

CAPITOL PLAN NOW OPPOSED

Will Take Other Counties' Funds, is Argument at Grants Pass, Eugene

Opposition to Senator McNary's proposal that a new state capitol building be constructed here from funds obtainable from sale of Oregon and California grant lands is developing in Lane and Josephine counties according to newspaper reports appearing this week in Eugene and in Grants Pass newspapers.

Jack Magliard, president of the Willamette Valley Lumbermen's association, gave out a public statement in Eugene this week, arguing that McNary's proposal be brought to the attention of the public as a development which would be a threat to Lane county's development.

Tuesday the Grants Pass Courier carried an extended editorial attacking the proposal, saying it would stop an annual income of $40,000 now being paid Josephine county by the federal government under provisions of the Stanfield act. The paper contended that it would be unfair to strip land grant counties of their property to provide a state capitol for Oregon when many counties would make no contribution whatever.

Lane County Judge Is Also Opposed

County Judge C. P. Barnard joined at Eugene with Magliard in making a protest against McNary's plan. "The state might as well ask Lane and Douglas counties to raise their tax rates for a capitol building," said Judge Barnard. "That the state has no claim on the moneys from these lands has already been proved conclusively in the courts."

Senator McNary made his proposal several years ago and repeated it last summer in address to the chamber of commerce here. He again announced his proposal in a press release from Wash-

Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

STATE'S officers and employees spent most of yesterday wiping the dust from their eyes and trying to locate papers under the dirt. And when the storm clears away they will not be the only ones to clean up offices. The gardeners will have a task wiping evidences of the dust and wind from the capitol grounds. The place looked like picnic grounds after a gala day.

Now it is assured that things will be more quiet at the capitol the remainder of the week. Governor Meier announced he would leave before noon for Portland where he has a noon sailing and also one at Oregon City. He expects to be absent from his offices here until next Monday.

Hal E. Hoss, who holds the spotlight in the penitentiary hearing was in Portland most of the day yesterday, concluding any chance of the board of control to vote on the dismissal of Superintendent Henry Meyers. It is expected final action will be taken early today. The governor notified the secretary of the board he would be in his office until 10:45 a. m.

Brigadier-General Thomas Rilea, although still weak and far from being back to normalcy, was in his office today after an absence of a week or longer because of serious illness. Rilea stated this was the first time he had been ill in more than ten years.

Members of the Oregon Senate, D. C. early this month. His idea would be to have the federal government divert a sufficient sum from its sale of the Oregon and California land grant properties to provide a new capitol building. Bush's pasture here has been suggested as a proper location for the new structure.

preme court will leave May 4 for Pendleton to hear appeal cases there. Just who or what department will go has not been definitely determined. Yesterday the court heard three cases, clearing up most of the docket prior to the Pendleton term.

Now the state may have a recall to vote upon. It has been some time since such an issue was voted upon by the people, and if reported plans materialize, it appears it will be a double one. Statehouse reports say the recall is to be directed against Secretary of State Hoss and Treasurer Tom Kay.

The governor sent a check for $27 to the state treasurer late yesterday for gifts presented to him by different departments as well as for having his car washed at the state penitentiary. What is more he ordered the giving of "gifts" of this kind to be stopped.

'SKIPS' TOPIC AT CREDIT MEETING

"Skips and how to locate them" was the subject of a talk given by Roy Wassam before the Salem Retail Credit association at the regular weekly luncheon meeting at the Gray Belle. Mr. Wassam explained how the nationally organized service aids business men in locating individuals who leave accounts but no address when they move from one town to another.

E. V. Patterson, chairman of the On to Spokane committee, reported on the work being done to get local delegates to attend the northwest conference which is to be held in Spokane in May.

PAGEANT CAST NOW SELECTED

STAYTON P. T. A. ELECT GROUP

Program Enjoyed by Parents and School Patrons

STAYTON, April 22 — At the P. T. A. meeting Monday evening the following officers were elected: President, H. J. Rowe; vice president, Mrs. Florence Adams; secretary, Mrs. G. F. Korinek; and treasurer, Miss Ireland. Floyd Crabtree of the finance committee reported that in the neighborhood of $23 was realized from the cooked food sale and part of this had already been spent on play equipment.

Two numbers by the girls glee club and two numbers by the home economics girls were very much appreciated.

Dr. Prill of Seio was the speaker of the evening, accompanying his talk with pictures of birds taken by him on and around the Klamath lakes and marshes and also in the Harlam and Hart lake country in northeastern Oregon, near the Nevada line. The pictures and talk proved very interesting.

Four-H club members who are under the leadership of Mrs. A. Foster displayed samples of their cooking.

Williams Store System Central Office in Salem

The Salem Williams Self-Service store is to become the headquarters store for the units of the chain in Oregon. S. M. Delephine of The Dalles will take charge of the Salem store and J. E. Hayward, present manager, will take charge of the Eugene store. Goods will be warehoused in the basement of the local store and sent out to other units of the organization.

STALLARD WOULD DEBATE ON OLEO

H. H. Stallard of Portland has challenged Charles C. Hewitt of Albany, master of the state senate, to a debate on the oleomargarine bill passed by the legislature. Stallard opposes the legislation.

"I have received many personal insults from members of the senate and other friends of the farming interests since circulating a petition for a referendum on the oleomargarine bill," Stallard writes Hewitt in a letter sent him this week. "I am democratic enough to think that public questions of this size should be discussed where both sides can be heard."

PERRY H. BURTON'S FUNERAL IS TODAY

Funeral for Perry H. Burton, 67, former Salem building contractor, who died at Los Angeles Friday, will be held this morning at 10:30 o'clock from Salem Mortuary, 545 North Capitol street. Interment will be in Belcrest Memorial park.

Burton was in the contracting business here for 16 years, up to five years ago when he went to Honolulu to supervise construction for the United States government. He returned to Salem last fall, then went to Los Angeles to spend the winter. Although he had suffered from heart trouble, cause of his death was acute indigestion, according to word received here.

He was born in Cleveland, O., and lived mostly in the middle west until he came to Salem.

The following relatives survive him: sons, H. L. and Robert Burton; a daughter, Mrs. Joe McFarland, all of Salem; two daughters, Mrs. C. H. Shields of John Dav. and Miss Beatrice Burton of Bellingham, Wash.
