMPTION PASSED

The senate yesterday approved Senator Booth's bill exempting disabled soldiers from paying the tax on a property assessment up to $1000. Only soldiers suffering from 40 per cent or more disability are eligible to take advantage of the act. Approximately 800 veterans in Oregon would be affected by the law, according to figures presented by Senator Booth. The bill was opposed by Senator Billingsley, who said its passage would open the way for other tax exemptions.

Under the provisions of a bill introduced by Senator Burke it would be unlawful to manufacture, transport, possess or use so-called "stink bombs." The proposed law also prohibits coercion or intimidation by threats or use of force or violence. A person convicted under the act would be subject to a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $2500, or a penitentiary sentence of not less than one year nor more than two years, or both fine and imprisonment.

A bill introduced by Senators Hall and Dunne prohibits theaters from selling tickets to patrons after the seats have been assigned under the provisions provided under this proposed law.

Greetings were extended by the senate to H. T. Bruce, who today observed his 75th birthday. He is employed as doorkeeper in the senate. A brief eulogy was given by Senator Moser.

Record-Maker Visitor—A visitor with local friends for a short time yesterday was Miss Aida Martell, junior at the University of Washington. She is a member of the debate team of that school which during the week met the woman's varsity debate team at the University of Oregon, at Oregon State and at Monmouth normal. Miss Martell last year was chosen the outstanding girl at the University of Washington on the basis of her extra-curricular and academic work. She has made her own way through school and in national news stories published about her was shown busy at one of her jobs, making a fur coat, an occupation on which was at once unique for a girl and fairly lucrative.

Legislative Sidelights

Oregon's 36th Legislative Session Brings Interesting Personages to Salem

ANY number of harmless ways to please the body politic are afforded legislators. One of the favorite ones is to secure the courtesy of the floor for the visiting potentate from the Old Home Town. Another niceety of the legislative convention is to have the presiding officer announce that "The Smithville school from Senator Jones' district is visiting here today and the welcome of the senate is extended to this group." It works wonders in the Old Home Town, and like many of the other fads of the day, actually is without cost to the taxpayers!

Senator Schulmerich of Washington county has several things to distinguish him. One is the fact that he is reputed to be a millionaire, or well along the road to the Great American Ideal. Equally distinctive as far as the members of the upper house are concerned, is the fact that this banker-senator wears a flannel shirt. Unlike his fellow delegation member, Baker John Thorne, of the University of Washington county city of Forest Grove, Senator Schulmerich is quite thin. Representative Thorne grows fat without loss; his competitor and friend takes the matter less seriously. "Whence of life, actually involves finance or economy, Senator Schulmerich's words are listened to with extreme care in the senate, and no one thinks of his flannel shirt."

It has been suggested that the deficit might be cut down by staging more Moser-Crawford-Woodward, et al, debates, and charging admission to the senate gallery. As the matter stands, the gallery is crowded at almost every day, without cost to the onlookers.

Richard Hamilton who is one of the special writers for The Oregonian was in a hurry to be off when the session ended yesterday. Over KGW last night he had the pleasure of "interviewing" Speaker Lonergan who in turn was to tell the folks of radio-land all about the 36th session. Hamilton hails from Washington and Olympia, the home of the $10 splendor and a fire-eating governor, but he is enjoying new contacts and a chance to see how legislators conduct themselves in neighboring states.

Federated Church Group Will Hear Mission Speaker

HUBBARD, Feb. 6.—A "Missionary Rally" is the theme for the Sunday service at 9:45 a. m. of the Federated churches of Hubbard, as announced by Glenn S. Hartong, pastor.

Reverend Hartong says, "At this service the address will be brought by Mrs. W. D. Norton, a woman with great qualification for the task. She will have much to say about India, that country to which the attention of the world is at present directed, as it goes through its revolutionary crisis. Mrs. Norton with her husband spent three days with Gandhi, the nationalist leader, while on their journey around the world."

Tunnel Board of Three Proposed, Woodward Bill

Creation of a tunnel commission of three members to be appointed by the governor is provided in a bill introduced Friday by Senator Woodward. Members of the commission would serve without compensation. In a previous bill introduced by Woodward it was provided that the proposed tunnel in Washington and Multnomah counties would be constructed under the direction of the state highway commission. This provision brought an avalanche of objections.

The cost of the proposed tunnel which was estimated at $6,000,000 would be paid from tolls. Senator Woodward's bill was said to have received the indorsement of Governor Meier.
