

Local News Briefs

Seeks Postponement—Asserting that hearing of divorce suit on time set, June 15, would cause him to lose his job, Harold G. Sammons yesterday filed motion and affidavit seeking postponement of trial until October. May Sammons is plaintiff. Sammons says in affidavit that the job and a federal pension are only means by which he can support himself. He is now working on a 12-hour shift on a road job and that the work will continue until middle of September. Should he be called to attend trial, he would lose his position, in all probability, he says.

Power Goes East—Dr. Kenneth Power left last night by auto for Appleton, Wisconsin, where he will join Mrs. Power who has been visiting her parents there for the last two weeks. PRINTING PLANT MOVE IS LEGAL

Law Will Permit Consolidation Here, Ruling of Attorney General

No legal objections will stand in the way of consolidation of state-owned printing offices now being conducted in connection with the state printing plant in Salem, according to an opinion handed down here Saturday by Attorney General Van Wick.

"If the board of control finds it advantageous, and for any reason within its discretion, deems it advisable to have the printing of the educational institutions done at the state printing plant, the language of the statute creating the state printing board and establishing the state printing plant at Salem, is sufficiently broad to authorize such printing for the institutions in the last mentioned plant," read the attorney general's opinion.

The opinion was requested by Rufus C. Holman, state treasurer, and member of the state board of control. Holman has been conducting an investigation to determine whether the proposed consolidation of state-owned printing plants would prove economical, and at the same time maintain present efficiency of the printing departments.

Widows of Vets Given Exemption

Another opinion by the attorney general held that the Oregon law, as amended by the 1929 legislature, extends the exemption from taxation of property not to exceed $1000, to all widows of world war veterans as well as to the veterans of the other wars specifically mentioned in the act.

In connection with this opinion, Attorney General Van Wick answered two questions in the negative. These follow:

"Does the amendment extend the exemption only to those widows of world war veterans who had a disability rating of 40 per cent or more?"

"Does the exemption extend no exemption at all to widows of world war veterans?"

Under the Dome...

Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

MAX GEHLHAR has under consideration a plan for the state fair grounds during the summer months which should prove popular here. An amusement canal, serving the double purpose of fire protection and of an amusement park in his plan, and which is being investigated at the present time.

The state fair is approaching, and if plans now being outlined by the advisory committee are developed, the fair will be more popular this year than ever, and in addition to the annual exhibition of state products, new amusement features will be offered. More and better ground entertainment has been the need for some years.

Gehlhar was at Corvallis yesterday afternoon where he addressed the 4-H club members. Since his appointment as director of the new department of agriculture, Gehlhar has been busy, in fact so much so that he will be unable to attend the national meet of directors at Cheyenne, Wyo., June 20. The department becomes operative the first of the month.

The 1930 depositors of the Aurora State bank and the State Bank of Hubbard yesterday received 25 and 80 per cent dividends in the liquidation of those two banks in this section. They were both closed early in February. Checks amounting to more than $108,773 were mailed out in addition to secured claims in the same ratio.

Marion county's school superintendent, Mrs. Mary L. Fulkerson, was appointed to the state text book commission yesterday by the state board of education. She, with the other four members, including R. R. Turner of Dallas, who was reappointed, will select books and aid in the course of study system.

Hal E. Hoss, who was on the job here all day Saturday, replied to the governor's statement that $22,000 could be saved in janitor service at the state capitol in two years by securing the services of a certain cleaning company. Hoss compared the figures and announced a $9,000 loss rather than a saving, if the plan would be adopted.

One million dollars for an unemployment fund to be allocated by the state highway department, was requested by Governor Meier of H. B. Van Duser, chairman of the highway commission. The fund should be allocated and plans made for its use next fall to aid in the labor situation, Meier urged.

James Mott, state corporation commissioner, who is the subject of a series of attacks made by the Sunday Mercury, Portland publication, published in "extras", is expected back here Monday. He has been absent most of the past week, at Astoria and Portland, in connection with business of his office.

Planes, landing on ocean beaches, are doing so contrary to law, Hoss pointed out, since no permits have as yet been issued. The new law requiring permits by the state highway commission.

The attorney general held that the state treasurer is authorized to accept surety bonds as security for deposits in active state depositories.

Another opinion by the attorney general held that the state superintendent of public instruction is personally responsible for all funds paid to him, and he is not authorized to transfer the said funds to any person other than the state treasurer. The superintendent of public instruction is not required to give a bond under the law.

This opinion was requested by C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction.

NORTON, VICTIM OF CRASH DIES FRIDAY

WOODBURN, June 13—Funeral of Joy Norton, 25, fifth victim of the automobile-truck tragedy near Oregon City Friday, June 5, will be held from the Methodist Episcopal church at 2 p. m. here tomorrow, with Rev. J. D. Gillanders, pastor of the Monitor church, officiating.

Young Norton, badly crushed when he fell from the truck under the wheels of the trailer, at time of the accident, died in an Oregon City hospital Friday evening.

A gain in college engineering students was shown during 1930, while students of music, divinity, pharmacy, journalism, architecture, fine arts, and education decreased.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Norton of this city. Besides the parents, he is survived by two brothers, Clifford and LaVerne, who live here.

In this catastrophe, four members of an Astoria family were killed instantly and their bodies almost cremated when their light automobile collided head-on with the truck and burst into flames, three miles south of Oregon City. Howard Magnusen, 26, of Woodburn, driver of the truck, was also taken to an Oregon City hospital, suffering from bruises and shock. Joy Norton was riding as a helper on the truck.

mission subject to approval by communities and the aeronautics board, went into effect last week. V. I. Simmons, Newport, was here yesterday urging a permit be granted for the beaches there.
