INTELLIGENCE EYED WITH MURDER RATE

Inverse Correlation Found By Prof. Laughlin in Sections of U. S.

Correlation between the psychological-intelligence ratios of college freshmen and homicide rates in the United States were outlined recently by Dr. S. B. Laughlin of Willamette university's sociology department.

The section of the country showing the highest psychological standards, the New England group, also shows the lowest homicide rate and the old south has the opposite figures.

The psychological tests were given to 136 colleges; the highest possible score was 370. The tests were made of over 35,000 college freshmen in the fall of 1930.

The median figure for 40 tax supported institutions was 128 while the median for 90 private schools, colleges and universities was 137.

The following table shows the results for the sections in the United States including the number of colleges, the median scores, and the murder rate per 100,000 population:

Eleven New England colleges, median 173.10 (139 lowest score for one college); murder rate for the geographic section—1.93.

Twenty Central Atlantic, median, 141.07; murder rate—5.50.

Nine Pacific colleges, median, 140.00 (Willamette university median, 149.35); murder rate—5.03.

Five Rocky mountain state colleges, median, 136.51; murder rate—7.45.

Forty-seven Mississippi valley colleges, median, 134.23; murder rate—4.53.

Forty-four Southern colleges, median, 120.00; murder rate—14.83.

The murder rate for the United States per 100,000 population was 10. The three Pacific coast states ranked—Oregon 3.97; Washington 5.03; and California 8.70.

The state that had the most murders in comparison with its population was Florida with 38.23 and the state with the least was Vermont with 1.17. All murder rate figures were for the years 1924, 1925 and 1926.

During the meeting women are to be guests of the club members and after adjournment, their escorts will take them to the dance. Proceeds of the dance will go to entertain a caravan of Elks coming north to the Searle convention next July. Moneys from the dance will also be used to send the Salem Elks' band to Seattle.
