HORSE MEAT CAN

Safe in Buying Hamburg and Sausage

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Corvailis, April 18 .- (Special) -When Mrs. Consumer purchases hamburger sausage from a reputable dealer she gets ground beef. Now these dealers need no longer fear the unfair price competition of the few concerns who used to sell cheap horse meat as beef hamburger.

At the request of the state livestock sanitary board the veterinary department of this college has successfully applied a scientific protein test to the detection of horse meat used as adulterants. By use of this test meat dealers who have since sdvance. been put out of business through revocation of their licenses.

"The Detection of Horse Meat as an Adulterant in Sausage, and Other Studies of the Precipitin Test," is the title of a report of this work made by Dr. R. M. assistant veterinarian here, and just published in the 15. Journal of the American Medical association. Reprints of this remuch in demand port are throughout the country where similar problems have been encountered.

Use of horse meat in ham burger is detected by an elaborate test made with rabbits or other suitable animals. A protein serum made from horse meat is first injected into the rabbit. It is killed after a certain length of time and a serum is prepared from its blood. This is in turn combined with a serum from the suspected meat product. A certain precipitate caused by combining the two is a sure indication of horse meat.

Most of the horse meat in Oregon and elsewhere is presumably sold for dog or fox feed or exported to regions where its sale as human food is profitable.

The work on these tests here is the first successful practical application of the precipitin test to meat products in this conntry. The state game commission has asked the college to make similar tests to detect contraband elk and other game meat. These tests are more complicated as the samples are usually

North Howell Grange Will Study Weed and Rodent Control

NORTH HOWELL, April 18 -At the recent grange meeting in the local hall an interesting rell call on topics or problems pertaining to everyday farm life in this community was called for.

Because of so much rain the past few weeks and because this has caused more weeds to grow than usual, practically every man present answered "weed control," | when his name was called and the usual remedy mentioned was a hoe, wielded with plenty of elbow grease.

The oleo question also called for many supporters and much discussion, however one-sided.

Many of the women present decided that their chief outdoor problem just now was rodent control as the moles and gophers are doing much damage to lawns and gardens. The main remedy for gophers was the shotgun or using poisoned raisins or clover leaves. The ladies do not personally have much trouble with gophers

because their sons or husbands will help get rid of them, but a mole is quite different. Most of us use whatever implement is nearest at hand and have killed them with ax, fork or hoe. One helpful member said that putting a few lye crystals in the mole runways gave instant relief and either drove the mole away or suffocated him. Weed control, rodent control and the oleo situation were the three projects adopted by North Howell for a year's work.

Fish caught in the fresh water lakes of northern Saskatchewan are now being shipped by airplane to markets in eastern Canada and the United States. About 3000 pounds of whitefish and trout are carried from the northern lakes to Prince Albert in two daily trips. It is planned to increase the service so that 6000 pounds can be transported daily to the railhead.
