At plunging their heroines into all sorts of unhappy situations and his heart. curious escapades, but there was always rescue just ahead, and even a Prince Charming. Not that she cared much about princes except Larry, who was a very modern sort of prince. Clara spoke of him now.

"Larry Mitchell thinks we're brutes to go off and leave you!" she commented. "Did he say so?" asked Mary Lou, bristling in instant defense

"Well, no, hardly that," conceded Clara, laughing, "but-I 285.00 could tell. He's awfully fond of

She broke off abruptly. Unsuitable as a marriage between Mary Lou and Larry Mitchell had seemed to her in less overwrought times, and still seemed, deep in her heart, she could not help wondering for one wild moment if, after all, such a solution would not be the best and safest thing for Mary Lou under the present topsy-turvy circumstances. She opened her firm, red meuth to say something and shut it again, irresolute But Mary Lou, with the almost psychic sense she had at times, and a very disconcerting sense she often found it, forestalled her by reading her thoughts neatly and accurately. "And I'm awfully fond of him" she told Clara quickly, "but, oh, I know what you're thinking. It—

"I know," said Clara and sighed a little. "But he'll look after me,

Mary Lou assured her. "He's go-ing to help me get a job." Arriving at Oakdale they en-gaged the lone and rickety taxi taxi and drove to Grandma Jennings en, actually, Applelane street, the car sobbing and snorting couvul-sively, much to Bilty's amuse-

The Jennings homestead, to which Mrs. Jennings had come as a bride, in which Adelaide and Clara and the vanished others had been born, was set far back from the quiet street, in a garden which in summer was a tangle of color, a riot of bloom, a giory of sunlight and fragrance. Even now, in mid-October, a few gal-lant dahlias and glowing zinnias. stood bravely and on a large Jacqueminot rosebush the dark red blossoms bloomed undaunted.

The house was white with handmade shingles, the shutters a faded blue-green, that charming, mellow color. And Grandma Jennings was standing at the picket gate in her Sunday stiff black silk and her best apron. She Building, Salem, Oregon, at 11 was a little woman, with snap- A.
