INTELLIGENCE AT W. U. HIGH

Average of one Psychology Class is 117, Above Collegiate Norm

Willamette university's students are above average in intelligence as college students rank. This was the conclusion reached after giving the Otis self-administering intelligence test to 67 members of two classes in psychology under Dr. R. B. Winn of the university faculty.

The average "I. Q." (intelligence quotient) of the two classes is 117, whereas the average American college student ranks between 110 and 115. The average I. Q. of the general public is 100.

Three of the 67 students rated 129 apiece. The highest possible score in the Otis group is 133 for college students. Higher scores could have been made by several of the students if there had been more questions, but the limit was 75 questions. The time limit was 30 minutes.

The lowest scores in the classes were 85, which is 15 points below the average college student's I. Q. and 23 points below the average shown by the students here. Taken as Part of Regular Course

The two classes in psychology have been studying thinking, reasoning, instincts, intelligence and intelligence tests during the past few weeks. The classes requested Dr. Winn to order some intelligence tests.

The tests were administered Tuesday morning. Students are graded their own tests and handed in their scores at the end of the hour. Names did not accompany the scores; hence, no one but the recipients know who received the high scores and the low ones. It is part of Dr. Winn's policy to keep this a matter of individual concern.

Questions on the test included practically every line of study in the college curriculum: physiology, logic, mathematics, physics, and things that could be known only by a close observation.

Willamette's registrar concludes the idea that the 67 students who took the examination are as good a cross-section of the students as one could find; hence the statement is made that Willamette university students have an average I. Q. of probably 117. General Rating of Mental Ability

An I. Q. of 100 means that a person has a "mental age" equal to their chronological age. If a person is 30 years old and has an I. Q. of 100, his mental age or M. A. in (terms of the psychologist) is 30. If his physical age is 20 years and he has an I. Q. of 120, then his mental age is 24 years.

People of genius have intelligence quotients of 140 and above. Superior intelligence is rated from 110 to 120 and people of very high intelligence are between 120 and 140.

A dull person's I. Q. is between 80 and 90 while persons with an intelligence quotient of 70 to 80 is called "border-line". Persons with I. Q.'s below 70 are morons or feeble minded.

Under the Dome . . .

Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

THE Oregon supreme court was quiet Wednesday. The seven members of the court were in Portland attending the luncheon in honor of two members of the court as well as other jurists over the state. Justices Kelly and Campbell were the guests of honor, being the new members on the highest court of the state.

But the court was not the only quiet place on the grounds. Spring fever apparently struck some impressionable blows. Even the governor's office was quiet, with little of public interest transpiring, at least as far as announcements were concerned. If this weather keeps up, the governor commented, he was going to spend his time in other parts of the state.

Ralph Hansen, advisor to Governor Meier, said he had heard several rumors of late that he was moving back to Portland. Hansen said his wife did move back for the summer months, but that he would be here during the major portion of each week. He has a desk in the governor's office.

K. L. Randall, proprietor of the cigar stand and lunch counter in the capitol building, is recovering rapidly from a recent operation for appendicitis. Randall is being missed from his usual stand on the first floor of the main capitol building.

If other delegations to the state house fail to appear, there is always one which presents itself regularly. Male members of the Willamette student body cross the street to enjoy a smoke in the capitol.

C. E. Stricklin, state engineer.

ONE DEAD, 11 HURT IN ROOF COLLAPSE

BERKELEY, Cal., April 8—(AP)—One man was fatally injured and eleven others were hurt, seven of them seriously, when a section of a new concrete roof of the Mechanics building, under construction, collapsed on the University of California campus here today.

Skeleton bracing and pillars yielded suddenly, precipitating tons of material and workmen to the ground. One man seized an iron rod and clung to it as the roof collapsed beneath his feet.

Americo Cabral of Oakland died shortly after rescuers extricated him from the mass of wet concrete. Eleven others were taken to three Berkeley hospitals where their injuries were found to range from fractured skulls, internal injuries and cuts to broken bones.

An investigation was begun by Fire Chief George Haggerty of Berkeley, a second was under way by State Fire Marshal Jay Stevens and the contractors instituted a third.

Our BASIC Resources

WHEN things have looked dark, one has only to contemplate America's basic resources to realize how truly safe and sound our nation is. And one has only further to contemplate America's man power to realize how quickly these basic resources can be transformed into the very stuff of Prosperity. The link between the two is the Commercial Bank, ever ready to encourage well-conceived expansion and sound enterprise.

The First National Bank strives to do its full part in aiding the growth and development of Salem and the surrounding country.

Mrs. Brown, Executive

MRS. BROWN, housekeeper of scarcely more than a generation ago, was a skilled laborer. The Mrs. Brown of today is an executive.

She has turned over much of her work to mechanical appliances. Much of her cooking has been placed in the hands of manufacturers of foods. Most of her sewing is done for her by the makers of clothing and household furnishings. Freed from drudgery by modern inventions, she has become a manager.

The advertisements in her daily newspaper have enabled her to be a better director of the affairs of her home than any woman of any past generation. She is primarily, an intelligent buyer. She spends 85% of the family income. The care with which she reads the advertisements and the wisdom with which she acts on them determine the health, happiness and prosperity of her household.

She studies every new and every accepted product that might benefit her in her business of home management. She compares values. She is an expert in getting one hundred cents' worth of comfort, protection and satisfaction for every dollar she spends. She reads the advertisements every day. On them Mrs. Brown's efficiency depends.

The advertisements in this newspaper are the daily record of business progress, the report to you of the manufacturers and merchants who serve you. It will pay you to read them.
