CAPONE FACES HEAVY CHARGE

Five Thousand Violations Of Prohibition law Alleged by U. S.

CHICAGO, June 12—(AP)—"Scarface Al" Capone, America's most notorious gangster, and 68 of his henchmen were indicted by a federal grand jury today on 5,000 charges of violation of the prohibition laws.

A recent conviction for contempt of the federal court and an indictment on income tax evasion charges paved the way for the government's challenge of Capone's gigantic syndicate to make and market beer for the Chicago metropolitan area. On this business Capone founded his authority for leadership of Chicago gangs, a position he still holds unchallenged.

The federal indictment charged Capone and his allies with manufacturing and transporting beer continuously since the national prohibition law became effective in 1920.

New Aliases are Brought Forth

District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson pried behind the days of Capone's opulence in obtaining information for the indictment, going back to his early operations here as "Al Brown" and uncovering aliases new in a city which has followed Capone's career of crime for years.

"The United States against Alphonse Capone, otherwise called Al Brown, A. Costa, Albert Costa, Frank Ross, John Brown, Snorky Capone, Frank Hart and Louis Hart", the indictment read. Then followed the names of the other three score defendants.

Noticeably absent were the names and aliases of Capone's trusted lieutenants, his brother Ralph, Sam and Jack Guzik, appealing from income tax convictions, and Frank Nitti, the "enforcer", serving a penitentiary term for a similar offense.

Concentrates on Liquor Violations

Johnson, said today's indictment, dealt mainly with the beer interests of Capone's organization rather than with the gambling, vice and labor racket branches. It named Joseph Fusco as Capone's beer boss. Ralph Capone, Johnson said, was interested mainly in the gambling operations and at any rate he is already under indictment on liquor conspiracy charges in connection with the Cotton club and the Mont Martre cafes in Cicero, stronghold of the gang.

The indictment was returned before Federal Judge John P. Barnes who issued the warrant for Capone's arrest last week on income tax violation charges. The $50,000 bond Capone posted last Friday was allowed to stand for today's action. Many of the other defendants had scheduled bonds of between $2,500 and $10,000 for previous arrests in connection with seizures of stills and breweries.

The government cited 19 overt acts. It must prove at least one to obtain a conviction. Johnson, asked if he had a good case, replied "Well, we never indict unless we have one."

CONTRACT LET FOR W. STAYTON SCHOOL

Contract for construction of the new four-room school house at West Stayton was let yesterday to J. A. Thomsen of Alsea, low bidder of the nine who submitted figures. Bids were opened at West Stayton yesterday. Thomsen submitted bid of $7,535.

Construction of the work will be started within a short time, or as soon as the present outgrown structure is torn down. The building will be completed before opening of school in September.

The new structure, only three class rooms of which will be completed now, was designed by F. A. Struble, Salem architect. It will be a colonial type building, with pumping system, modern plumbing, septic tank, wired for electricity and with full basement.

Plans include provision for converting two of the classrooms into a large assembly room when occasion demands.

Members of the West Stayton school board are: R. O. Royse, chairman, B. H. Chamberlain, F. W. Dickman, directors, and Leonard Walker, clerk.

PSYCHOLOGY TO AID LAW, WORD

Principles of Behavior are Valuable Knowledge in Courts Says Savant

EUGENE, Ore., June 12.—(AP)—Psychologists soon will be able to make important contributions to the work of the courts of justice, Dr. J. F. Dashiell, University of North Carolina, told the Western Psychological association which convened here today for a two-day session.

Psychologists from all sections of the Pacific coast and from many points in the east, attended the opening meeting.

Dr. Dashiell said a knowledge of how people act under certain circumstances and the ability to interpret such actions are of greater importance in the courts than anywhere else. He said many jurists are favorable to the application of psychology to their work and that soon psychology and the law will go hand in hand.

Courts to Provide Field for Study

The courts also provide the most fertile field for a study of the science, he said. Already much progress has been made in the field of lie detection and juvenile delinquency, he said.

Dr. R. C. Tryon, University of California, attacked the Spearman theory that intelligence is a single thing. He asserted intelligence is a chance hodge-podge of many factors.

Normal children sometimes have difficulty in learning to read, Dr. Frances I. Gaw, of the Seattle public schools, told the association. She described tests made in Seattle in which normal children who found reading difficult were helped through individual instruction.

Homing Pigeons' Ability is Topic

R. H. Gundlach, University of Washington, discussed the ability of homing pigeons to find their way home. He said among the outstanding theories were that the birds have a magnetic sensibility, that they can actually see their goal, or that they have a remarkable memory.

Dr. C. B. Herington, University of Washington, discussed intelligence tests conducted with guinea pigs. Paul R. Farsworth, Stanford, described music tests, while Ivan McCollom, University of Oregon, discussed true-false examinations.

Other speakers included Stevenson Smith, Washington, D. C.; J. C. Trainer, Oregon; F. C. Davis, California; Dr. P. E. Fields, Stanford; H. S. Conrad, California; Dr. C. P. Stone, Maude A. Merrill, C. Ray Carpenter and C. McNemar, all of Stanford.
