

RELJIC PAROLE UNDER ATTACK

Habeas Corpus Complaint Is Filed; In-and-out Record Noted

Habeas corpus proceedings attacking the validity of a parole issued by ex-Governor Norblad to Mariene Reljic, better known in Portland as Mike Relish, were filed in the Marion county circuit court Monday. The writ was made returnable June 2. James Lewis, superintendent of the state penitentiary, was named as defendant in the action.

Reljic was arrested in Portland in January, 1930, charged with operating a still, and upon conviction in the municipal court, was fined $500 and sentenced to a term of 180 days in the city jail.

Two days later, when Reljic was presumed to be in jail, he was found operating another still, and was haled into the circuit court. He was convicted on the latter charge and on March 1 was sentenced to serve a year in the state penitentiary.

Deportation Once Denied by Court

As a result of his second arrest Mayor Baker launched an investigation of the municipal police department, and called Chief of Police Jenkins on the carpet. Mayor Baker sought to determine why Reljic was operating the second still, when he was supposed to be serving a term in the municipal jail. Early in August ex-Governor Norblad issued a parole to Reljic with the understanding that he would be deported.

Attack was then made upon the parole in the United States district court in Portland, in an effort to halt the deportation. The federal court held in favor of Reljic, and he was released.

At the conclusion of this proceeding Reljic was taken in custody by the Portland officers and committed to the municipal jail to serve out his term of 180 days and the fine of $500. Reljic was released from the Portland jail in September. He then was transferred to the penitentiary to serve out his unexpired term of one year. Reljic completed his prison term in March of this year.

Attorneys Littlefield and Helgeson, representing Reljic, contend that the parole is void.

DAMAGE SUIT OVER OPERATION STARTS

The largest damage action before a circuit judge here in some time got under way yesterday morning, with Judge L. H. McCallum hearing testimony in the suit brought against Dr. H. C. Hummels by R. F. Polanski, who asks total of $65,635.

Polanski presented five of his eight or 10 witnesses yesterday, and at the rate progress was made it looks as though the case will go longer than the two days scheduled for it. Plaintiff alleges that Hummels operated upon him without his consent, that he performed a second operation without consulting Polanski and that he was negligent in preparing the patient for the operation.

Hummels will contend that the operation was an emergency one to save the patient's life.

The operation was performed about August 20, 1930, and as result of it Polanski alleges he received several disabilities.

Doctor's 3 RULES Big Help to Bowels

What a joy to have the bowels move like clockwork, every day! It's easy, if you mind these simple rules of a famous old doctor:

1. Drink a tumblerful of water before breakfast, and several times a day.
2. Get plenty of outdoor exercise without unduly fatiguing yourself.
3. Try for a bowel movement at exactly the same hour every day.

Everyone's bowels need help at times, but the thing to use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You'll get a thorough cleaning-out, and it won't leave your insides weak and watery. This family doctor's prescription is just fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other helpful ingredients that couldn't hurt a child. But how it wakes up those lazy bowels! How good you feel with your system rid of all that poisonous waste matter.

Clean up that coated tongue, sweeten that bad breath, and get rid of those bilious headaches. A little Syrup Pepsin will soon free the bowels from all that waste matter that makes the whole system sluggish. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better.

You'll like the way Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin tastes. The way it works will delight you. Big bottles—all drugstores.

KLAMATH FALLS TO GET 1932 MEETING

Business and Professional Women end Convention Here on Sunday

The 1932 convention of the Oregon Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs will be held in Klamath Falls, according to a decision of the executive board which met in post convention session on Sunday. Both Klamath Falls and Coquille had extended invitations for the meeting.

Selection of committee heads from members of the board of directors was made by the new executive council as follows: Education, Mrs. Harriett Underwood, Eugene; publicity, Miss Adah Albert, Portland; Emblem, Mrs. Alice Crabtree, McMinnville; finance, Mrs. Emma Broderick, Bend; program, Mrs. Leona Bryant, Coquille; public relations, Mrs. Alice Coppin, Medford; membership, Mrs. Belle Gould, Coquille; legislation, Miss Jane Olsen, Pendleton; forward, Miss Dora Sexton, The Dalles; extension, Miss Ellen Rudnas, Marshfield.

The post convention session was held after the Emblem breakfast at Hazel Green park on Sunday morning. At this time the Emblem pageant was given by members of the Salem club assisted by Mrs. Belle Gould of Coquille, state emblem chairman. Special music was furnished by William Wright, tenor of Salem accompanied by Professor Frank Churchill, and by the Portland club chorus directed by Madame Freida Stjerna. By special request Madame Stjerna sang an aria from the Messiah. Dr. W. C. Kantner of Salem delivered the address of the morning and Miss Ellen Rudnas, state extension chairman, presided.

JOHN KONRAD DIES OF CRASH INJURIES

Death won in contest with John Konrad, 78, who received serious head and neck injuries when he walked into side of a fire truck at corner of State and Winter streets Tuesday night. The aged man died Monday morning at Deaconess hospital, after nearly a week's efforts by a and neck injuries from proving fatal. At time of the accident it was thought Konrad would live. Driver of the small chemical truck was exonerated by witnesses, who said he tried to avoid striking Konrad, but that the elderly man, who was blind in one eye, apparently became confused and walked directly into side of the truck. Konrad is survived by one son, Jack of Yamhill. Funeral will be held at 10:00 o'clock this morning from Salem mortuary.

HIGHER EDUCATION BOARD WILL MEET

The state board of higher education will hold a meeting in Portland Wednesday, when a joint report will be received from President Hall of the University of Oregon and President Kerr of the Oregon State college, outlining possible financial retrenchments in the conduct of the two institutions.

The joint report will be based largely upon recommendations contained in the recent survey of Oregon's higher educational institutions by the federal department of education. This survey has been before the board for the past two months. Presidents Kerr and Hall also will present a statement to the board showing the printing costs of the two institutions.

Power Hearing Set, Wednesday

Hearing in connection with the rates, service and practices of the Eastern Oregon Light and Power company, has been set for Wednesday before C. M. Thomas, public utilities commissioner. Virtually two days will be required to take the testimony. Investigation of the rates of the company was launched on motion of the utilities commissioner.

Selling OREGON to the World

Ways to warm up and keep cool.
In hot countries, linen is favored because it keeps the wearer cool. Northerners find wool an effective protection against extreme cold. Highly essential commodities these—and two Oregon towns furnish them in abundance.

They keep you cool at Salem.
Salem, Willamette valley city, is the center of the long fiber flax industry of the United States. Here flax acreage and mills boost Oregon's annual income $944,000. 5,200 acres grow 11,000 tons of flax equal in quality to that of Ireland and Belgium, with 194,500 acres still available for flax cultivation.

At Salem the state owns the largest, best equipped flax plant in the United States—probably the largest in the world. Great modern mills, manufacturing salmon twine and fish nets, sack sewing twine and shoe thread, make Salem the the annual wool clip tips the scales at 18,849,000 pounds.

"Have you any wool?"

Coals to Newcastle
Mills of the world look to Oregon to keep their wheels spinning. 60 per cent of the flax fiber is exported to eastern, European, even to Irish mills. Oregon's export wool clip with that of Idaho totals 27,000,000 pounds. These with other Oregon products reach the world thru

To Burns for a warm reception
Across the Cascades is Burns, center of Oregon's wool industry, which annually pours over six million dollars into the pockets of Oregon residents. Thanks to abundant grazing land, ideal climate and a long grazing season, Oregon sheep break all records for wool production with an average of 9 pounds each...

GUARDIAN is a friendly institution

GUARDIAN—The Modern Minute Man—TECTS YOUR SAVINGS, BUILDS YOUR HOME

At the end of 1930 there were nearly 2½ times as many Guardian depositors as at the beginning of the year. Guardian's growth is a most convincing testimonial to the friendliness of its management, and to the service it renders in protecting savings of Oregonians and helping build a greater state.

Here indeed is a safe place for your savings—an institution from which you receive good returns and in which you have a high degree of availability consistent with safety.

Now 6% and 5%

For accounts opened NOW the Guardian will pay you 6% and 5%, dependent upon plan you select. After July 1st, however, the rate will be from 5½% to 4½%. Look up the Guardian office nearest you today. Or, if more convenient, write; many people conduct their savings with us entirely by mail.

SOME day experts believe the linen center of the world will shift to the Willamette valley. But first, the world must know of Oregon's flax industry. The May 25th issue of TIME does tell over 300,000 business and professional leaders throughout the United States and Europe about Oregon flax. Here is the keenly interesting, timely story. It will enlist interest—will pave the way for generous support and co-operation in the development of the flax industry and in so doing will help materially to swell the wealth and revenue of Oregon as a whole.
