SPRING IS HERE

BOTH the calendar and Oregon weather agree on one thing—spring is here. It came quietly Saturday with a gentle whiff of soft air and the perfume of rain-drenched violets and waxen hyacinths; it came bringing with it the urge to dig in the garden, to ride horseback over crooked paths trailing between green timber, to follow a winding road to far points and see new things and thus think new thoughts, to make merry at the beach in friendly cottages which have waited patiently through the winter months for enthusiastic owners to come back with the spring and the swallows.

Even has Spring borne in on her wing the first hint of romance which is as much a part of the spring as the rain and flowers. Today one of the first lovely spring weddings will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Millard at which time their daughter, Miss Margreta Millard, will wed Ed Orday of Portland.

And with the advent of Spring comes the announcement from the Salem Garden club that the spring flower show date has been set for April 18 and 19.

And with the Spring also comes music and there is no lack of it this last two weeks in March. March 25 the Salem Civic chorus and the Madrigal club will sing in concert; March 30 the Salem MacDowell club will present its artists in its March concert; and March 31 has been set as the tentative date for Neah-Kah-Nie string quartet which will give the last of its group of three concerts at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Patton.

Music Will Herald Easter In Days Preceding April Fifth

MARCH will go out to the soft strains of music regardless the disposition of its weather and Easter will come in with the echo of the last lovely concert of March 31, the tentative date set for the last day of the three concerts given in Salem this season by the Neah-Kah-Nie string quartet.

The first of the coming concerts will be March 5 at which time Prof. E. W. Hobson will present its choruses, the Civic Men's chorus and the Madrigal club in an unusually beautiful song concert. The program will include:
