

COORDINATING COURSES NEED

U. S. Department Suggests Avoiding Duplication In Upper Divisions

importance in the economic and social structure of the state.

Normal schools should be exclusive in training elementary school teachers, the standards of whose fitness should be more rigidly determined by the state board of higher education.

Lower division work "to provide the broad general education needed by men and women without respect to their careers they will follow" is to be provided similarly at both Corvallis and Eugene with a great school of science based upon lower division work established at Corvallis.

The survey recommends that deficiencies in courses offered at either of the larger schools be made up by transfer of professors from time to time from one school to another and by the division of residence of students or their transportation between the institutions when needed.

Facilities Needed

Duplication of work offered in the lower divisions of Corvallis and Eugene is encouraged but it is classed as "extensive and expensive" in the upper divisions and its elimination is urged. Nevertheless the survey urges that "the primary problem . . . is that of building up that department rather than that of securing greater economy although reduced costs should result from elimination of duplications."

The survey declares that "Oregon's program of graduate and research work needs further development."

Overproduction of teachers appears to exist and the state department of education is recommended as a board of control on teachers-need and preparation.

The survey declares that "the people of Oregon have in the past not provided for or received the kind of elementary teaching service the state needs."

The state department of education should "be provided with a staff adequate to exercise oversight and coordination of the work of teacher training and certification."

Political efforts of both schools to win followers through extra-campus work is decried but extension work is commended and the expenditures for it are held to be justified by results.

College Politics

Head Wasteful

"Allocation of millage taxes between institutions in the past has been a potent factor in . . . recruiting devices and multiple . . . caution of institutional offerings," the report reads. This attempt should be weakened by the state board of higher education. Non-competitive catalogs should be issued.

Poorly-prepared students with low college ability should not be permitted to enter the schools and the heavy mortality of freshman and sophomores should be reduced.

Extended recommendations are made on unified and improved methods of accounting which will reduce existing waste and result in lessened expense.

Capital investments should be coordinated and made from special millage levies, special appropriations or from gifts. The continuing millage levies should be for operation and maintenance.

Opposes Stress

On Varsity Sports

Athletic should be less emphasized with present boards of control abolished and intercollegiate athletics incorporated into the schools of physical education. Coaches should be employed in the same manner as other staff members and receive equal compensation.

Dr. Klein was assisted in the survey by two other members of the commission, as selected by the department of the interior of the federal government. They were Dr. George A. Works, dean of students at the University of Chicago, and Dr. F. E. Kelly, formerly president of the University of Idaho. Special assistants included Dr. Palmer Johnson, University of Minnesota; Dr. Thomas A. Bonner, Columbia University; Dr. Victor H. Noll, Uni-

Today—William Haynes in "The Tailor Made Man."

WARNER'S CAPITOL

Today—Mary Astor in "Behind Office Doors."

"The world," as Dr. Einstein puts it, "is now industrialized. We live in offices, not homes."

And at last the strange new life of America, of the whole civilized world of big cities, is realistically set forth in a film.

How we work in offices, live in offices, drink in offices, if not eat in them, and carry on our romances in them is shown in Radio Pictures' drama of society-to-date, "Behind Office Doors," now at the Capitol.

In the same way that outside life invades the modern business office, the office invades the home, with its stenographers visiting employer's apartments with or without their shorthand books—business associates share the intimacy of homes with husbands. And of course the average golf game is a business session!

The play makes several points of interest and is fairly well acted. Mary Astor plays the feminine lead with Robert Ames playing opposite her.

Today will see the last of "A Tailor Made Man" at the Elsinore in which William Haines is said to do the best acting of his career. The story is amusing and serious at the same time and gives Haines a chance to do something besides foolshines and the result will prove much and the result will prove much and the result will prove much.

Mickey Mouse NOTES

By ZOLLIE VOLCHOK

SPECIAL NOTICE

Try your skill. Can you draw? All you have to do is draw a picture of Mickey or Minnie Mouse, and to the 15 or 20 best the local merchants and the Mickey Mouse club will give prizes. The directions are very simple.

The pictures can be drawn in pencil, ink, or crayon; any size you wish to draw it, the bigger the better, and they must be handed in to the Capitol theatre before April 25. The pictures to be judged by Salem Mickey Mouse boosters.

The admission to the Mickey Mouse matinee has been reduced to the old scale of price, so let's get a big crowd out this Saturday morning.

This week Mr. Daire, from the Linden Daire school of dancing in Portland, will bring down a few of his pupils to help entertain us in a big way.

I was walking down the street near Lincoln school, and there was Bobby Hayward and Bertha Klortien, two of our active club members talking about the pictures of the Mickey Mouse club, which were in The Statesman last Saturday, and this is what it sounded like.

"That was sure a swell picture, wasn't it?"

"Well, it was pretty good."

"What do you mean, pretty good? I bet that you would like it better if you were in the picture."

"Say, I can play an instrument. I think I'll go to the Capitol theatre Friday at 5 o'clock and ask Professor Feagy if I can belong."

versity of Minnesota; Benjamin W. Frasier, U. S. office of education; John H. McNeely, U. S. office of education, and Dr. E. E. Lindsay, University of Pittsburgh, now secretary to the state board of higher education of Oregon.

Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian, returned Friday from a week's trip through central and southern Oregon, inspecting conditions and performing other duties of his office.

C. E. Stricklin, state engineer, left yesterday for San Francisco where he will attend a bondholders' meeting of the Warm Springs irrigation project. The meeting is for the purpose of reorganization. He expects to return early next week.

The state board of higher education has been busy the past week reading 112 pages of educational survey report, which were released yesterday. The survey commission made numerous recommendations which are to be used as a basis for reorganizing the higher educational systems in Oregon.

Charles A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction, says the survey makes some good recommendations relative to his department. Governor Meier also concurred in the views of the commission on several salient points, and in a letter to the board reminded it that a new system based on these recommendations must be put into effect by July 1.

I would like to use this space in saying that Bob was very smart in wanting to join the orchestra, and I'd like to see many more of you do the same thing. Come on let's make our orchestra the biggest Mickey Mouse one on the Pacific coast.

Extra prizes in the "singing contest" Saturday.

I surely hope that David Smith will accept my apologies for not mentioning him in Mickey Mouse Notes last week for entertaining us in his wonderful manner.

I haven't much paper left, so I'll finish by telling you about the pictures that you are to see.

The main feature will be William Haines, "Tailored Made Man"; "Oswald" in another laughing comedy, and the fourth chapter of the Mickey Mouse club serial "Pinger Prints."

If you ever miss any of the chapter of the serial write to me in care of this theatre and I will write you what it was about.

LOCALS

Pearson in City—E. Pearson, who lives near Turner, was a visitor at The Statesman office yesterday. He has lived in the Turner and Jefferson districts for many years. His son, M. O. Pearson, with whom he resides, has been a rural mail carrier out of Turner for years.

Guardian Named—The United States National bank of Salem has been named guardian of the estate of Lillian R. Christofferson, incompetent. A preliminary value of $3000 has been put on the estate. Appraisers named are R. G. Henderson, E. M. Bailey and Charles Andressen.

School Holiday—School children all over the city will have a holiday Monday, this being the annual brief spring vacation. The holiday gives teachers and students an opportunity to spend from Friday afternoon to late Monday away from the city.

Property Attached—The Woodburn lodge, I. O. O. F., in its suit against George W. Wilson and others, has filed action to attach property. The suit is to recover money alleged due through terms of a will.

Case Dismissed—Based on stipulation showing settlement out of court, the circuit judge has dismissed case of Delmar Hansen, minor, by his guardian ad litem, vs. Ken Brown.

Final Account—Helen Turner has filed final account as administratrix of the estate of Clara Turner. Hearing has been set by the probate judge for May 9.

Appraisers Named—George Keech, George Smith and George Bell have been named appraisers of the estate of William Frank Blakely. Ellen Blakely has been named administratrix.

Seeks Judgment—Pacific Savings and Loan association has filed suit against Mable Lee Slaughter and others, seeking judgment of $787.71 and costs and order of mortgage foreclosure.

Speeding Arrest—Marion Black of 1215 East Oak street, Portland, was arrested Friday when he speeded and failed to stop at a through street, according to the police records.

Under the Dome . . .

GOVERNOR JULIUS L. MEIER has asked as Oregon's executive three months without drawing his pay, because as he said to the board of control he felt he "hadn't earned his salary as yet." On the basis of $7,500 a year, the governor has $1,875 coming to him from the state. And as Andrew H. Brown would say, "That's sumpin'."

The governor delivered a lecture on economy to the heads of state institutions Friday, and not only recommended a cut of ten per cent but virtually demanded it. After the discourse, he left for Portland where the Meier and Frank organizations may get the same kind of an address. Anyway he is scheduled to be out of town until Monday.

Secretary of State Ross, not to be bested by the governor, says he would recommend at least a 15 per cent cut, on the basis of what he has done in his own department. There have been no complaints on the efficiency of his organization.

Rufus C. Holman, new Portland Port of Portland commissioner, was a caller on the governor Friday. Holman was a strong supporter of Meier in his political campaign.
