

HOBBS IS NEW STATE PRINTER

Succeeds H. S. Bosshard in Job Here; Employees Asked to Resign

H. S. Bosshard, state printer since 1919, was removed by Governor Julius L. Meier and State Treasurer Rufus C. Holman at a meeting of the state printing board, and E. C. Hobbs, superintendent of the Oregon State College Press at Corvallis since 1917 was named his successor. Secretary of State Hoss was not at the meeting of the state printing board of which he is a member.

At the same meeting the resignations of all persons employed in the state printing department was requested effective July 1.

Although the action was taken at a meeting of the board held in the executive department Monday no publicity was given the session until yesterday. The motion requesting the resignations of Mr. Bosshard and other employees of the state printing department was made by Rufus C. Holman, state treasurer, and was seconded by Governor Meier. Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state and third member of the state printing board, was not in attendance at the meeting.

A resolution offered by Holman stressed the possibilities of economies in the state printing department, and authorized Mr. Hobbs to proceed with reorganization of the plant and its operating personnel.

Long Experience in Printing Trade
Mr. Hobbs is a native of Sheridan, Ill. He was educated in Michigan, and served his apprenticeship in the printing trade with the Gage Publishing company of Battle Creek. He later was employed by the Rand-McNally company and was superintendent of the Dispatch Printing company of Birmingham, Ala. Mr. Hobbs came to Oregon in 1917.

Whether Arthur Brock, for many years foreman of the state printing department, will be retained could not be determined Wednesday. Brock has been employed in many of the larger commercial and newspaper offices on the Pacific coast, and was said to be an efficient printer.

He has received credit for many financial savings in the state printing office during his employment there.

Mr. Bosshard, the retiring printer, was appointed state printer during the administration of ex-Governor Olcott. Officials said his administration has been efficient.

Fred Setton, now employed in the Oregonian plant in Portland, was said to have been offered a subordinate position in the state printing plant, but refused the proposal. Setton was an applicant for the office. Ben West, Salem printer, also was said to have made a campaign for the appointment.

Secretary of State Hoss has consistently refused to vote for the removal of present officials whose administrations have been satisfactory.

Reduced Price On Lime Asked By Delegation

A delegation of Willamette valley farmers, headed by C. C. Hulet, master of the Oregon state grange, appeared before Max Gehlhar, director of the state agricultural department, yesterday and urged cheaper lime for consumers.

It was brought out that farmers are now paying $4.50 per ton for fertilizer lime processed at the state penitentiary. Farmers

AIR RESERVE WOULD GUARD SKIES

ARMY CONDOR BOMBER

CONDOR PASSENGER PLANE

CAPT THOMAS B. DOE

Although the United States Army Air Corps in May theoretically repulsed an invading "enemy" leaders in the aircraft industry feel that were it not for America's reserve strength as represented by civil aviation, the United States could not feel too optimistic about the result of an actual future conflict in the clouds. They point to the gigantic military air forces being created by other nations in contrast to that of the United States. As consolation, however, America today has more than 72 hours, in the opinion of Captain Thomas B. Doe, West Point graduate, official of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and vice-president of North America Aviation. Photos show an army airplane, a huge Condor bomber, and the big 21-passenger transport Condor, evolved from the military ship and now flown by Eastern Air Transport. Only a few hours' work would be required to attach bomb and machine gun racks to the passenger plane shown in lower photo.

declared that this price was too high under existing business conditions.

The argument was advanced that the cost could be reduced through the development of a lime rock deposit near Falls City.

Mr. Gehlhar said he would investigate.

GREGORY REQUESTS STATE DELAY PLAN

Mayor P. M. Gregory confirmed a previous statement of J. C. Baar, engineer, yesterday in a letter to the state board of control urging the deferring of construction of a power and light plant at the state institution until such a time as the city of Salem can determine about its water and power supply from the North Santiam river. Baar for several months has been investigating water and power possibilities on this river and his report is expected soon.

Gregory pointed out that the citizens of Salem by a five to one vote had authorized the acquisition of water and power rights on the North Santiam. These indications point to strong sentiment for municipal ownership of utilities in Salem, Gregory said. He thinks a water and power plant can be erected which will carry the load of the state institutions.

GRAND JURY IS FOUND ILLEGAL

Failure to Make Order Last October Rules out all Of Acts, now Held

Failure of Judge McMahan of the Marion county circuit court to enter an order continuing the grand jury of the October, 1930, term of the circuit court until January 2, 1931, caused Judge G. P. Skipworth of Lane county to hand down an opinion yesterday holding invalid all proceedings of the grand jury which has been holding on since October.

The attack on the legality of the grand jury was made by Oscar Hayer, Dallas attorney, in connection with the indictment of Rhea Luper, ex-state engineer, on a charge of appropriating public funds. It was alleged that Luper, while acting as state engineer, appropriated to his own use approximately $4200 interest earned on irrigation funds.

"The grand jury which indicted the defendant," read Judge Skipworth's opinion referring to the Luper indictment, "had no legal standing whatsoever, no more so than if seven persons from a service club should assemble and pretend to indict a citizen."

Grand Jury Not Continuous Body
"It was never the purpose of the constitution or legislature that a grand jury should be continued in session from term to term to such an extent that they would partake of a professional grand jury."

Besides invalidating the indictment involving Luper the opinion probably will make ineffective a large amount of data gathered in connection with an investigation of certain state and county officials. This investigation was suggested by Judge McMahan.

Records in the county clerk's office show that these investigations cost approximately $1231.

Under Judge Skipworth's opinion no grand jury is in existence in Marion county at the present time.

A peon training school was conducted at Natchez, Miss., this spring.

Rodeo Boosters Present Meier Ten-Gallon Hat

Five stalwart citizens of Oregon City wearing ten-gallon hats called on Governor Meier yesterday afternoon and invited him to attend the big Round-up at Oregon City on July 4 and 5. They presented him with a hat of the same gallanage they wore, which the governor accepted after noting that it didn't come from Portland's own store. The governor promised to attend the show, which is presented by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Jim Evans, who piloted the bunch around Salem, declared they would have the greatest show ever. A. L. Price, prominent Oregon City booster, laid it on heavy, too, in extending a welcome to Salem people to attend the celebration there.

ARREST MADE DUE TO HIGHWAY CRASH

Mrs. Jung Sing and her son, Ernest Jung Sing were injured and two cars demolished in an accident which occurred on the highway between Gervais and Brooks Tuesday night.

J. W. Mock of Seattle was driving the north bound car which crashed head into the car driven by Jung Sing. Mack was lodged in jail on a charge of being drunk on a public highway. Witnesses declared that he was at fault in the accident and he pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk.

Mrs. Jung Sing was in a local hospital over night but was released on Wednesday. She suffered severe cuts and bruises and her son Ernest was also bruised.

The Jung Sings are proprietors of the Shanghai cafe in Salem and were returning from Portland with a new sedan loaded with restaurant supplies valued at approximately $400.
