TURNER SCHOOL HAS HOLIDAY PROGRAM

Washington's Birthday Honored by Grade and High School

TURNER, Feb. 25.—The Turner school presented a Washington day program in the auditorium Monday morning at 10:45, with Prof. J. R. Cox, presiding. All joined in singing "America," which was followed by an eulogy of Washington and Lincoln.

The outstanding number of the program was put on by eight small boys giving "Wooden Soldiers," which was a drill with Mrs. Mae Hadley at the piano. The boys' uniforms consisted of white trousers, small caps of red and blue and tall red hats which shaded a face with a dash of coloring. They marched and counter-marched well together with arms and legs moving up and down in straight lines. Mrs. Crystal Edwards, intermediate teacher arranged the special number.

The primary pupils who were prepared by their teacher, Mrs. Leota Sloan, gave a recitation, "George Washington," by Bernadine White. Recitation, "Suppose I Had a Hatchet," given by Kenneth Barber. All the primary pupils marched to the stage and sang "How Betsy Ross Made the Flag," with Mrs. Hadley at the piano.

Mrs. Cleora Parks, teacher of the Juniors presented 13 pupils in an exercise, each giving a verse on Washington's life which made a short history sketch from his birth to the time of his death.

The high school was represented in three numbers. A reading by Leota Skipper, "Origin of Life," "Mount Vernon Bells," was given by a double quartet, Russell Denyer, Kenneth Fowler, Wallace Chandler, Esmond Tappin, Leone Cook, Anna Johnson, Josephine Gilstrap and Helen Witzell; Mrs. Jean Pearey at the piano.

A reading by Josephine Gilstrap gave an outline of the plans of the "Bicentennial Commission," with the "American Tree Association," cooperating in asking American citizens to plant 10,000,000 trees as memorials to George Washington; they would be living symbols from a grateful citizenry. Washington would be pleased with a memorial that would benefit his country. Plans are being formulated for a national celebration of the 200th birthday anniversary of George Washington, February 22, 1932. Colleges, schools, community clubs and municipalities, are urged to carry out a patriotic

According to the report the road between Salem and Macleay was lined with vehicles. It is said that everyone that could get a vehicle that day was present. About 3000 persons were in attendance.

Margaret Magee spoke on the work that is being done by the art classes of the Salem high school. Among other things she told of the work that is being done by the students on the Japanese costumes and scenery for the Technic club play, "A Thousand Years Ago." A brief review of the play was also given by Miss Magee.

Other numbers on the program were: Song, by audience; reading, Howard Mader; review of the life of Washington, Valera Amort; reading, Donald Mader; piano solo, Paul Silke, Jr.; short-cuts in housework, by the women of the grange.
