By ANNE ADAMS
A flattering, feminine frock that has the happy property of making its wearers appear more slender as well as extremely cool. The lovely, yoke forms shoulder caps, and then continues down the front in a panel that develops side pleats adding grace and fullness to the skirt. Very easy to make with no sleeves to worry one. You will like lawn, dimity, batiste, shantung or flat crepe for this model, in solid color or a dainty print. The leather belt is chic.

Pattern 2171 may be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39 inch fabric. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Oh These Women!

By LEOLA ALLARD

Another letter protesting that married women have the right to work and that they do better work than the unmarried "silly flappers".

Not all unmarried workers are silly flappers. Remember that! And not all married women use their money for necessities. Too many of them spend their incomes on themselves alone. The husbands don't get a new hanky out of the weekly stipend. Some of them—I have one in mind now—put the income in a bank in their own name, and let the husband pay for a maid, which he can't well afford, and if they decide on divorce (if she decides) then she will have a little more than her alimony. And you can bet a woman who will get alimony, or else.

Now don't jump on my shivering frame if I say that I think in these hard times, a girl who isn't married, who hasn't anybody to care for her, but who must, perhaps take care of some member of her family, is certainly more entitled to a job than the woman who has a husband who has a job.

The woman who protested so angrily yesterday, admitted her husband has a good job and she hires a maid, yet because a girl is a flapper and powders her nose too often, she hasn't a good right to the job as the woman with the husband. Flappers powder their noses because they want to get husbands, and they want husbands for many reasons, one of which is to have someone to pay the bills so they can keep house. It's the women with homes who want to work and the women with jobs who want homes.

Youth is going to be young and you can't change that. Youth that is pretty in these days of strong competition, is going to try to be a little prettier than the next girl, by using cosmetics. Why not? Of course some girls spend more than half their time dolling up, but married women are quite as foolish, and they have, perhaps, less reason to be. Married women, especially those who aren't exactly happy at home, sometimes resent pretty young girls. They wish they could be that foolish. They can remember when they were and that emphasizes the fact that they are past their prettiest youth. Women who know youth has slipped away aren't going to let anything slip away if they can help it.

I don't mean all married women or all married workers. There are women who need jobs and women who don't. What you mean is that women who don't need them should bow

LAST PEER

The last peerage granted by King Alfonso of Spain before the revolution, was conferred upon Maria Antonia Field, descendant of the founders of Monterey, Cal. She received the highest title awarded women in Spain, "Lady of the Royal Order and Grand Cross of Isabella the Catholic," just two hours before the revolution broke out.

to those who do. But that, is Utopia. Unfortunately this is just a nice old earth full of people who are full of imperfections.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT
It is plain to any brain that clicks that the army of beauty seekers must carry on. There are times when the applicant for pulchritude is ready to give up the fight, she almost thinks she'd enjoy the peaceful business of growing old and ugly. But it won't do to join up with the beauty slackers. To lose interest in the reflection in the looking glass is to lose interest in life, to start going to seed, to be on the toboggan hurtling oneself towards the valley where wall-flowers grow. So keep fit, keep in form, keep on your toes. There's nothing to be gained by quitting the game.

The vinegar rinse is a help to the femme whose chief beauty plaint is oily hair. It makes the shampoo more thorough, separates each hair from its neighbor, gives the shafts tone and resiliency. Add two tablespoons of vinegar to a quart of warm water. After the shampoo hold the head over a washbowl and pour on the rinse. Pour on repeatedly by using a cup, or dip the head in the bowl. Finish with a tepid spraying.

A rose-red nose may be caused by impaired circulation, in which case rubbing the body with moistened salt every morning, removing the crystals with cold water will prove beneficial. If the diet is at fault, cut down on rich, heavy dishes and subsist mainly on lean meats, poultry, fish, green salads, vegetables and a fruit juice. Apply ointment of zinc oxide nightly.

Here is the recipe for a massage cream that is valuable in treatment of wrinkles: melt together one-half ounce of white wax, one-half ounce of spermaceti, one ounce of coconut oil, one ounce of lanolin; and two ounces of oil of sweet almonds; remove from heat, pour in one ounce of orange-flower water to which a few drops of oil of lavender flowers have been added. Pluff with eggbeater until the consistency of whipped cream then pour into jars.

Peroxide and powdered pumice stone form a paste that is effective to use with orange wood stick for the purpose of detaching cuticle from the nail base and sides. Send the stick around in a circular motion.

Wedding Date Told At Attractive Dinner

One of the most attractive dinner parties of the week was that for which Mrs. T. L. Davidson was hostess in the Silver Grill room of the Gray Belle in compliment to her daughter, Miss Leone Davidson, Tuesday evening.

The inspiration for the dinner was the announcement of the wedding date of Miss Davidson to Alfred L. Adams of Silverton. The date of September 2, together with the names of the two young people was cleverly arranged on a pink heart attached to dainty corsage bouquets of delicate pastel shades. Each guest found a bouquet at her place at the table. A long centerpiece of flowers in shades to harmonize with the corsages, and pink tapers completed the appearance of a lovely table.

The announcement dinner came on the date of the wedding anniversary of the parents of Miss Davidson. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson were married in Salem 28 years ago at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Stump on Court street. Miss Davidson plans to be married at her parents home, Indian Hill, which is the old home of Judge T. L. Davidson, father of Mr. Davidson.

Covers for the dinner party Tuesday night were for Miss Davidson, Miss Bonnie Harlan, Miss Audreana Reynolds, LeRoy Haag, Miss Doris Nye, Miss Dorothy Cannon, Miss Constance Krebs, Miss Ruth Skinner, Miss Caroline Hoblitt, Miss Lorene Braden, Miss Mildred Simpson, Miss Roberta Varley, Miss Margaret Davidson, Miss Honora, Miss Virginia Holt, Mrs. A. C. Haag, Mrs. J. A. Krebs, Mrs. Percy Blundell, Mrs. J. J. Griffith, Mrs. T. L. Davidson.

HUSBANDS BREATHE EASIER NOW

MR. & MRS. RUDY VALLEE.

Ending what seemed to the men of America a never-ending search for the girl of his dreams, Rudy Vallee, the crooner whose megaphone has alienated the affections of thousands of romance-loving women throughout the nation, considerably enhanced his popularity among his own sex by his marriage to Fay Webb, film player, and daughter of Santa Monica's (Cal.) chief of police. Many a man who has come from his office after a hard day's work, only to be compelled to listen to raves on the crooner, is now happy in the realization that at last he's got a little bit of attention from his women folk. It is just what one would expect her to be physically, but it is another matter whether she'll agree with the crooner's dictum that "man is naturally polygamist, and when he runs around with another woman his wife should regard his detour from the straight and narrow as perfectly natural." It wasn't generally known that Vallee had already engaged in a matrimonial venture, the first Mrs. Vallee being Leonie McCoy, daughter of a coffee magnate. That marriage was annulled after twenty-three days and Rudy's ex-wife is now the mate of Howard Coulter, U. S. naval officer.

Plan to Import Snakes Given Up When Grower Decides Berries Unworthy

WACONDA, July 14—Richard Patterson, native of Oregon and lifetime resident of Willamette valley has decided that it does not pay to raise a bumper crop of loganberries. In the old days an acre or so of logans netted a nice profit. Not so good in 1931.

Although the yield in most yards in the valley was unusually good this year, at the beginning of harvest, Mr. Patterson feared that he would have about half a crop. Since so many growers were unable to dispose of the berries after three weeks of picking he is not intending to go through with a scheme he had decided would increase the yield in any man's yard—if carried out.

The rodents more ambitious

Turner.—Mrs. R. Lee Theissen will entertain Thursday afternoon at her home for the Methodist ladies' monthly silver tea. Mrs. Moe Hadley will be joint hostess. All ladies are cordially invited.

Among the vacationists this weekend will be Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Fuhrer, who are planning a motor trip into British Columbia.

and more plentiful every year eat the fibrous roots that extend under ground where these animals build their tunnels. Thus, many new shoots are killed. That, in Mr. Peterson's opinion, is the cause of the "thin" and "patchy" appearance in some yards.

"Sixty years ago," Mr. Peterson explained, "blow snakes were common here and since the rodent was the blow snake's decider the former was not so plentiful. It is said that these snakes are grown on Rogue river and are protected by law. In that case I would suggest purchasing a carload or so of them and turning them loose on our berry patches."

Women Might Object
"But," he added humorously, "how would the pickers, especially the women, take the idea of these creeping things underfoot. These snakes are harmless, but could you convince a woman?"

And so everything considered, overproduction and the fact that putting heels on the snakes would be quite out of the question, Mr. Peterson has decided to put the idea aside, for the present at least.

BAR EXAM RUMORS CAUSE OF WARNING

State Board and Officials Of Multnomah Making Thorough Probe

Concerning the rumors that bar examination questions were being sold in Portland to applicants for bar admittance, a statement was read to the 192 would-be lawyers here today as the examinations were started. John Carson, member of the board read the statement which follows:

"As you doubtless know there has been current in Portland for the past few days, a vicious rumor to the effect that the questions to be submitted at this examination were subject to purchase. At the request of the board, the district attorney of Multnomah county is running this rumor to the ground. Thus far it has been found to be without any substance. His investigation will continue, however, until the matter is thoroughly sifted."

Urges Report of Any Information

"These examinations are given for the purpose of determining your individual knowledge of the law. If improper or unlawful means are sought to be used to pass this examination, only harm can come from it. The board of examiners has a right to feel, and it does feel, that aspirants to the honorable profession of the law would not stoop to cheat and in so doing bring injury and disrepute to their fellows. From your study of ethics, you know that even if it were possible, it would be as morally wrong to buy the information as it would be to sell it."

"In the interest of decency and fairness you are earnestly requested to communicate to this board or to the district attorney of Multnomah county any knowledge or information that you may have concerning the subject of the rumor. It is important to each of you that there should be no question as to the regularity of this examination."

The examinations will last two days, and are being conducted under the supervision of the state board of bar examiners. Five of the 192 applicants for admittance are women.
