PERRYDALE, July 2—It is the opinion of many of the farmers here that there will be a great shortage of hay due to the prolonged rain. Many hundred tons of clover hay has been hauled from the field and stacked some places to be burned.

The Yeatch was not ready to cut before the rain and during the damp weather it grew to great height and fell flat causing it to mold and only a small portion can be used even for feed.

NEW "BELL" WILL SAVE LIVES

Under the watchful eyes of United States Naval officers, the newly invented and perfected submarine diving bell or rescue chamber is shown above being lowered into the water at Brooklyn, N. Y., Navy Yard for a test. As many as eight men at a time can be transferred from a sunken vessel to the chamber, which rises to the surface from its own buoyancy. Lieut. Commander A. P. McCann and Lieut. A. M. Morgan (insert) show how telephone communication can be carried on with ships on the surface from the interior of the bell.

Cherry Argument Not Definitely Settled by Expert

HUBBARD, July 2—A controversy arose at the berry house of the Hubbard Cooperative Fruit Growers' association a few days ago over the cause of an injury on the Royal Ann cherries belonging to Harry Huggill, Hubbard berry grower.

A sample of the cherries were sent to the Oregon State college for examination by the experts there and in reply Mr. Huggill received the following letter: Harry Huggill, Hubbard, Oregon. Dear Sir: Your letter of June 27 to Mr. Netter relative to an injury on the Royal Ann cherries has been referred to me, by Mr. Netter, for reply.

I have examined the cherries which you sent to Mr. Netter for cherry maggot injury. I could not find any evidence of cherry maggot work on these cherries. I have, however, found Royal Ann cherries with cherry maggot egg punctures, which looked considerably like the injured cherries sent to Mr. Netter. These cherries had a red circle around the egg puncture, but upon close examination a tiny hole could be seen in the center of the circle. The outline of the puncture usually accompanies such an injury. Very truly yours, Department of Entomology, A. C. Jones, assistant entomologist.

SHOULD THE CHILDREN EAT IT?

PARENTS, particularly mothers, are paying a lot of attention to children's diet these days. For it is far more economical and pleasant to keep a child well by feeding him correctly than by nursing and doctoring him back to health.

Of course the doctor should be consulted regarding what a child should eat and what he should not eat. But do you realize that the leading manufacturers of food now seek the advice and approval of the leading nutritional authorities in the country, relative to the claims they make for their products in their advertising?

In other words, food advertisements are reliable sources of information regarding diet. They are based upon the results of the latest approved scientific discoveries about vitamins, minerals and roughage, in relation to vigorous bodies, clear complexions, sound teeth and properly regulated systems.

So read these advertisements carefully. Consult your doctor about them. Very often the advertiser invites you to do this because he has asked authorities, whom your doctor respects, about those advertisements first.
