Long experience and unusual manufacturing facilities are reflected in the value of the Ford car today

Where the first Ford was made

THE Ford Motor Company was organized in 1903, but the idea of the car originated many years before that.

As far back as 1890, 1891 and 1892, Mr. Ford was working far into the night on what was then called a horseless carriage or a gasoline buggy. "It first began to run satisfactorily," he recalls, "in the spring of 1893. I was running it when the bobolinks came to Detroit and they always came on April 2nd."

This gasoline buggy was the first and for a long time the only automobile in Detroit. Interest was so great that it became necessary to chain the car to a lamp-post to prevent curious people from driving it away.

accelerated the pace and progress of this country and contributed to its growth.

Those who write the record of the past quarter of a century agree that the coming of the lowpriced automobile changed our whole manner of living - of thinking - of doing!

Coincident with greater and greater demand for the Ford was the building of a vast industrial organization for its manufacture. The small brick shop became a series of plants covering thousands of acres, in every part of the world. The fruits of larger production are improved quality and craftsmanship, lower costs to the public, higher wages to the worker, and an industrial "back-log" of great value to the nation.

The Ford car of today is better because of the experience gained in making the millions of Ford cars and trucks that have preceded it. There is no substitute for time and experience. Ford materials and Ford methods are the product of both. The Ford name is built upon them. Today's Ford car, in everything that goes to make a good automobile, is unquestionably the greatest value in the history of the company.
