Under the Dome...

HAL E. HOSS has joined the white trouser brigade at the state capitol and last week appeared in flannels with black stripes. Hoss rated this item as he was the only one who rewarded this column with a cigar for the notice of popularity published Friday.

Press reports state two men were hanged in California. In Oregon there hasn't been an execution for several years, although the hangman's noose is ready and waiting at the penitentiary for a victim. The rope was prepared for James Kingsley of Medford, who was granted a stay of execution by the court.

Former Governor Os West visited the capitol. He said he wasn't used to coming Friday and finding most officials gone for the weekend. The only one he found it was Hal Hoss. Holman was at Roseburg and the governor was in Portland. West commented that conditions and times had changed since he was executive.

Asked if he thought a special session would be held, West said he believed not. Politically speaking, he added, he would consider a special session, over which no control could be fully exercised, would not be a good move. That is, politically, he said. As far as an accomplishment, that was another thing.

During Holman's absence, his office is being given a new coat of paint, the first applied there since Hoff was treasurer. The color scheme is cream with ivory borders, and lives up the office after the dull grey color recently predominating.

and talked with you. I suspected Harry. I didn't know what might have happened to Gerry. I was ready to have it out with him. But I couldn't locate him. And since I've talked with pop and mom, I know I was a big fool. There wasn't anything wrong between Gerry and Harry. I'm ashamed ever to have thought such a thing. How did you know I did it?"

Thatcher Cole replied with a question: "Whom else did you question about it?"

A look of surprise flushed Bruce's face as he exclaimed: "Betty!"

Occurrences and Gossip at the center of Oregon's state government

Now that the state capitol press room has a teletype, a telephone, several desks and typewriters for the members of the Fourth Estate, all that is needed is a radio and a davenport. For the radio it has been suggested a committee wait upon the governor and the Meier and Frank store. The davenport should be supplied by the secretary of state, to whom the gallery is representative of what equipment has already been provided.

With no special session—as indications now point—it looks as though it will be a quiet month for news and a davenport report would come in handy for the boys. Magazines are supplied by the staff while the state library furnishes books. Do not misunderstand—these would be for use of the guests.

It appears that Governor Julius L. Meier is strong for Pennsylvania. No sooner did General Butler visit the state as the guest of the governor, than the executive invites the presence of the famous statesman. Gifford Pinchot wired he would be in Oregon August 15.

During Holman's absence, his office is being given a new coat of paint, the first applied there since Hoff was treasurer. The color scheme is cream with ivory borders, and lives up the office after the dull grey color recently predominating.

ROAD EXPENDITURE REDUCTION LIKELY

Farmers, Once Insistent on Improvement, Favoring Retrenchment now

Road expenditures may be severely reduced in Marion county next year if the attitude towards tax reduction expressed by farmers in recent months continues. Members of the county court last week expressed themselves as willing to reduce appropriations for roadwork in the county if the public demanded such retrenchment. Heretofore, they pointed out, good roads have been insisted upon and farmers have demanded any more to keep back the highway program.

The first item which could be cut would be $75,000 to $100,000 appropriated annually to match the one-mill tax levy of the state government for market roads. Under the 1931 legislative enactment, this millage is abolished and instead an amount equivalent to this sum is taken from the license and gasoline revenues of the state highway department and given to the counties for use on the so-called secondary roads which replace the market roads.

County Need Not Watch Amounts These roads are to be built under supervision of the state highway commission on routes it approves. There is no provision that the county match the funds as it has been required to do heretofore.

Marion county launched a 120-mile market road program three years ago. Nearly 80 miles of this work will have been finished this fall. At the present rate of construction, the program would have been fairly well completed by the end of 1932 but retrenchment of the market road moneys would necessitate lengthening the program for at least another year.

Heavy Damages Sought Due to Death of Rauch

Ten thousand dollars in damages for the death of Paul Rauch, August 11, 1929, is asked by Frank Rauch, administrator of the former's estate, in a suit filed yesterday in circuit court. Sticklein is named defendant in the suit. The plaintiff holds he drove in a careless, reckless manner.

Rauch was named administrator of the youth's estate July 3, 1931.

Chief Justice Bean of the state supreme court has assigned Judge Hill of the Marion county circuit court to Clatsop county to substitute for Judge Zimmerman. Judge Earl C. Latourrette of Oregon City has been disqualified in the case of Svenson vs. Brix.

THIRD GROUP WILL DEPART FOR CAMP

Problem of Transportation Is Noted; 17 Girl Reserves to go

Camp life in Camp Santiam on the Santiam where the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A. are now camping is proving a delightful success according to all reports which come from the group. Under the present rate of construction, the program would have been fairly well completed by the end of 1932 but retrenchment of the market road moneys would necessitate lengthening the program for at least another year.

The one worry at the present moment for all concerned is to secure the truck which will take the 17 girls up to camp Monday and bring back those who have spent their share of time there. A truck driver is also needed who will donate his services to drive a truck which is available to Camp Santiam. This truck will be loaded with bedding and provisions. Any one responding to this dire need notify Mrs. M. B. Wagstaff, office secretary at the Y. W. C. A. headquarters on Liberty street.

The girls who go to camp Monday will be the last Reserve group to go. Each group in all will then have enjoyed the camp for the past three weeks. August 2 to 9 the Girl Scouts will have a week at camp.

The Reserve group going to Camp Santiam Monday will include: Barbara Miller, Winona Robinson, Carol Ferguson, Marjorie Fry, Priscilla Walsh, Phyllis Graham, June Curtis, Marjorie Sawyer, Maxine Drorbaugh, Eileen Goodenough, Maxine Goodenough, Dorothy Gibson, Norma Jean Gilbertson, Mollie Small of Eugene, Edna Scherzinger of Neakowin, Doris Vincent and Janet Robertson, Ella Collier, Janet Fryer and Betty Fouke, who have spent the past week at the camp, will remain for the coming week.
