REFERENDUM'S LEGALITY EYED

Whether Attack Should be On $1,182,000 or Lower Figure Uncertain

The legality of the proposed referendum on house bill 408 which provides $1,182,000 as a biennial appropriation for the state institutions of higher education is threaded with intricacies fit for a high-class Philadelphia lawyer. While no official opinion has been asked on the matter from Attorney-General VanWinkle it seems likely that sooner or later the question will be laid before him.

Proponents of the referendum announced last week that they would attack the entire appropriation of $1,182,000. The question arises if the entire appropriation was ever made into law by the required process of passing both houses and receiving the governor's signature. That it passed the legislature is admitted but the bill in entirety, did not receive Mr. Meier's approval and signature. Rather the governor approved a self-changed bill which lopped off $500,000 from the appropriation set aside by the legislature.

Thus the referendum is to be on a bill which does not exist in the form the proponents of the referendum seek to have it submitted to the voters.

One or Other Amount Is Law One group of students on the matter insist that the governor's $500,000 vote was unwarranted by law and would not stand courts' test. Therefore the referendum, they claim, must be on the entire appropriation. Offsetting this argument is the fact that if Governor Meier's $500,000 cut was not legal, then house bill 408 with its $1,182,000 appropriation has never signed and therefore became a law without Meier's approval.

At the present time the attitude of the board of higher education appears to be to accept the slice in the appropriation without a referendum. In that event, there is a possibility the Easter Menu—Prisoners at the county jail will be treated to ham this morning as an Easter special. And of course the dinner menu will contain some specialty in honor of the occasion. Last night 19 names were on the roll.

matter will not be pressed. Then the question would arise whether the governor's reduced bill, calling for $682,000 appropriation, would stand or whether someone would claim in court that his failure to sign the bill in its entirety was without legal basis and the bill therefore became law without his signature.

KOZER IS EYED AS LIKELY CANDIDATE

Sam A. Koser, state budget director, was being talked at the statehouse Friday as a candidate for state treasurer at the republican primary election in May, 1931. He would neither deny nor confirm the report that he would run.

Mark McCallister, former corporation commissioner, announced earlier in the week that he would enter the lists to succeed Thomas E. Kay, incumbent, who is prohibited by statute from serving more than two terms.

Koser has had an extended political career in Oregon. He has been assistant secretary of state following this with an eight-year term secretary. At one time he was state insurance commissioner. He was appointed to his present job of budget director by Governor Patterson.

LIST VOLUMES TO BE BOUGHT

Board of Education Picks Books, new Adoptions Pupils do not Have

Textbooks in reading for the first, second, third, fifth, seventh and eighth grades, geographies for the fourth and sixth grades and a civic text for the eighth grade, have been designated by the state board of education as books to be included in the first purchase under the new free textbook law enacted at the recent legislative session. All of these textbooks are recent adoptions and are not owned by the pupils of the schools. The law provides for an annual levy of $1.50 per child enrolled in the elementary grades for the purchase of textbooks until such time as all of the books are supplied. Thereafter the levy will be reduced to meet current requirements.

In those school districts in which the fund raised by the required levy is sufficient to purchase more books than those included in the designated list, the board recommended that additional copies of one or more of the textbooks now in use be obtained to supply the classes.

Regional Center Plan Adopted Handling of textbook orders through regional depositories of publishing companies in Portland was decided upon by the state board as the most feasible method of distribution. The books may be purchased in this way at a 15 per cent discount from the list. For several years the J. K. Gill company of Portland has acted as the distributing agency for all textbook publishers doing business in Oregon. It was reported here today that other companies are now interested in engaging in this line of business.

The decision of the state board of education to have textbooks distributed through regional distributors was made with the understanding that in case more than one reliable distributing agency handles textbooks in this territory on the same basis, school officials will have the choice as to the one that shall handle their orders. The state superintendent of schools will work out a detailed plan for handling textbooks under the general scheme adopted by the state board of education. Members of the state board of education are Governor Meier, Secretary of State Hoss, and C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction.

Eastern Man Avers Salem Is 'Paradise'

J. E. Thompson of Penfield, Pa., came, saw and became converted to the beauty and attractiveness of Salem last year, he writes The Statesman in an enthusiastic letter received Saturday.

Thompson declares that he traveled nearly 10 months during 1929, and saw a large part of 26 states and yet avers: "In my estimation your little city of Salem is the most beautiful and the cleanest and most orderly city I have ever seen."

Thompson continues: "Your streets are so wide and clean; your beautiful oblong square with its beautifully kept flowers, shrubs and trees of innumerable varieties; your handsome buildings; well-kept lawns and yards and well-painted and well-designed houses; all attracted me."

"The level surrounding country with its nice streams, high banks and sturdy bridges is certainly wonderful and worth a comment from every traveler who happens to pass through it."

"My health went a little bad and I stopped for a week in your city at the Y. M. C. A., and enjoyed my stay very much. I was treated kindly and was sorry when time came to leave."

"I almost forgot to mention the wonderful fruit and many varieties of big strawberries." Concluding this visitor remarks: "Your section is an earthly paradise and I would love to live there."

CHANCE OF MAKING OWN WAY DESIRED

"These children are fatherless and it is up to me, their mother, to provide them with shoes which they need badly, and regular meals every day."

A Salem mother is writing The Statesman. "Perhaps someone can find some kind of a job for a young man who is badly in need of work. There are four young children that need help," she continues. "I will do any kind of house cleaning, washing or ironing."

The letter is on file with The Statesman which will gladly direct anyone who can provide work for this lad or his mother, to them. "We still have a little pride left even if we are desperate," the writer concludes her letter.
