It was not thought advisable to include in the total ratio the pro rata share of state bondvehicle fees and gasoline taxes, most of which are derived from the thickly populated sections of the state, and for the further reason that the Oregon veterans state aid bonds are offset almost entirely by first mortgages upon real property within the state. "A large part of the bonded indebtedness reflected in the ratios was incurred in the boom period of 1920 and thereafter. On account of originally issuing the bonds with straight maturities or with serial maturities, many of the cities that have since lost in population and assessed valuation are confronted with the problem of refunding their bonds during a serious financial depression and under adverse conditions from the viewpoint of their own

"To remedy this situation as to the future, the recent legislature passed a bill prepared by the state treasurer providing that with certain exceptions new bond issues of cities and school districts, shall be serial in form and shall be payable in installments beginning not later than five years from the dates of the bond
