Well Folks Here's the Season's Best Wise Crack up to and Including May Day

And it reminds us of an incident that happened to us once when we lived on the farm. We were sent out to round up a certain cow of the male gender that had jumped the fence into our pasture. We couldn't get in front of 'im, so we grabs hold of this particular cow's tail. Holy smoke! How that critter did take us around that field, and when we (the cow and us) passed by where the owner was sittin' on the fence the dog-gone skinflint yelled at us and said: "Hey there, boy, where ye takin' my cow to?"

NOW HERE'S THE WISE CRACK

referred to that reminded us of the incident related above. One of our customers, in doin' a little checkin' up the other day, dropped into one of the big Wall Street chains and asked the price of a certain item. The clerk told her the price. She said, "Well, Busick's sell that for 10c less than you're a skin".

HUH, HE SAID, THEM?

"Say, we'll have them outa business in less'n a year." We saw right away he had said the wrong thing to the lady, so we didn't stay to hear what the lady told the clerk, but we can imagine she answered something like this:

NOW SEE HERE, WISE BOY —

"Those people don't claim to be the all-powerful, not by a jugful, but," she said, "ring this one on your cash register—They have the confidence of the people hereabouts, and the people know that whenever they go to a Busick store they get the best that they can give, and that goes for every day of the week, and not just Saturday morning! And don't forget, either, the public is the one to consider when you make a crack like that."
