A delightful social affair was that which was planned as a surprise for Monday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Morris Richter and Miss Dorothy Richter by a group of their friends. The Richters have been guests in Salem for the past two months and plan to leave Saturday enroute to their home in Washington, D. C. They expect to go by the southern route and will visit such places as Crater Lake and other scenic spots.

The guests in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Richter and Miss Richter were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Tasto, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gehler, Mr. and Mrs. Max Gehler, Mr. and Mrs. William Bricker, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Homyer, Mr. and Mrs. Elton H. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Krueger, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Lee, Miss Arthur Tasto, Miss Louisa Bricker, Miss Frieda Gehler, Miss Gertrude Gehler, Miss Clara Homyer, and Mark Gehlar.

Mrs. Ralph Matthews Complimented

Mrs. Ralph Matthews who has been a guest here from Kansas City, Missouri, at the home of her mother, Mrs. A. L. Brown, has been the inspiration for several attractive affairs in the past weeks. One of the prettiest of these events was the luncheon for which Mrs. A. T. Wain entertained at her country home Wednesday afternoon. The porch of the Wain home made a gracious and cool setting for the small tables centered with pink phlox.

Covers were placed for Mrs. Matthews, Mrs. A. L. Brown, Mrs. Fred Steusloff, Mrs. W. S. Mott, Mrs. Kattie Graver, Mrs. George Dunsford, Mrs. Dana Fry, Sr., Mrs. Ida Babcock, Mrs. J. B. Craig, and Mrs. Wayne. Mrs. Craig assisted the hostess.

The afternoon was spent sewing and in conversation.

Pleasant View—The family and a few friends of Mrs. Amanda Plummer, who is 81 years old, gathered Sunday at the home of Mrs. Plummer's daughter, Mary F. Cole. All of Mrs. Plummer's family were present excepting one daughter, Mrs. Edward Derry, of Albany. A basket dinner was served at the noon hour, and the day was spent in visiting. Those present were: Amanda Plummer, Mrs. Albert Plummer, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weddle and grandson, Lamonte Weddle, Jefferson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wallace and son Merrill, Bremerton, Wash., Mr. N. L. Kelly, Stayton, and the hosts, Mrs. Mary F. Cole and son, Albert James, and daughter Zona.

Pattern

You are always indifferent to the rising mercury when you are smartly clad in one of the new cottons so popular with the feminine world this season. Just as simple as can be, this little frock with square neck back and front, and square detail in the skirt flare. Joining. Sleeveless, of course, for real summer comfort, and trimmed only with a ruffling of solid color. Picture white, dimity or shantung dotted in red, a wide red leather belt, white around the neck and a light Panama hat with red band. Lovely!

Pattern 2172 may be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch fabric. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

Oh These Women!

By LEOLA ALLARD
How would you like to take your college education into someone's laundry and wash and iron to keep the wolf from the door, while your husband walked the streets hunting work? And if you didn't like it, could you talk of it with a smile, and "kid your bad luck"?

I've never had a letter that so impressed me. I'm working for money I suppose, but I forget it when I get my mail. The sincerity of this woman and the courage of her, and the sparkle left after a long hard grind! I'm going to let you have her letter:

"Dear Miss Allard: I like that tall light you always add to your column. Today you say the women who work in times like this when so many need jobs should lean on their husbands. Sponging off a poor-earner of a husband isn't my idea of helping the cause of unemployment. . . ."

"You say they buy fine clothes that the husband's salary alone wouldn't permit. Yes, but isn't sponging supposed to put cash in circulation? . . ."

"If I were earning money just for luxuries and knew a girl who needed to work to live, I'd give it to her so fast you could hardly see me for dust. Nothing else could make me leave it however, and how would I know that girl would get it? Then how would I get a fur coat better than Mrs. Jones'? I never wore one. Hubby hasn't worked since last May. I am a caretaker in a cheap little hotel where we eat take a job away from a woman who wants fur coats and a Hispano eight (the magnanimous gesture)."

"She needs those luxuries as much as I need the extra bundle of washing I do for the roomers upstairs and the world of business needs her money. The more she buys, the sooner all the roomers will go back to work and give me bigger and better bundles of washing. Finish the neat little circle won't you Miss Allard? . . ."

"We manage two square and one round meal a day and I'm puffing up over the siffy ironing I can do on men's shirts and bed-sheets. Never knew it was in me! And yet, till last June I never did a lick of work worth mentioning. I lived where all the other women in the hotel worked except me, and there was a stiff little understanding between us women that I never did break through—except to understand it. They despised me because I was a sponging loafer. I'm not sensitive but I could feel that. I'm more observant than sensitive. Even the landlady asked me why I didn't get a job. My husband wouldn't let me work then. He stands it pretty well now though and comes home from job hunting and helps me with the wash, and there is a real pride in his eyes when he watches me fold the customers' shirts.

"Ho hum," he always adds. "Soon as I get a job, honey, you shan't do this any more. It's too hard." Poor George. What a lot of learning he has to do when he gets the job. Me quit working, now? Not so you can notice it. It's too much fun. . . ."

"You should print some copies of that letter and hang them in divorce and domestic courts and in some homes I know about. Isn't she a wow? . . ."

"If I'm wrong, write me care Syndicate, Inc. . . ."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT
New fashions, fresh-laid complexion, smart, sassy chapeaux put a woman on her toes. Draping the feminine frame with attire that takes on new character in a stimulating pastime. Since monotony is the blight that kills the flower of beauty, it behooves a woman to keep in touch with new modes and moods. Yes, moods, for Lady Fashion is mercurial, ever-changing. She charms and delights us. When we are no longer charmed, life has us beaten and nothing much matters.

Moles can be removed by electrical treatment, by x-ray or by light freezings with carbon dioxide snow. Best to have a medical man do the work, since now and then a mole may be inclined to take on a malignant character when it is tampered with. Warts will up and depart when well dozed with castor oil. Now and then, a senility wart will appear. It grows quickly and has a broken, white border. Medical attention is necessary.

Tendrils along the forehead are going strong, for which let us be thankful. The exposed brow is trying for any woman who isn't qualified to stand in the front ranks of the beauty prize winners. Beau-catchers are formed and kept in order by moistening with bandoline, twisting into curly cues, slapping down on the skin to dry.

Light scars left by pimples should be anointed every night with ointment of zinc oxide. Deep scars can sometimes be removed by surgical treatment. A new incision is made, the old dead tissue is removed, the wound is stitched together in a clever manner that leaves no definite blemish.

A combination of peroxide and powdered pumice stone, applied under the nail edges with an orangewood stick, will remove discolorations. Lemon juice is effective. The best means of using it is to plunge the finger tips into the lemon pulp. It should be bathed away in a few minutes.

Week End at Beach For Salem People

Dr. and Mrs. David Bennett Hill will leave today for a fortnight to be spent at Taft. They are accompanied by their daughter, Charlotte, and her small guest, Barbara Pierce.

As weekend guests at their beach cottage Dr. and Mrs. Hill will have Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Lyte, and Dr. and Mrs. P. D. Quisenberry of Corvallis.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Forstner have had as their recent guests Mr. and Mrs. Albert Case of Hood River who were all route from Fairhope, Alabama. They have been attending Miss Marietta Johnson's school of organic education in Fairhope for the past two years.

A motor trip of 10 days will be enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Merle D. Travis beginning with this weekend. Crater Lake, Grants Pass, Medford, and then north to Tacoma, Seattle and Vancouver, B. C., is the plan for the trip.
