AIR MAIL FOR SALEM SOUGHT

Louis Lachmund Taking up New Proposition With Senator McNary

Upon receipt of the press announcement of the postmaster general that Oregon's legislative memorial recommending Salem and other valley cities be afforded the same interstate air mail service as Portland cannot be complied with due to the lack of funds, the following letter was sent this week to Senator Charles L. McNary by Louis Lachmund, of Salem:

"Salem bonded itself for $50,000 to develop an airport. It covers 220 acres. It has two hangars, with a capacity of from 24 to 30 planes, depending upon size of planes. It's not functioning successfully, by which I mean financially. It's purely local in its character and as such can't make any money. At the suggestion of our mutual friends, Joe Herman, and Ross Wood, I made a trip to the airport, was impressed with the magnitude of the field, with its beautiful layout and the splendid buildings.

"In our discussion the following facts were developed. The government has a contract to carry the mail from Portland to points in California, two trips each way; the first stop Portland to points in California, from Portland southbound is Medford and northbound, from Medford to Portland, with no stop at Salem. The air mail service out of Salem is not particularly satisfactory, by which I mean that mail originating in Salem must go by train to Portland, make connection with the airport there and thence to eastern or California points.

"I doubt very much if the post-office department will consent to stopping its planes in Salem to pick up available mail on account of its small volume, but I am assured that facilities can be developed right here in Salem, Albany, Corvallis, Eugene, Roseburg and Grants Pass and make connections at Portland twice a day for east-bound mail and connections at Medford twice a day for California mail.

"Don't you think it would appeal to the postoffice department? It sounds so reasonable from the standpoint of service that I am appealing to you to take it up with Postmaster General Brown for his consideration.

"I am advised that Lee U. Eyerly, who operates the Salem airport, is willing to take the contract for the mail, but to be compensated on the basis of weight. Under such an arrangement the government can't lose a dollar, while on the other hand, it will be rendered a highly efficient service to all points in the entire valley. Mr. Eyerly said Saturday that he is willing to accept a contract from the government such as outlined by Mr. Lachmund, and that an arrangement of the sort would be of great benefit not only to the Salem airport but to industry and business men throughout the valley and in Oregon in general.

FIRST AID TAUGHT TO CITY EMPLOYEES

First aid schooling for the firemen and policemen of Salem will be carried on starting Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock at the fire hall under the auspices of the American Red Cross. R. E. Carlson, national field representative will start the work through the Willamette chapter of Salem. The classes are free and will be given under the instruction of Dr. Vernon Douglas. Several of the policemen are to enroll and it is planned to extend the classes through the schools of the city and Willamette university.

The classes are free and will be given under the instruction of Dr. Vernon Douglas. Several of the policemen are to enroll and it is planned to extend the classes through the schools of the city and Willamette university. The police school work will feature emergency treatment for accident victims to cover the period chiefly between the time of the mishap and the arrival of a doctor or ambulance.
