

GOVERNOR PUTS VETO ON A VETO

House-Cleaning to be Next Task, General Belief Around Capitol

that license for smelt taken from the Sandy river, shall go into the game protection fund and be devoted to the improvement of angling.

In the year 1921, read the governor's veto message, "the enforcement of the commercial fishing laws and the game laws was placed under separate commissions for the reason that it was constantly claimed by the commercial fishermen that too large appropriation of the fund was being expended for game purposes, and by the game organizations that too large a part of the fund was being expended for commercial purposes.

The veto also was affixed to senate bill 219, by the committee on forestry and forest products, appropriating $500,000 for forest type map and survey of the forest lands of the state.

"In my opinion," read the governor's veto, "the work provided for in this bill is not of sufficient importance at this time to warrant an appropriation of $500,000, when the state is incurring such necessary expenses in order to bring state expenses within the state revenues."

Deed Validation Bill Feels Ax
The veto also fell on senate bill 224, by the committee on judicial affairs, which was intended to cure defects in titles and conveyances, and validate defective sales.

"This act provides for the validation of deeds and other instruments, purporting to effect real property, which are invalid because of defects in titles and conveyances, and validate defective sales.

"Not only does it validate deeds which, at the present time are not entitled to record, but makes such instruments conclusive evidence of the title to the lands therein described. It seems to me that such an act will open wide the doors for fraud."

Another bill vetoed by Governor Meier provides for attorneys' fees in actions arising from negligence on the public highways. This bill was introduced by Representative Peters.

"There is no valid reason insofar as I can ascertain why attorneys' fees for claims for accidents on highways should be allowed when not allowed in other forms of negligent cases," read the veto message.

"The same question is involved in all actions for negligence and no distinction should be made in the procedure or in the liability in these actions."

Accident Fund Held Unnecessary
Disapproval also was given house bill 143, by Representative Mott, creating an accident fund for certain inmates of state institutions.

"This act appears to me to be useless legislation," read the governor's veto message, "for regardless of the principles stated therein, there is no practical means by which a sufficient fund can be obtained to take care of injuries to inmates of state institutions."

If it is the desire of the legislature that the state provide some means of compensating inmates of state institutions for injuries received, a fund should be set up for that purpose."

Governor Meier also affixed his veto to house bill 228, by Representative Knapp, which provided for opening several small streams in the state to commercial fishing.

Another veto was directed at senate bill 143, by Senator Dunne relating to the conduct of barber shops.

"This is another regulatory act applying to barber shops," read the veto message. "Under the present law the state board of barber examiners has ample power to enforce sanitary regulations and conditions in the business of barbering, and I see no reason for providing for an additional license for barber shops."

The records show that the governor also reduced an appropriation of $40,000, for the erection of a new building for the Waverly Baby home in Portland, to $25,000.

Other bills carrying appropriations, or creating additional expense, which were vetoed by Governor Meier follow:

H. B. 152, by Scott, providing for increase in the salary of the Umatilla county assessor, at a cost of $300 annually.

H. B. 191, by Hamilton et al. increasing the salary of the judge of Deschutes county, with additional financial burden of $400 annually.

H. B. 244, by Washington county delegates, increasing salary of Washington county officials, at additional cost of $300 annually.

H. B. 391, by ways and means committee, Capital outlay of $1,000 for state supreme court.

H. B. 440, by ways and means committee, Appropriation of $9,500 to take care of the salary of an additional circuit judge in the fourth judicial district, Multnomah county.

H. B. 219, by forestry committee, Appropriating $5000 for survey of the forest resources of the state.

The governor also lopped off $2500 from the appropriation for the Oregon state penitentiary and $15,200 from the appropriation for the state home for the feeble minded.

Repeat Tax Saving
Attention also was called by the governor Thursday to a saving of $1,125,000 resulting from the repeal of the one-mill market road

Warner's Elsinore Today—Lawrence Tibbett in "New Moon."

The Grand Today—Buck Jones in "Desert Vengeance."

The Holywood Today—Jack Oakie in "Let's Go Native."

Warner's Capitol Today—Lila Lee in "Woman Hungry."

Voices that are so lovely that the audience applauds in the tribute to be paid to "New Moon" with Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore singing and acting the leads of a story which in itself is interesting and full of human appeal and in its intrigue and spectacular episodes.

The music is truly beautiful and the theme song "Lover Come Back to Me" is one that one does not forget after hearing it sung by two artists. There is some beautiful photography, especially in this true in one of the most spectacular fight scenes to be photographed for the screen.

The play is peculiar in that there are so many high episodes. One comes out remembering in detail certain acting, certain scenes, certain phrases, each of which stands out with dramatic clearness in memory.

Tibbett really does some acting in this play and is very attractive. His voice at times seems to be for the recording but for the most part it is thrilling.

Grace Moore is a splendid addition to the screen celebrities. She is lovely to look upon, can act and her voice is splendid. Assisting in the production of "New Moon" are such people as Adolphe Menjou who plays a splendid role; Ronald Young whose speaking voice and humor is something to remember; Karl Dane who draws a laugh and a host of others who make up the cast of a play to be seen by all means and to be remembered long.

The records show that 431 bills were passed by the legislature, of which number 404 were signed by Governor Meier. In seven of these bills were items which were vetoed by the governor. Of the total number of bills passed by the legislature 406 will become laws.

FRATERNIS DINNER IS WELL ATTENDED
The best turnout in months attended the Fraternalis club meeting at the Spa last night and listened to an address by Sergeant Lansing, promoter of safety education for the state traffic department.

Lansing told members of the young men's club of the efforts being made by his department to cut down the heavy toll of life taken by automobile accidents. He pointed out that nearly half of the deaths from this cause last year were pedestrians; that 22,500 persons were killed by cars; that more economic loss resulting from motor accidents amounted to three quarters of a billion dollars.

The sergeant is carrying on an intensive program of speaking before club and school audiences, informing his hearers of traffic laws, observation of which will help to eliminate auto accidents.

MISS LINA HEIST
Funeral Saturday FOR MISS L. HEIST
Popular Teacher in Local High School Dies Here Thursday Morning

Funeral services for Miss Lina Heist, language and history teacher of Salem senior high school and member of the teaching staff since 1915, who died at the home of her sister here Thursday morning, will be held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the W. T. Riddon chapel. It was announced yesterday evening, Rev. B. Earle Parker, pastor of First Methodist church, will officiate. Interment will be in City View cemetery.

Death came suddenly as the culmination of an attack of bronchial pneumonia with which Miss Heist was stricken last Sunday, following a light attack of influenza. By Tuesday night she was kept alive only by administration of oxygen.

Miss Heist was one of the oldest teachers, in point of service, in the Salem school system and also one of the most popular. Except for a year's leave of absence for a trip to Europe she had served continuously since 1915. She first taught German, then at the onset of the war, with German discontinued, she took over history classes. Last fall German classes were reinstated with her as instructor.

Was Graduate Of Willamette
Lina Heist was born near Grand Rapids, Mich., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Heist. With her family she moved to Oregon 24 years ago. She took her baccalaureate degree at Willamette university and did post graduate work at the Universities of California and Washington. She began her teaching career at Scappoose, where she remained for two years and then returned to Salem to enter the high school faculty.

During her teaching career here Miss Heist was active in the work of the teachers' associations and with many young people's organizations. A lifelong member of the First Methodist church, she was superintendent of the young people's department, and a member of the official board.

Surviving Miss Heist are four sisters: Lulu Heist of Portland, Laura Heist of Baroda Residency, Ind., Mrs. J. S. Steininger of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. W. W. Emmons of Portland, who she had made her home for the past 14 years; and one brother, Dr. A. A. Heist of Indianapolis, Ind.

STOCKHOLDERS AGREE TO PLAN

Of Reorganizing Linen Mill Firm With Proviso That Cash Will be put in

himself did not like to see this action take place. While it is unfortunate for stockholders to have their interests dissipated, the proposed reorganization conserves the assets of the stockholders somewhat, he said.

Thomas B. Kay, president of the virtually insolvent mill, laid the blame for its condition principally on the pioneering stage through which flax manufacture had passed in the Willamette valley. He said that under a different world market than has prevailed in the last 18 months, profit might have been made. He cited examples in the state flax industry to uphold his contention that market depression was to blame for the losses both at the state flax plant and at the Oregon Linen mill. Kay said he felt aggrieved as stockholder to the extent of $6500 to see his investment depreciated but declared he felt that the development of the industry in the valley was full compensation and he also stated that he felt added working capital in the Oregon Linen mills, together with improved market conditions, might bring more return to the stockholder on the no-par common stock on the trade-in arrangement, than from the present preferred stock holdings.

Seeks Guarantee Of Cash Payment
Kay asked Meek to guarantee to the Oregon Linen Mill company that himself and his associates would positively put $80,000 cash into the new company provided the old indebtedness was arranged for by the present company. Meek said he would not guarantee this because it was well-nigh impossible to secure binding sales of stock until a company was organized. He said that he had connections with a number of Portland men, many of whom had indicated a willingness to subscribe to stock in the new corporation. Meek indicated that he felt confident the $80,000 sale of stock could be consummated.

According to a valuation placed by Meek and Gilbrath on the Oregon Linen Mill company's plant, the land and machinery is held at $290,000. The net value after the bond issue would be $140,000 and the addition of $80,000 from sale of stock would give the newly formed company a net book value of $220,000 against approximately 4000 shares of outstanding no-par common stock. This would represent a book-value equity for the old stockholders of slightly more than $60,000 in the book assets of the new company. The original subscription price of the 3728 outstanding shares of preferred stock in the Oregon Linen Mill company was $100 a share of a total of $372,800.

Little Objection To Plan Voiced
Little objection to the reorganization plan was made in the meeting. Several stockholders volunteered to turn over their stock without any stock being given in return provided the new corporation would guarantee to continue the mill in operation in this city.

J. W. Mayo, Stayton banker, questioned the fairness of the proposed trade-in basis and said he felt the bonus given the promoters high. He asked if other means could not be found to refinance the company.

After the meeting, President Kay stated that at least $10,000 of the $80,000 of bonds needed to be sold by the company had already been placed. Kay said during the meeting that he would be willing to buy a part of the issue and indicated that a number of Portland capitalists would take a block of the bonds. He said some of the creditors had agreed to accept bonds of the company in lieu of their bills due from the company.

Mr. Gilbrath, after the meeting, declared that his associates would not be interested in continuing the proposed reorganization of the mill should a receivership be demanded, to be followed by foreclosure. "We would

COUGAR NO. 2 KILLED; DOGS GET THIS ONE

The second cougar skin on which a Marion county man has claimed bounty in the past few months was brought to the county clerk's office yesterday by L. F. Myers of Mehama. He said he hunted the animal with dogs.

A. B. Syverson of the Detroit section brought a cougar skin in last December. The cougar bounty is $5 from the county and $20 from the state.

Harlan A. Judd, deputy county clerk, reports that for the first time as far back as he has investigated, the bounty books showed yesterday that three large skins were brought in within a few days. H. J. Lulay claimed bounty this week on a coyote, and Paul Lambrecht also brought in a coyote skin. Bounty on coyotes is $1.50 male and $2 female.

M'CANN AND JONES GRAPPLE TO DRAW

Each Gains a Fall Before Two Hours are up; Joe Stecher "Delayed"

After two hours of grueling wrestling in which each grappler took one fall, the match between Wildcat McCann and Henry Jones of Provo, Utah, ended in a draw at the armory Thursday night.

Young Joe Stecher failed to show up to meet McCann as scheduled. Some local fans are of the opinion that Stecher was not desirous of meeting the study falls. At any rate, Matchmaker Plant received a telegram from Wells Walla stating that Stecher had missed his train. There are grapplers who do not wish to wrestle McCann.

McCann took a little more punishment than did Jones in the bout, but stood up under it as well as the Utah man. At the end of the whistling time both wrestled out of the ring. The wristlocks, for which Jones is famous, were hard to put on last night, as the Wildcat had had plenty of experience in avoiding them. Jones was put in positions to take punishment frequently and saved himself by rubbing McCann's back with his knuckles.

McCann took the first fall in 52 minutes with his special reverse crab which caused Jones to pat the mat. In the second canto more dirty tactics were used, with Jones starting most of them. While McCann went through his usual motions and made himself appear foul, Jones cleverly applied fierce shoulder butts to the Wildcat's jaw time and again and also used his knees punningly in a like manner.

After 57 minutes of wrestling featured by punishing toe holds and wristlocks, Jones took the second fall when he brought McCann down to the mat on his head from an airplane spin.
