

FLAX SEED IN GOOD DEMAND

Result of Tariff; Offers Made to Contract in Advance, Report

Farmers of the Willamette valley are being offered the opportunity to contract acreage of flax seed for the coming year before they buy the seed to sow. The increased tariff on flax seed used in the manufacture of linseed oil has caused a heavy demand for home grown seed. Two Portland firms are offering contracts for seed acreage for next year and the market price promises to be much higher than that of any grain. At the present time linseed oil manufacturers are forced to import large quantities of seed flax most of it coming from Manchuria and Argentina. It is an accepted fact that the acreage of flax will have to be cut during the coming year and many farmers are faced with the problem of what to raise on their land. Local dealers agree that seed flax should be a profitable crop. The two Portland firms offering such seed contracts are the Archer-Dahleis Midland company, located at 601 Sherlock Ave., and the Empire Oil and Food Products company at 1550 Meadman.

ALBANY WINS DEBATE
Jefferson, Feb. 14—A large crowd attended the debate between Albany high and the Jefferson high which was held at the school house Thursday night. Jefferson, who upheld the negative side of the question, "Resolved, that chain stores are detrimental to the country," was represented by Joy McCarty and Mina Wright, while Isabel Van Warring and Hogue McCallister of Albany took the affirmative. Dean McAfee of Albany college, acted as judge, and gave a 3 to 0 decision in favor of the affirmative team of Albany high.

Report on Dry Law Repeal to Be Unfavorable

An unfavorable report on Senate Bill 140 introduced by Senator Upton, is expected tomorrow from the alcoholic committee headed by Senator Bennett. The bill would ask voters at the next election to determine whether the bone-dry law should be repealed and a state act patterned after the Volstead act substituted in its stead. Committee members have generally indicated their opposition to the measure but Senator Bennett said the measure would be reported out of committee, no matter that group's vote, in order to let senators debate the measure. Anti-prohibition forces are anxious to get a vote in the senate on the bill to see what senators are with them.

I've Known It For A Long Time

Bill, you're the biggest chump in seventeen states! Yeah, I guess so, but what made you think of it just now?

EASY AS PIE

Just came from your store, where I saw some of the finest bread in this town marked "Day-Old, 3c Loaf." Well, I said, what's wrong with that? Oh nothing, only I was just wondering what the Portland bakeries would do if they had to sell the same way. It would be pretty tough on them, don't you think? They would hafta sell most all their bread as day-old. And here's another thing, the Cherry City bakery and all the other bakeries of Salem pay taxes in Salem and employ Salem people. Now by gosh I'm a laboring man and I know a lot of men right here in town out of work, and if you don't put this in one of your ads you'll be a bigger chump than I thought you were when I saw you selling good bread as day-old for 3c a loaf.

As it seems to be the sentiment of most people that Salem bakeries make even a better loaf than Portland is shipping in, I will not add anything to this gentleman's statement other than to say that the chump part of this ad was not taken seriously by me, and as I appreciate frankness I am quoting the man's statement almost word for word.

I have the man's name that told this, and don't know whether he was joking or not.

It was told to me for a fact, but it's a good joke nevertheless.

He said that he bought a loaf of Portland's bread and his wife didn't serve it till the following day, and when she went to pick it up she dropped it on her foot, and he asked me if he could sue the store he bought it from.

"Why?" I asked. "Well," he added, "it was so hard it darn near mashed one of her toes off when it fell on her foot."
