BLANKS SENT OUT FOR STATE TAXES

Combined forms for making tax returns and personal income tax returns have been mailed out by the state tax commission, but failure to receive a blank will not excuse any taxpayer from filing a return. Returns are due on or before June 15. The forms are to be used for reporting individual incomes from all sources, including interest, dividends, salaries, wages, rents, earnings from business or profession, or profit on the sale of property. Individuals who receive no interest or dividends must file a return if their net income exceeds $1500, if single, or $2500 if married. Individuals who receive their entire income from interest and dividends must file a return if their gross income exceeds $500, if single, or $800, if married.

"Know Oregon" Luncheon Brings Variety of Gifts to Convention Guests Here

"The cleverest thing that has ever been staged in Salem" was the verdict regarding the "Know Your Oregon" luncheon held in the Masonic temple on Saturday as part of the annual convention of the Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs. Miss Dora Sexton of The Dalles, state forward chairman, presided and each club presented a stunt or gift to the products and resources of the community represented. Klamath Falls presented glassine bags of potato chips made of the famous Klamath Falls potatoes. Portland presented each guest with a rosebush and showed the crown of Rosaria which was purchased by the Portland B. P. W. C. club. Coos Bay presented small packets of seed of its famous Port Orford cedar and slices of its "Mel-lor-st" cheese. Oregon City advertised their paper and woolen mills with a clever stunt given by girls in paper costumes. Eugene presented each guest with a packet of the famous Eugene filberts. Gresham advertised raspberries. Hillsboro responded with "Raspberry, you raise 'em and we can 'em" and elaborated on the fruit and milk canneries at Hillsboro, then presented small cans of the milk. Roseburg's prizes were presented to the guests in neat packets and a tiny girl in a purple and green costume gave a short dance number. Grants Pass presented

"Glad" bulbs of the Virginia variety. The Dalles lauded the merits of the flour made there and girls in costume made of flour sacks presented small bags of flour to each guest. McMinnville claimed the honor of being the "Walnut City of Oregon" and presented salted walnuts to the guests. Girls in Indian costume advertised the pageant "Red Pioneers" which this club is sponsoring and Miss Dora Ward sang two Indian songs, accompanied by Miss Esther Smith. Heppner advertised the wool and lambs which are an important crop in that district. Bend presented small trays of juniper wood and Mrs. Florence Silvis did a clever musical talk inviting the guests to enjoy the scenic attractions of the Bend district. Astoria presented jars of a mayonnaise dressing manufactured there and told of the wonders of Columbia river salmon. Pendleton invited all to the Roundup and presented a gift of a small leather case to the holder of the lucky number. Salem appeared as the "Cherry City" and Miss Rosalie Numbbaum sang "Dream Boy of Salem High" and gave a short tap dance.

Single persons who receive interest and dividends and income from other sources must file a return if their net income from all sources exceeds $1000, or they must file if the gross interest and dividends exceed $500. Married persons who receive interest and dividends and income from other sources are required to file a return if their combined net income from all sources exceeds $1700, or they must file if their gross interest and dividends exceed $800.

BATTLE ON POLICE LAW NEAR CLIMAX

(Continued from page 1) dum court approval, friends of the game group, launched a friendly suit through Chris Kowitz who yesterday filed his suit papers with the supreme court. Thursday Morning Date For Hearing Countering Custer Ross, attorney for McDonald, said he would raise more points against the ballot title than Kowitz proposes, when his own client's position is filed tomorrow. Ross wanted to hold off a hearing before the supreme court until late in the week but Kowitz demurred and the court set Tuesday morning as the time for hearing the arguments pro and con on the referendum ballot title prepared by Attorney General Van Winkle. It is understood that the supreme court will hurry its decision in the matter, probably handing down an opinion Wednesday. This will leave the referendum petitioned nine days to get 10,000 signatures provided the supreme court holds the ballot title valid. Avery has stated in Portland that he thinks only three days will be necessary to get the needed signatures. This will provide adequate time for checking the signers since only names of property owners are acceptable. The Multnomah county clerk allows the referendum seekers to provide their own deputies to check the names against records in his office. Kowitz said yesterday that some petitions were already circulated in Portland although these may not be of any avail if the ballot title being used is declared invalid. A number of people have asked him to be allowed to circulate petitions against the state constabulary, Kowitz declared.

Earlier in the day the general drank from the "bucket of blood" and gawped raw meat to qualify for membership in the Grants Pass Cavemen. The Cavemen men, clad in crudely made fur garments and followed by their Cave women, similarly attired, met the train that brought the marine leader here and escorted him to the chamber of commerce building for the initiation.

STEIWER TO SPEAK AT CHAMBER MEET

U. S. Senator is Native of This County; National Outlook is Topic

Marion county's own senator, the Hon. Frederick Steiwer, will be guest of honor and speaker Monday noon at the Salem chamber of commerce. Senator Steiwer's topic will be "Oregon's Situation at the National Capitol." The senator has been home for nearly a month since congress adjourned and has made numerous appearances throughout the state. Steiwer was born in Marion county on the Steiwer farm 15 miles south of Salem and near Jefferson. He attended the Lookey Butte school and later studied at the University of Oregon where he received a degree in law as well as in liberal arts. He was admitted to the bar in 1908. Senator Steiwer also studied for a part of his undergraduate period at Oregon State college. Steiwer later practiced law at Pendleton and while there was elected state senator and served one term. During the war he served in the army one and one-half years. He was elected United States senator in November, 1926, defeating Bert Haney of Portland in the general election and a large field of contestants in the primaries including Colonel Alfred E. Clark and Senator Robert N. Stanfield.

PEOPLE... who are news (Continued from page 1) questions, usually closes with an invitation to stay for lunch with one of the executive staff and to "be sure to come again." Sometimes it is an invitation to inspect the early American village, his real hobby. He has spent many millions on this "village," and many more are to be expended before the collection of historical buildings and objects of early American life is completed. Of slender, wiry physique, Ford, nearing his 68th birthday, frequently demonstrates his agility and vigor by "climbing" himself to a tree limb or by snapping a leg two or three times over the back of a high chair. His keen eyes twinkle as he remarks: "I feel pretty good." He never worries.

MAY CONSOLIDATE PRINTING PLANTS

State Shops at Corvallis and Eugene Possibly To Come to Salem

Feasibility of consolidation of printing plants now operated by the University of Oregon and Oregon State college with the state printing department in Salem is to be investigated by Rufus H. Holman, state treasurer, and member of the state board of control, according to announcement made Saturday. Mr. Holman said he already had discussed the proposal with persons connected with the college and the state printing department. Although the investigation has not proceeded beyond the preliminary stage, Mr. Holman declared that such a consolidation might save the taxpayers of Oregon a large amount of money. In event the consolidation should be approved by the state board of control, sufficient printing equipment probably would be left at the university for the printing of the student newspaper. The publication of this newspaper is a part of the practical instruction received by students in the department of journalism. Arthur Brock, foreman of the state printing plant, is assembling a large amount of data dealing with printing costs, which will be placed in the hands of Mr. Holman early next week. Statements showing the costs of operating the university and state college printing plants also will be filed with Mr. Holman, according to present plans. In case the consolidation is found to be feasible, Holman said he would ask approval of the proposal by the board of control. Most of the equipment in the Corvallis and Eugene plants would be moved to Salem and merged with that in the state printing office.

In Off Hours Personalities and Events at Convention of Oregon B. & P. W. Clubs

"She is the double of Mrs. Herbert Hoover" was the opinion of those who saw Mrs. Jane Oglo, national field secretary. Her quiet smile, calm grey eyes and poised manner were indeed suggestive of the first lady of the land. "If these women told all they knew it would start a riot and a revolution," declared Hal Hoss. At any rate delegates to the state B. P. W. C. convention were welcomed to the capital city in a cordial manner by the secretary of state and the welcome was couched in such a manner as to bring many a hearty laugh. "Call a day to move our presents to the hotel" was the plea of those delegates who attended the Know Your Oregon luncheon on Saturday. At least one souvenir and often several were presented by each of the 22 clubs in the state.

Everyone represented a product of the town from which the club presenting it came. Strictly according to Roberts was the rule of the business sessions of the annual convention of the B. P. W. C. The efficient work of Miss Grace Elizabeth Smith, of Salem, state parliamentarian, received much praise, as did the work of Miss Martha Gasch, state president. The matter of a national headquarters building was disposed of in short order when it was unanimously voted to favor a club house somewhere in the middle west at some future time but not immediately. A note of sadness crept into the meeting when it was voted to send a message of condolence to Mrs. Alice Maloney formerly of Marshfield whose husband recently passed away.

Popeye is the principal character in Thimble Theatre, the funniest yet! He's seen here with Olive Oyl, his sweetie, and with Casper.

Two colors! This service in the Sunday comics is afforded Statesman readers by the modern printing facilities in The Statesman's plant.

Toots and Casper, their dog and their baby, all bring a dally laugh. You'll want to see them Sunday, too, look in the new comic section of The Statesman.

Announcement... Extraordinary!

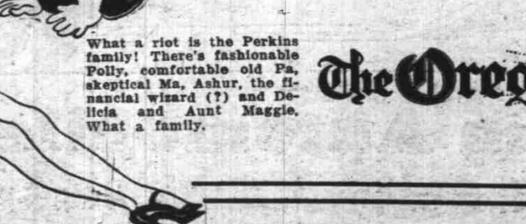

THE STATESMAN is pleased today to announce the greatest single improvement to its feature service in the last three years—a four-page, two-color Sunday comic section. The first release will begin next Sunday, May 31!

This popular addition to the paper is in line with The Statesman's policy of a consistently better newspaper. In producing the Sunday comic, those characters who have become known to Statesman readers through years of acquaintance will be carried along, with two additions which are sure to prove popular.

Polly and Her Pals will go on with their ever-interesting adventures, as will Toots and Casper, their baby and their dog. Then the redoubtable Popeye, who has risen to national attention faster than Bobby Jones or Will Rogers, will be seen each Sunday as well as each publication day of the week. As a splendid comic feature for the kiddies, "Elmer" is to be added on Sunday to the family of The Statesman.

These comics, prepared in the stereotype rooms of The Statesman and printed on the paper's own large, two-color press, mark the very finest work of America's best artists. The same characters afforded to millions of readers of large metropolitan papers on Sunday will be brought to Salem through The Statesman.

This service is available without extra charge to Statesman readers. Remember, The Statesman is Salem's only Sunday paper. If you don't take it regularly you'll be wise to subscribe now.

What a riot is the Perkins family! There's fashionable Polly, comfortable old Pa, skeptical Ma, Ashur, the financial wizard (?) and Delella and Aunt Maggie. What a family.

ELMER is the boy you used to know—full of life, mischievous, impatient of school, gifted in boy craft. He'll be a tonic for you as you follow his antics in The Statesman.

His dad is the sort you know, a village merchant, set in his ways, dignified in his business and in his home; How he sometimes shows a sense of humor but usually he rules with the old rod.

Ma, too, has a slipper, and sometimes Elmer receives it but she's a character to watch. All in all this new comic will be one Statesman readers will welcome to the funnies already printed by this paper.
