LOSS SHOWN BY NEWBERG FIRM

Spaulding Attributes Deficit To Demoralized Market

Reports on operations of the Spaulding Pulp and Paper company at Newberg received by local investors show operating deficit for the year of $2635, exclusive of depreciation which is placed at $25,645, making a total deficit of $28,881.

The loss is attributed to a demoralized market, which in the closing months of 1930 saw pulp fall to $45 a ton, delivered, in contrast to prices of $55 prevailing the first of the year.

Additional causes for the loss, as related by C. K. Spaulding, president of the concern, includes the fact that the driers of the pulp mill were insufficient to operate the three digesters of the plant to capacity. Capital outlays of $67,017 were made in addition to $11,318 in capital outlays made in 1929.

The company's working capital has been severely depleted, the letter continues, and the board of directors has recommended the issuance of a $250,000 trust mortgage to allow refinancing of outstanding liabilities, now unfunded. This would also provide additional working capital, which is said by Spaulding to be sorely needed.

During the 1930 period, the mill produced 229 carloads of air dry pulp, aggregating 8933 tons, for which the company received $353,584.

Testimony in Fowler Case Goes to Jury

BAKER, Ore., March 20—(AP)—All testimony in the trial of Mrs. Emma Fowler, former La Grande city treasurer, charged with larceny of public funds, was before the jury here Friday night.

At the request of the prosecution, Circuit Judge Hall S. Lusk ordered adjournment until Saturday morning when argument of counsel will begin. The case is expected to reach the jury Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Fowler's accounts allegedly were found short $112,202.02 when she turned over her books to her successor last month. She was arrested at Pendleton while en route to Portland, she said, to obtain the missing funds. From the witness stand here she testified she did not have the money but admitted her accounts were short the amount charged by the state.

Through H. L. Soule, Baker public accountant, the defense attempted to disprove all or a material part of the alleged shortage.

The state today placed Raymond Gurdane, Umatilla county deputy sheriff, and R. H. Millsap, city editor of the Pendleton East Oregonian, on the stand. They testified Mrs. Fowler had told them, when she was arrested at Pendleton she had some bonds with her and was going to Portland to obtain others.

Mrs. Fowler, recalled by the defense immediately afterward denied she had made those statements.

Dividends previously paid to these depositors aggregate 43 1-3 per cent.

The Bank of Kenton was closed December 3, 1926. No dividend has as yet been paid to claimants of the commercial department. Affairs of the bank have been involved in considerable litigation.
