table dish, was glazed carrots, made in the following manner:

- 6 carrots,
- 1 tablespoon sugar,
- 3 tablespoons butter,
- salt.

Wash and scrape the carrots and boil in salted water until tender. Drain, cut in fine strips or leave whole if carrots are small. Melt butter and sugar together in frying pan. Put in carrots and stir occasionally until well glazed. If desired carrots may be lightly browned.

No vegetable offered on the Salem market is cheaper now than onions. An opportunity to use some of these fine yellow leaved onions from the Lake Labish district is offered in the recipe for Peppers Stuffed with Onions.

A vegetable dinner is not complete without a sweet. If the family is to have that satisfied feeling that is the test of a good meal. Two simple desserts that might be used to complete the vegetable meal were given. Here they are:

Chocolate Custard Pudding

- 3 cups milk
- 1 1/2 squares chocolate (unsweetened)
- 4 cups sugar
- 3 cups fine stale bread crumbs
- 3 eggs slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Reserve one egg white for meringue. Cut chocolate in fine pieces and add to milk heating in double boiler. When chocolate is melted beat with rotary egg beater until smooth and blended. Beat egg slightly, add sugar and salt. Pour chocolate over egg mixture stirring vigorously. Add vanilla and pour over the bread which is in an oiled baking dish. Place dish in a pan of hot water in the oven and bake at 350 degrees—60 to 65 minutes or until firm. When nearly done make a meringue of the egg white and two tablespoons of sugar. Place it in heaping piles on pudding and brown delicately in the oven.

Apricot Rice Pudding

- 1 cup of raw rice or
- 3 cups cooked rice
- 1 quart water
- 1 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Soak apricots several hours in the quart of water. Add sugar and cook until nearly tender. Cook rice until tender in boiling salted water using six cups of water to the cup of rice. Drain and place in alternate layers with apricots in an oiled baking dish. Pour over sweetened apricot sauce until liquid shows at the top of the rice. More liquid can be added during the baking if desired. Dot with bits of butter and bake covered for 45 minutes at 350 degrees to 375 degrees. Uncover to finish. Have rice at least an inch from top of dish to prevent boiling over. Serve warm or cold with cream.

The school will last two more days with classes beginning promptly at 2 p. m. in the Methodist church at the corner of Church and State streets.

Bits For Breakfast

For he loved the members of the family that surrounded him and the friends who made of his life a pleasant journey; loved them dearly and esteemed them highly, and enjoyed with zealous satisfaction their intimate relationships and their neighborly companionships. He lived a full life, however he felt would have had it longer. Since that could not be, he sought, like a good and brave soldier, above all things, to make his departure as devoid as possible of the pain of parting to the members of his household and to his friends.

A PAIR OF BLUEBLOODS

Mrs. Earl Folsom, of Boston, with her choice "Hop Toy," which won the blue ribbon at the annual show at Ormond Beach, Fla.

Dan J. Fry will be long remembered as a loyal member of his community, his church, his lodges and clubs, and a helpful citizen of his city and state. There is no one in all the circle reading these lines who would not wish to be included in the profound sympathy that is here expressed for his near and dear ones bereaved of a good and loving husband, a devoted father and grandfather and a helpful and sympathetic friend in every fond relationship.

connections? What sort of person is he when he's away from Kingcliffe?"

"Why not look him up, sweet thing?"

"We're doing that, my dear. But you see how it is, Bim; when you begin to speculate you drag the whole shebang down around your ears."

"Of course that's what Mrs. Briggs overheard Bunny say to Laura when he was calling at her apartment. 'I can't have you no one else will. Though I don't think that sounds a bit like Bunny Baird. Not a bit. And some way or other I can't imagine him sneaking in to call on Laura that way when I happen to know the old Judge is very fond of him.'"

"Perhaps Mrs. Briggs jumped at conclusions. Well, that's the lot of them."

"You're forgetting Bob and Millicent, Wally."

"Oh, Bob and Millicent! Pair of kittens."

"But while you're supposing, you've got to be fair and impartial."

"They're both out on all counts—opportunity, motive, initiative, everything. Too bad they have got to be dragged through the mess. I know what you're thinking," he concluded when she smiled. "That Bob might have been set off by the woman's snubbing Millicent. It's reasonable in a way, only he wasn't out of her sight all evening; Millicent treats him like a baby."

"But after they left Eagle's Nest? Of course Millicent would lie for Bob if she had to; a wife's testimony, you know."

"Flee flitting"

"Oh, they'll go through the cleaner with the rest." Walter answered rather wearily. "But there's no use wasting time on them; I've got to be moving along, Bim; inquest's over at Doc Sankey's at six. See you later!" he asked hopefully.

"And how!" she answered, glad that his grinch was forgotten.

It was then that young Steve Collins who was Kingcliffe's official milkman, dropped into the Station House and contributed his bit toward the murder mystery.

Young Steve Collins came in with his wire basket filled with bottles of milk and put one on
